SHIPPING BOARD WILL POSTPONE SLASH IN STAFF

Proposal for Lay-Off of 750 to Be "Forgotten" During Winter.

POSTAL DEPARTMENT TO ASSIST SITUATION

All Overtime Work Going to Substitutes by New Plan.

COL. WOODS CONFERS HOUR AT WHITE HOUSE

Director of Relief Indicates Unemployment Survey Will Be Made.

The plan to lay off 750 employes of the United States Shipping Board Merchant Fleet Corporation is not going to be carried out after all—at least, not while the weather is cold and the unemployment situation confronts the country.

Announcement to this effect was made yesterday by Chairman T. V. O'Connor, of the Shipping Board, after he had called on Secretary of Commerce Lamont, chairman of the President's Cabinet committee that is combatting unemployment in the land.

"No countermanding order has been issued," Chairman O'Connor said. "We have just decided to forget the plan for reducing personnel."

One of Two Moves.

This was one of two moves made yesterday by high officials in the Federal service to help the unemployment situation.

Postmaster General Brown informed Secretary Lamont that hereafter overtime work in the postal service would be given, not to the regular employes as at present, but to the substitute employes who are more greatly in need of it.

Up until now the overtime work has been awarded the regular employes because of their greater efficiency. But hereafter, Postmaster General Brown said, no regular employe will be allowed to work more than eight hours when there is a substitute who can do his work.

Preference to Married Men.

How much this will mean to the substitutes in the way of wages is now being computed by Assistant Postmaster General Arch Coleman.

In the hiring of extra employes for the Christmas rush period, Mr. Coleman said yesterday, preference will be given to married men wherever possible.

The significance of Chairman O'Connor's announcement lies in the fact that Uncle Sam, in the case of the Shipping Board at least, has decided that humanity is more important than efficiency and economy. By saving the jobs of some 750 men and women, Uncle Sam shows the way in the President's war on unemployment.

Order Issued By Jenkins.

The order for the reduction in the Fleet Corporation was issued last September 24 by J. Caldwell Jenkins, acting president of the corporation. It was to come as a result of a complete reorganization of the corporation, and was to be in line with the policy of taking the Federal Government out of the shipping business.

Fifty per cent of the corporation's employes were to be let out gradually —200 of them here in Washington and the remainder in ports in this country and abroad.

How long the reduction now will be postponed, Chairman O'Connor did not say yesterday, but he made it clear that it would be "forgotten" at least until winter has past.

Woods Confers With Hoover.

Col. Arthur Woods, of New York, director of President Hoover's relief organization, was an early caller at the White House yesterday. He talked with the President for an hour and also with Secretary Lamont, Secretary of War Hurley and Undersecretary of the Treasury Mills.

Afterward he indicated that a formal appeal soon would go out to American industry to cooperate in the fight against unemployment.

Col. Woods also decided that steps would be taken to find out as nearly as possible just how many Americans now are out of work. In order to compile an accurate figure the relief committee will call on the Department of Labor, the American Federation of Labor and various State and city employment agencies to supply it with all available data in their possession.

Boston Mayor Calls.

The headquarters of the relief committee in the Department of Commerce Building was a scene of intense activity yesterday. Callers streamed in and out throughout the morning and afternoon.

Solid State Delegation of Dozen Members Once on List.

This is the first of a series of articles by the "Man in the Green Hat," as George L. Cassiday has been known for ten years to senators, representatives and their staffs.

The story told here for the first time sheds a new and astonishing light upon actual enforcement conditions under the eighteenth amendment, the Volstead act and the Jones "five and ten" law, among the Nation's lawmakers on Capitol Hill.

The authoritative articles by this eyewitness of law observance—where the laws are made—are published by The Washington Post because of their vital interest in connection with a great public question.

By GEORGE L. CASSIDAY ("The Man in the Green Hat").

For nearly ten years I have been supplying liquor at the order of United States senators and representatives at their offices at Washington. On Capitol Hill I am known as "The Man in the Green Hat."

I started in 1920 and continued during the terms of Presidents Harding and Coolidge and well into the Hoover administration. That is a good deal longer than the average representative holds his seat. Many of my best customers have been reelected and are still active in the House and Senate. Some of them are candidates today for reelection in November.

It may be a surprise and a shock to many good people to

WHALEN CONVICTED OF EMBEZZLEMENT

IS FACING 50-YEAR TERM

Robert E. J. Whalen, a member of the District Bar, was convicted by a jury before Justice Peyton Gordon in District Supreme Court yesterday on a charge of embezzling $23,000 belonging to Miss Annie Hurley, of Hyattsville, Md., a client.

The attorney, who blanched and apparently almost fainted when the verdict was returned, was sent to jail pending sentence. He faces a maximum sentence of 50 years in the penitentiary. The jury was out less than fifteen minutes.

Whalen, testifying on his own behalf, told the jury he had received the money from the woman but declared he had returned it to her. He is alleged to have received the money between December, 1927, and last July, but declared he had returned the money to her on June 6 and had obtained a receipt.

Miss Hurley stated that she had received no refund from the lawyer and declared that the receipt introduced was not in the form it was when it was presented to her for her signature.

Whalen had declared that he had put the money received from Miss Hurley in a safety deposit box. United States Attorney Leo A. Rover introduced a witness from the bank who produced records showing that Whalen had made many visits to the vault but had made none near the date when he stated he had returned the money.

The attorney recently was indicted in Maryland on a similar charge.

Attorney James J. O'Leary appeared for Whalen.

Capital, Siam To Be Linked By Telephone

"Hello, hello! . . . Is this Siam? . . . Well, let me have the king, please."

Thus may the Siamese minister to Washington call his chief on the telephone from the legation at 2300 Kalorama road northwest by the end of this week.

The radio-telephone circuit has just been completed, according to the Associated Press, and exeprimental conversations have been carried on by agents of the companies involved with satisfactory results.

The route is by radio from Bangkok to Berlin, by wire to London, radio to New York, and wire to Washington.

The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. in New York announced also it will inaugurate regular commercial telephone service between North America and Australia next Monday.

The new circuit, the longest ever established for regular commercial telephony, consists principally of two radio links, one across the Atlantic and the other between England and Australia.

Member of Purple Gang Is Given Life Sentence

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Philip Keywell, the first of Detroit's notorious purple gang to receive a major prison term in State Court, was sentenced to life in the Michigan State Prison for murder today.

Keywell was sentenced in Recorder's Court for the slaying of Arthur Mixon, a 19-year-old Negro ice man, on July 22, near a whisky cutting plant in an alley, which Keywell was said to have been operating. Keywell had been tried twice on the charge. Keywell was arrested in Chicago for investigation in connection with the St. Valentine's day massacre of 1929. He was later released.

WOMAN ALLEGEDLY ADMITS KILLING GIRL

First Degree Murder Counts Loom Against Stepmother and Brother-in-Law.

POLICE GRILL SUSPECT

Denver, Colo., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Mrs. Pearl O'Loughlin, stepmother of 10-year-old Leona O'Loughlin, found dead in a city park lake, today obtained a court order permitting her to confer with counsel, a few hours after Bert Clark, detective captain, said she has assumed responsibility for the slaying.

Other developments in the strange case were announced in rapid succession. Frank O'Loughlin, the woman's brother-in-law, who lives in the prisoner's home, also was taken into custody. Capt. Clark said Mrs. O'Loughlin, after an all-night grilling, shouted, "Get Frank and give us a sanity test. We must both be crazy."

District Attorney Earl Wettengel reiterated his decision to file a first degree murder charge against the stepmother tomorrow. He said he also was considering taking similar action against Frank O'Loughlin.

Some uncertainty concerning the reputed confession resulted from a statement by Mrs. Suzanna Armstrong, matron of the city jail. Mrs. Armstrong said when the prisoner left the detective captain's office she remarked that she knew nothing of the slaying of her stepchild.

Mrs. O'Laughlin has been held by police for five days and subjected to frequent questioning. The body of the little girl was found last Friday

G. O. P. FIGHTS HARD TO HOLD RHODE ISLAND

SENATE CONTEST ONE OF LEADING FAMILIES

Metcalfs and Gerrys Use Old-Fashioned Campaigning.

MRS. GERRY MAKING FRENCH ADDRESSES

Wrong Patois for Voters From Canada, Scoffing Republicans Say.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

Providence, R. I., Oct. 23. — Now Rhode Island is a most intriguing State politically. It seems that they have a Democrat here and a Republican and another fellow and it is always hard to tell how that third fellow is going to vote.

It is such a small State that you would think nobody would pay any attention to it, but you would be surprised how great are the pains to keep it Republican. When the little dickens went for Smith in 1928, it was cited far and wide as showing the hold this man had on the people. It seems to amount to that much.

It has a newspaper, the Providence Journal, which came to be most influential in the Wilson administration because of its exposure of German plots. Now the Metcalfs, Senator Metcalf's family, have bought heavily into the paper and it is lending its influential self to keeping the State Republican, and again you ask yourself is it worth the undertaking?

Political Intrigue Plentiful.

Why, there seems to be as much political intrigue among the populace of this State, both of them or the three of them, as there is in the Nation's Capital itself.

It may be and quite probably is because old Commodore Gerry early in this century was looking for something for his son, Peter Goelet, to do. Most rich men try to break their sons into their business. Old man Gerry was a Tammany man, although that was not his business, but in looking for an outlet for his son, he finally told him, "Go over to Rhode Island and enter politics."

Well, Peter Goelet did that very thing and went to the House and then served two terms in the Senate. But like most rich men's sons it has been most difficult for him to keep at the business. He has spent just as little time as he possibly could in Rhode Island and still maintain his residence.

Taking Politics Seriously.

But he has added to the intrigue of the State. It perhaps takes its politics now as seriously as any State in the Union.

To make it more intriguing Peter Goelet bought himself a newspaper, the News Tribune, and as a result you have a spectacle here, of all places, very nearly approaching the old-fashioned school of personal journalism. The News-Tribune reporters, while referring respectfully to the Journal men, do not associate with them and vice versa. They plot against each other and in general strive to serve their political chieftains, the Metcalfs on the one hand, and the Gerrys on the other. One should say "the Gerrys," even though the old commodore is dead, because there is Mrs. Gerry, the former Mrs. George K. Van-

PROSECUTION STRIVES TO TRAP CAMPBELL IN CIRCUMSTANTIAL WEB

Sheriff Fields Relates Statements Made by Accused.

FOUR FAIL IN EFFORT TO IDENTIFY SUSPECT.

Defense Indicates Plan to Challenge Venue of Slaying.

TALE OF FINDING BODY STIRS REV. MR. BAKER

Hour at Which Dead Girl's Watch Stopped May Be of Importance.

Herbert M. Campbell today finds himself partially enmeshed in a net of circumstantial evidence adroitly spun about him by Assistant United States Attorney William H. Collins, who is prosecuting him for the murder of Mary Baker.

All yesterday afternoon witnesses poured into the ears of the jury in the District Supreme Court the circumstances of Campbell's attempt to involve Herman H. Barrere in the murder, his conflicting alibis, his ownership of the alleged death gun, and his identification as his property of a pair of gloves found with the slain girl's clothing.

Four Government witnesses failed to identify Campbell positively as the man seen in the girl's car. Over objections of the defense, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh R. Wood, said that Campbell resembled the man in "type, build and features," but would not name him positively as the man seen in the car.

Francis T. Rice would not say Campbell was the man he saw beating the girl. William E. Willis, who, the Government hoped, would place Campbell on the Experimental Farm road at 6:20 o'clock, also failed to identify him.

Capt. Edward J. Kelly will today take the stand to corroborate the testimony given the jury by Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth and Sheriff Howard B. Fields, of Arlington County.

Defense Is Prepared.

Through the cross-examination the chief defense attorney, Charles Henry Smith, could be perceived building breastworks about his client, threading his way through the testimony in a way that indicates that he will challenge the venue of the murder and will vigorously fight ballistics testimony of the Government.

Scarcely observed in the courtroom as the damaging testimony began was the Rev. Thomas Baker, aged father of the slain girl who, but a few minutes before had clasped hands with Mr. Loudoun Campbell, father of the accused on the portico of the courthouse.

The elder Campbell patted Dr. Baker on the shoulder and said: "Doctor, my son had nothing to do with your daughter's murder." Dr. Baker shook hands but made no comment except to say: "How are you."

Culvert Scene Described.

Sheriff Fields began a description of the grewsome scene at the culvert, during which the father of the girl, bowed his head and frequently dried his eyes with a handkerchief. In his lapel was an autumn rosebud. Occasionally his shoulders shook. He might have been sobbing.

Then Sheriff Fields told the court that he had met Campbell, in connection with the case, when searching for Barrere.

"He told me he was just the kind of a man who would do such a thing," said Sheriff Fields. "After the clothes were found he told me that the gloves were his. 'See those scratches, see that grease, that's how I know they are mine.' He said he believed Barrere stole them from his house."

"Did he mention Barrere again?" Collins asked.

"He always said that Barrere committed the murder."

"One day in early June he came to my office. He had a package in his Fess Discounts Dissension Talk; Says Democrats Exploiting Slump.

CLAIMS BY SHOUSE HIT

(Associated Press).

Republican control of the next Congress was predicted last night by Chairman Fess of the Republican national committee as the two major parties intensified their efforts to gain in the November 4 election.

"The country is Republican," Mr. Fess asserted in a statement through the Republican national committee. "In the past 70 years the administration has been Republican save two exceptions. During that time both branches of Congres swith but few exceptions were Republican."

Mr. Fess asserted that Democrats never win "except when Republicans are divided in some off-year, when political interest is inactive."

"In this off-year," he added, "the Republican party is not divided. Local issues here and there divide Republicans, but not more so than Democrats."

A claim that Democrats would gain control of the House was made last Sunday by Chairman Shouse of the Democratic national executive committee. He added that if the Democrats won in three of five States classed as doubtful they would have a majority of one in the next Senate.

RADIO CARRIES ATTACK

(Associated Press.)

Describing the Hoover administration as "19 months of faithlessness and failure," Claude G. Bowers, of New York, keynote speaker of the 1924 Democratic convention, last night called upon the Nation to "rebuke those in power" by the election of a Democratic Congress on November 4.

In a radio speech over the Columbia Broadcasting System, Bowers, associate editor of the New York Evening World, characterized farm relief as a "mockery," the tariff bill as "robbery," and asserted that "no government on this earth has done less to meet the problems of the unemployed."

"Never in the annals of the Nation," Bowers said, "has any administration suffered such a complete collapse within two years of its inauguration as that of Mr. Hoover. Never has one failed so flagrantly in the fulfillment of its pledges to the public. And never have the people suffered such dire disaster because of ineptitude in statesmanship, incapacity in leadership, and indifference to the welfare of the average man on the part of those in power."

Bowers asserted that for ten months the administration sought to conceal the seriousness of the unemployment crisis.

"It issued repeated statements," he said, "underestimating the number of jobless on the streets through the

Mrs. Doran to Introduce Ginless Cocktail Hostess

Author of "Prohibition Punches" to Tell W. C. T. U. That Law Comes Before Guests' Desires, to Tune of Slogan, "Fill National Goblet Legitimately."

(Associated Press.)

Claiming success for her nonalcoholic cocktail launched a year ago, Mrs. James M. Doran, wife of the commissioner of industrial alcohol, now plans to introduce to the country a new concept of the perfect hostess.

The new model will make her debut at the national convention of the W. C. T. U. in Houston November 14. She has been evolved as the result of a Nation-wide symposium of women conducted by Mrs. Doran.

In contrast to the perfect hostess of years gone by whose chief duty was to please her guests, the new 1931 pattern of hospitality chosen by the temperance women will make her guests' desires, if necessary, subordinate.

She will: First, put her guests at ease and make them feel at home; second, so tactfully but firmly imprint her own personality on any function in her home that her guests will take what she serves and like it; third, dispense only the hospitality which conforms with the laws of her city and State.

She will not be stingy with drinks. On the contrary, she will serve them continuously throughout the meal. But they will be drinks which depend on their taste and color and not their alcoholic content to make them popular.

A new slogan will be launched at

Calvin Coolidge Says:

A political campaign is a very healthful process for a self-governing people. It will develop the weak points in the governmental and economic structures. This is necessary to keep them sound. But there also will be a vigorous demonstration of what is wholesome and good. We have learned to discount the exaggerations of both sides. If we are not so well off as some represent, certainly our condition is not so bad as others claim.

But the weeks preceding a Nation-wide election are filled with so much uncertainty, so many charges and countercharges, that they are not helpful in restoring that public confidence which the country especially needs at this time. There is all the more reason during the next few days for the people to keep their common sense. Nationally and by States, this country is on the whole well governed. In spite of some recession in trade, the business of the country remains enormous. The Nation is solvent. During a time when political revolutions and economic disasters have been world-wide, the strength of our Government, the fundamental soundness of our financial institutions, stand unquestioned.

Jury System's Fate Argued Before U. S. Supreme Court

Right of Congress to Pass Legislation Fixing Penalties for Offenses in District Also Enters Contention Over Reckless Driving Case.

The fate of the jury system of the United States and the right of Congress to pass legislation fixing penalties for offenses committed in the District of Columbia was argued yesterday before the United States Supreme Court when the District government and attorneys for William H. Colts, Negro, came to grips.

Described as a case which may have as much bearing on the future of the country as the Dred Scott case, all justices of the court were on the bench and apparently took the keenest interest in every point brought out by the opposing sides.

Colts was convicted by Judge John P. McMahon several months ago on a reckless driving charge and was sent to jail in default of $100 fine for 30 days. His attorneys, William B. O'Connell, Harry Whelan, and Louis Whitestone, immediately carried the case to the Court of Appeals, and the Police Court was reversed. The District then appealed.

At the hearing yesterday there was much talk of constitutional guarantees and ancient law, and the District, through Assistant Corporation Counsel Robert E. Lynch, introduced into the record a law passed in England in 1773 which specified that persons who drove horses and carriages in such a manner as to endanger human lives could be fined 10 shillings, with the option of 30 days' imprisonment.

hand. He told me it was a gun he had found in his office. The gun was in the same bureau from which he said Barrere had stolen a clock. He asked to have it examined by experts."

"What else did he say?"

"He said he was satisfied that that was the gun that killed Mary Baker. He described a man with a wart on his nose, who, he said, had aroused his curiosity and he searched for the gun at his home. He did not find it and located it in an unused desk in his office."

Campbell Talks to Counsel.

At this point Campbell went into conversation with his attorney, Mr. Smith, as the jury eyed him intently.

Mr. Collins then showed him the revolver, which the Government says, was used by him in the murder. Jurors and spectators craned their necks to look at the weapon.

"That looks like the gun that I turned over to Lieut. John Fowler," said Sheriff Fields, in response to a question.

"I next met Campbell at a conference of authorities in Washington. He did not know that the gun had been identified as the murder gun. He was asked again to repeat the story of the man with the "wart on his nose."

"I went with other detectives to the office on the following day and told him that the gun he had given me was the death weapon."

"What did he say?"

"He said: 'It's no more than I expected, but I have a good alibi.'"

Under further questioning he said Campbell had told him that Barrere was the murderer. "Get Barrere and you get the murderer," he said.

Sheriff Fields detailed the various alibis which had been given by the accused prior to his arrest. "After Barrere's arrest," he continued, "he offered to go to Canada with detectives to help bring Barrere back."

"Then Campbell and I were on the courthouse steps one day and he said to me, 'Do you think I'm in this?' and I said, 'You're in up to your neck.'"

Questioning of Campbell.

Sheriff Fields told the story of the questioning of Campbell on the return of Barrere from Montreal.

"Kelly (Capt. Kelly) read him the story of his alibi and said, 'Are you sure?' Campbell said, 'Yes.' 'Are you absolutely sure?' asked Kelly. 'Yes,' said Campbell.

"Well, Kelly said to him, 'What is the name of the woman you were parked with near the culvert on that afternoon?' Campbell slumped in his chair and said, 'It's all a damn lie.'"

"He told us that all he said about Barrere was lies, that the gun was never out of his possession. We asked him what his reason was for telling these things and he said he wanted to get a thrill out of it. He always got a thrill out of being with headquarters men, he said."

"He said he knew Barrere wasn't guilty and never would have seen him indicted for it."

Mr. Smith, on cross-examination, elicited the admission from Sheriff Fields that Campbell had not mentioned Barrere to them before the authorities had questioned Campbell about him.

Mr. Smith asked Sheriff Fields how many men had been arrested for the murder. Mr. Collins' objection to the question was sustained.

Sheriff Fields was asked by Mr. Smith if he had taken a watch from the wrist of the girl. He said he had. "I took it from the arm that was doubled up under the body," he said. "It was stopped. I put it in my pocket. Later, when I took it out, it had started running again. It had stopped at 9:30, evidently by water seepage.

Mr. Smith expects to use this point to disprove the Government's contention that the body was placed in the culvert soon after 6 o'clock at night.

Sheriff Closely Questioned.

Sheriff Fields was minutely interrogated regarding the ammunition turned over to authorities with the gun. Smith evidently intends to use this information when he calls his ballistics expert to the stand.

"After Campbell told the authorities that he had lied, he never again denied you did he?" asked Smith.

"No," said the witness.

"Did anyone try to convince him at that interrogation that he was crazy?"

"Yes."

Mr. Gloth corroborated the testimony of Sheriff Fields. He added that Campbell had given the description of Barrere which had been placed on police circulars.

"When he had told us he lied about his activities on that afternoon," said Gloth, "he also said, 'You have enough to indict, convict, and electrocute me; why should I tell you more.'

"Campbell asked to have some one else examine the gun. I immediately thought of Col. Calvin Goddard, of Chicago. Campbell said that if he said it was the gun it must be the gun."

Smith Questions Gloth.

Mr. Smith asked Mr. Gloth if all of the policemen had taken part in the grilling and asked how long it had continued.

Mr. Gloth replied that Campbell had been given frequent rests between quizzes and was invited to partake in refreshments which had been brought in.

Benjamin C. Craddock told the court that he had seen a Ford car parked at the spot where the slain girl's automobile was found at 6:48 o'clock on the night of the murder.

James A. Le Master testified that he had seen a car parked there at 6:55 and as he had driven through Arlington Cemetery he had seen a man running through the cemetery with a bundle under his arm. As he neared the man, the stranger pulled the lapel of his coat above his face. He failed to identify Campbell as the man.

Mr. and Mrs. Wood viewed Campbell from every angle as he stood rigidly in the courtroom. Each of these testified there was a reseumblance between Campbell and the assailant but went no further.

Rice said he was walking east on B street when he saw the "bundle in the car come to life."

Talked With Mr. Wood.

After he talked with Mr. and Mrs. Wood, he walked back toward the car and heard what he thought were three to six explosions as the man started the car and drove at a rapid rate down B street.

He also said that he thought he heard a faint, wailing noise. The witness said he then talked with Mr. and Mrs. Wood, from whom he obtained the license number of the car. He reported the incident to the First Precinct at 6:10 o'clock, he said.

"Is this the man you saw in the car?" asked Smith, pointing to Campbell.

"I can't say whether he is or isn't."

On the stand Wood said he was walking with his wife and two children near the place where the girl was seen alive. His attention was attracted by a man and a woman who seemed to be fighting in a car.

"Does he resemble the man you saw in the car?" asked Collins, pointing to Campbell.

Defense attorneys objected but were overruled.

"He is about the build, size and type of the man," he answered.

Questioning by Mr. Smith developed that the hair of the man in the car was black. Wood also heard several noises as the car started off. He also heard backfiring, he said.

Mrs. Wood's testimony was substantially the same as her husband's.

ALEXANDRIA POLICE REOPEN DEATH QUIZ

FIRE ALSO INVESTIGATED

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The death of William Fealy, 24 years old, whose body was found on a trestle of the Alexandria-Washington trolley line at the head of King street early Sunday morning, is to be investigated again by Police Capt. W. W. Campbell, assisted by members of the local police force.

Capt. Campbell stated yesterday that he is not entirely satisfied with the result of the investigation conducted by Coroner T. Marshall Jones, who reached a verdict to the effect that Fealy came to his death by being struck by an electric car, in view of the fact that no motorman of the electric line, or other employe of the company, was aware of a man being struck by a car of the trolley line.

Officials of the line said there would be no reason for employes of the company to hide the fact of striking a man, had such been the case, as the trestle is railroad property and is guarded by warning signs against trespass.

Capt. Campbell believes there are many angles to the case which have not been cleared up. The only facts reported to the police are that Fealy, whose home was at 236 Kentucky avenue southeast, Washington, had been visiting friends in Rosemont and left their home shortly after midnight. The logical point for him to have boarded the trolley car for Washington was at North Braddock station, which is five stations north of the trestle where his body was found. The body was found on the northbound track of the trestle by William Roney, motorman of the electric line, a few minutes before 1 o'clock Sunday morning. There was $60.55 in the pockets of the dead man, who was a bank clerk and a student at George Washington University.

An inques will be held at 7 o'clock tomorrow evening at police headquarters by Coroner T. Marshall Jones, into the fatal injury of Walter Raymond Taylor, 24 years old, of R. F. D. No. 1, Richmond, who died at the Alexandria Hospital Wednesday night following a collision between his auomobile and a Government truck on the Washington-Richmond highway Wednesday morning.

According to reports by the Fairfax County authorities, the car driven by Taylor crashed into an Army truck driven by Corp. H. L. McIntyre, of Fort Meade, Md., in a convoy of trucks under the command of Lieut. C. Leister, en route to Fort Eustis, Va. Taylor's machine, which was completely demolished, is said to have gone through the guard rail near Accotink, after striking the truck. First aid reatment was given Taylor at the Fort Humphreys post infirmary, after which he was taken to the Alexandria Hospital.

Taylor was an electrician employed in Washington, and was on his way to his Richmond home at the time of the accident. It is understood he attempted to pass the truck when one wheel of his car was caught in that of the truck, throwing the lighter vehicle off the road.

The police are investigating a fire of mysterious origin, believed to have been incendiary, which early yesterday morning partially destroyed the house owned and occupied by Mary Easter, colored, at 1023 Madison street. No. 5 engine company responded to the alarm and succeeded in saving the house from complete destruction.

After the blaze had been extinguished, the owner, accompanied by five other Negroes, appeared on the scene in an automobile, according to the police, and all six were questioned, being taken to headquarters for investigation, although no charge was lodged against them. No one was at home at the time of the fire. The loss is estimated at $1,300, of which $1,000 was on the dwelling and $300 on the contents. According to Fire Chief Duncan, an insurance policy of $1,000 was carried on the house.

Dr. Robert South Barrett, of this city, who recently returned from a four months' trip to Europe, was the speaker for the Navy Day program of the Kiwanis Club yesterday, and was introduced by George E. Warfield, program chairman. Robert G. Carter presided at the luncheon meeting.

The local board of United States Civil Service examiners has announced that the messengers' examination for both boys and girls will be held in the Jefferson School Building tomorrow.

Alexandria police have recovered seven of nine automobiles reported stolen during the past week and restored them to the owners. In almost every case the cars were taken by "joyriders," and abandoned, the majority having been stolen in Washington.

Police Capt. W. W. Campbell has returned from Roanoke, Va., where he attended the annual meeting of the Virginia State Police Executives Association, and was elected vice president of the State body.

Nichols Becomes Railway Treasurer

Petersburg Man Wins Post After Long Service With Coast Line.

Special to The Washington Post

Petersburg, Va., Oct. 23.—Pomeroy Nichols, of this city, has been made treasurer of the Atlantic Coast Line Railway System to fill a vacancy, it was announced today. Mr. Nichols is a son of Capt. J. Andy Nichols, of Petersburg.

Mr. Nichols has been employed by the railway system in various capacities since leaving high school here. He was first appointed as agent about fifteen years ago at Live Oak, S. C., and later was transferred to Charleston, S. C., where he served in the same capacity. After being there for some time he was again transferred to Thomasville and then later went to Port Tampa, Fla., as general agent and was promoted several times to superintendent.

Mr. Nichols is married and has two sons. He will make his headquarters in Wilmington, N. C.

DISTRICT TEACHERS WILL GATHER TODAY

Educators of Alexandria and Seven Counties Are to Hold Session.

WARRENTON TO BE HOST

The annual conference of the District H Teachers Association will open this morning at 11 o'clock in the moving picture auditorium at Warrenton, Va. District H of the Virginia Education Association includes teachers of the schools in Alexandria City, Arlington, Culpeper, Fairfax, Fauquier, Loudoun, Prince William and Rappahannock Counties. O. L. Emerick, of Purcellville, Va., superintendent of Loudoun County schools, is chairman, and Miss Beatrix Clark, of Manassas, is secretary of the district.

The committee in charge of the program at the annual conference, which continues through tomorrow, includes Supt. R. C. Bowton, of Fauquier County, chairman; Mrs. Elsie B. Ellis, Miss Elizabeth Ellemore, Miss Sarah Dinwiddie, W. H. Thomas, J. F. Harrison, Miss Lucy N. L. Watkins and Miss Beatrix Clark.

The time and place of the 1931 meeting will be decided by a committee composed of Miss Lula Metz, of Manassas, chairman; A. S. Jenkins, of Leesburg, and Miss Nancy Gregory Edwards, of Falls Church. The resolutions introduced during the conference will be passed upon and reported to the floor by a committee composed of Henry P. White, Miss Elizabeth Vaughn and Miss Eddie Dickert.

Address of Welcome.

The session this morning will open with an invocation by the Rev. D. M. Brown. The address of welcome will be made by R. A. McIntyre, a member of the Virginia House of Delegates, with response by A. E. Bowers, principal of the Washington High School, in Rappahannock County. Musical selections will be rendered by Mrs. Andrew Perrow, Robert W. House, president of the Virginia Education Association, will then address the teachers. The remainder of the morning session will be devoted to business.

The afternoon session from 2 to 4 o'clock will be devoted to the group meetings in the high school classrooms. The high school group will be under the direction of C. H. Strader. Dr. William R. Smithey, of the University of Virginia, will speak on the "Vitalized Commencement Program." Physical health education will be discussed by E. B. Graves, State director of physical education, and A. O. Hutton will use as his subject, "Courtesy."

Grammar Grades Group.

The grammar grades group, Miss Ellie V. Moriss, presiding, will consider physical and health education, courtesy, and drought relief, discussed by J. R. Lintner, Loudoun County agricultural agent. The intermediate grade group, with Miss Lillie Massoletti presiding, will consider courtesy demands in every day life, drought relief and supplementary reading. Miss Lena English will preside at the meeting of the primary grades group where courtesy, drought relief and methods in reading will be discussed. The one and two room schools' group, with Miss Sadie Embrey in charge, will consider schedules, directed study and physical and health education. The leadership in the discussion of the various subjects will be taken by teachers who are specially prepared in the different lines under discussion.

From 4 to 5 o'clock this afternoon the Virginia Council of Administrative Women in Education in District H will meet with Miss Lula Metz, of Manassas, as chairman. The meeting this evening at 8 o'clock in the high school auditorium will be in the nature of an informal reception with special entertainment features provided.

The session tomorrow morning will begin at 9:30 in the high school with a continuation of the group meetings. At 11 o'clock the general session will take place in the high school auditorium with an address by Dr. Cloyd H. Marvin, president of the George Washington University, followed by the regular business.

400-Pound Black Bear Killed.

Petersburg, W. Va., Oct. 23 (Special).—A 400-pound black bear was shot in Grant County near Bismarck Monday by J. A. Tusing after dogs had wearied it in chase and forced it into a tree. The bear was roasted and made into sandwiches and served at an outing at Seneca Caverns.

KIWANIS ASSEMBLY TOLD OF WORK DONE

Virginia Beach Convention Draws 400 Delegates From 48 Clubs.

DISTRICT IS TAKING PART

Special to The Washington Post.

Virginia Beach, Va., Oct. 23.—Reports by two members of the Washington club on activities of the Kiwanis Clubs in the First Division of the Capital District featured today's opening session of the twelfth annual Caital District Kiwanis convention here, with 400 delegates representing 48 clubs in Virginia, Maryland, Delaware and the District of Columbia present.

The convention is being held in the Cavalier Hotel, where three conferences and a general assembly took place today. Jesse H. Binford, district governor, presided at the conference of the district board of trustees, at which reports from the various divisions were made by lieutenant governors. These included Edwin F. Hill, Washington, first division; Arthur G. Wilkinson, Wilmington, sixth division; David Nelson Sutton, West Point, Va., fourth division; the Rev. Francis H. Scott, Roanoke, third division.

Speakers at Assembly.

Two other conferences were the presidents' conference, presided over by M. O. Lawrence, president of the Portsmouth, Va., Club, and the secretaries' conference, presided over by Asa H. Howard, secretary of the Roanoke, Va., Club.

Speakers at the general assembly held tonight included Robert T. Hasler, president of the Norfolk club; Russell Perkinson, former District governor of Petersburg, Va.; John J. Wicker, jr., of Richmond; the Rev. Roland P. Wagner, of Norfolk; Merle E. Towner, president of the Baltimore club and form district governor and the Rev. W. S. Hess, past president of the Hagerstown, Md., club.

A resolution was introduced by Eugene R. Woodson, vice president of the Washington club, urging that the International Kiwanis convention be held in Washington in 1932 in conjunction with the George Washington Bicentennial celebration.

District Gov. Binford, who presided at the night session, named Edwin F. Hill, of Washington, chairman of the elections committee; James S. Easley, of South Boston, Va., chairman of the credentials committee and G. Frank Young, of Baltimore, chairman of the resolutions committee.

First Division's Activities.

Harry G. Kimball, of the Washington Club, tomorrow will present a report on the activities of that organization. Edwin F. Hill, of ashington, lieutenant governor of the first division, today reported on the activities of the various clubs under his supervision. This report showed a babies' clinic established at Alexandria, use of a nurse for indigent families by th eCumberland club, prizes offered by the Frederick Club for dairy improvements, organization of a boys' band by the Fredericksburg club, building of a Boy Scout hut by the Hagerstown unit, welfare work done by the Manassas Club and crippled children's relief by the ashington Club.

Fred East, illiam F. Raymond and Robert S. Thomas, of the ashington Club, provided part of the entertainment at tonight's meeting, which was followed by a dance.

20,000 THRONG SEES FREDERICK EXHIBITS

ZIHLMAN AMONG GUESTS

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., Oct. 23.—Favorable weather and an unusual array of exhibits attracted 20,000 persons to the fair today. It was the big day and business was virtually suspended in the city. Thousands of farmers in Frederick, Montgomery and adjoining counties laid aside their work and rubbed elbows with their fellow agriculturists from all over the State. A large number of persons from Washington and Baltimore were again on the grounds.

For the first time in a number of years the live stock exhibit paraded over the race course in front of the grand stand. The cavalcade took some minutes to pass and attracted a great deal of attention. The splendid specimens of home dairy cows, Holsteins, Jerseys and Guernseys showed to advantage among the purebred stock of exhibitors.

Demonstrations by the Federation of Rural Women's Clubs in the household building attracted much attention today. The demonstrations were by Mrs. Charles Remberg and Mrs. Floyd Main, Middletown; Mrs. Willis Derr and Mrs. Harry Howard, Ballenger; Mrs. Oran Lease and Mrs. S. R. Kresge, Lewistown; Miss Hilda Etzler and Mrs. Jacob Shawbreaker, New Market; Miss Cornelia Hickman and Mrs. E. L. Blessing, Point of Rocks; Mrs. M. P. Winebrenner and Mrs. J. E Fife, Woodsboro; Mrs Luther Bussard and Mrs. Luther Remsberg, Jefferson, and Misses Ruth Shaeffer and Helen Witter, Braddock, and included vegetable cookery, biscuit, icings, salads, cake and school lunches. The final demonstrations will be given tomorrow, the closing day.

The Republican State candidates and Representative Frederick N. Zihlman, candidate for Congress to succeed himself, were guests of the fair officials today. Other guests included officials of a number of State and county fairs.

Food Preservation Counts

It is possible to secure better quality in every commodity today. One has only to consider modern refrigeration to appreciate the significance of better storage in improving the quality of food products. Refrigeration and the use of special containers has also made it possible to secure a greater variation in diet by transporting perishable foods over great distances. As a result the American people are accustomed to use a greater variety of products than ever before, but they are inclined to include the cost of these items—formerly considered luxuries—in their budget of necessities . . . Consider this point and you will discover that the NECESSITIES of life are really much cheaper today than they have been in years.

COLLEGE PRESIDENT 54 YEARS IN OFFICE

BISHOP MOORE SPEAKER

Ashland, Va., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Randolph-Macon College today began a two-day program of celebration which will observe the institution's centennial and honor Dr. R. E. Blackwell for 54 years' service as its president.

More than a thousand churchmen and alumni gathered at the college today for the first exercises, held on the lawn in front of the Walter Hines Page Library, and heard Bishop John W. Moore, of the Southern Methodist Church, pay a tribute to Randolph-Macon's intellectual and spiritual contributions to education. Bishop Moore's subject was "The Church and Its Search for Truth."

Dr. W. P. Few, president of Duke University, also spoke, with the Rev. Bernard Farrar Lipscomb, president of the college board of trustees, presiding. Dr. Few explained the important part of the church college in education. An address by Bishop W. B. Beauchamp, of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, had been scheduled, but Bishop Beauchamp was prevented by illness from attending.

A banquet in honor of Dr. Blackwell, president of the college, completing his fifty-fourth year as head of the institution, was tonight's feature of the centennial program. Some 400 visitors and alumni attended the banquet in Richmond. The principal speakers for the occasion were Dean Gordon J. Laing, of the University of Chicago, and Dr. Henry Nelson Snyder, president of Wofford College.

Charles Henry Shell Dies at Petersburg

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., Oct. 23.—Charles Henry Shell, 80 years old, died yesterday afternoon at his home here. He was a native of Chesterfield County, but had passed nearly all of his life in Petersburg. He was a son of the late Frank and Marian Bennett Shell. For 51 years Mr. Shell was an engineer for the Norfolk & Western Railroad.

He was one of the oldest members of Blandford Lodge No. 3, A. F. and A. M., of this city, also a member of other Masonic bodies. Mr. Shell is survived by one daughter, Mrs. R. P. Rowland, of this city; one son, Charles F. Shell, of Nottaway County; a brother, R. B. Shell, of Crewe, and a grandson, Oswald Shell, of Charleston, W. Va.

Berkeley County Opens Drought Relief Survey

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Oct. 23.—A drought relief committee, set up under State proclamation, has been arranged for this county, and is now making a survey of probable needs. The committee made it plain with formal announcement today that there were no funds to be distributed at present and that applications now would be futile.

The committee is composed of J. F. Baldwin, chairman of the Red Cross county organization; C. E. Dick, president of the Berkeley County Court; J. Frank VanMetre, president of the Berkeley County Farm Bureau; Public Health Officer Edwin Cameron, County Agent W. M. McClung, Home Demonstration Agent Mrs. Evelyn Holden. In addition, there are representatives from each district of the county.

Danville Tobacco Man Killed in Auto Crash

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Oct. 23.—Horton Smith, aged 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. B. Smith, of Danville, was instantly killed last night when a car in which he was driving with Edgar W. Boatwright, also of Danville, turned over on a sharp curve near Roxboro, N. C. Smith's neck was broken. Boatwright, a brother of H. Lee Boatwright, whose marriage to Miss Suzanne Pollard is soon to take place, was conveyed to a hospital and found to be slightly injured.

Smith was driving the open car when the accident happened. The victim, who was engaged on the tobacco market here, was unmarried. He leaves his parents, four brothers and four sisters. He will be buried tomorrow.

Section Foreman Dies Of Injuries by Engine

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 23.—J. M. Gibson, of Crozet, this county, section foreman for the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Co., died last evening from injuries received when struck by a locomotive at the east end of the Blue Ridge tunnel Monday afternoon.

Employes of the railway said that thought the train was supposed to have been flagged as it entered the west end of the tunnel.

TWO DIE, ONE HURT AS TUNNEL CAVES IN

MISHAP OCCURS IN OHIO

Steubenville, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Two men lost their lives and a third was injured seriously in the cave-in of a railroad tunnel that buried a Wheeling & Lake Erie freight train near Adena, 25 miles southwest of here, today.

The dead are E. E. Duga, 55, of Dillonvale, and Jerry L. Sells, 40, a conductor. The injured trainman was Al Romando, 35, who suffered a crushed hip and a broken arm and leg.

Rescuers dug several hours in the debris before the men were removed. Sells' body, buried by dirt and stone, was the first recovered. Romando was saved by supporting timbers that separated him from the crumbling tunnel roof. Duga and Sells, caught under the heaviest part of the cave-in, apparently were killed instantly.

The victims were trapped in the train's caboose, which was demolished when it was caught with six freight cars about 300 feet from the east end of the tunnel. The cars were pulled from the tunnel by a locomotive. From his position in the wreckage, Romando talked with the rescuers, telling them he was fastened between huge boulders. The rescuers were unable to reach the caboose from the east end of the tunnel and went to the west end. After four hours of digging they reached the body of Sells. Romando then was rescued, but no trace of Duga's body was found until late this afternoon.

The tunnel is about 800 feet long and 200 feet high. The portion that caved in was 300 feet in length.

Officials started an investigation to determine the cause of the accident. One theory was that the caboose jumped the rails and struck supports in the tunnel or hit loose timbers overhead.

DIAMOND DESCRIBES SHOOTING TO CRAIN

MOTIVE BAFFLES HIM

New York, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—In a cheerful, communicative mood, Jack ("Legs") Diamond related from his hospital bed today what he said was the true story of how he was mowed down by bullets of rival gangsters who invaded his hotel room on the morning of October 12.

He gave a detailed account of the attack to District Attorney Crain, who visited him in Metropolitan Hospital, on Welfare Island, and reiterated his denial that he knew the identity of his assailants.

"I tell you honestly," he asserted, "that if I knew who shot me I would tell you. I never saw the men before. There was no reason for anybody to shoot me or even to beat me up."

Diamond said that the men came into his room at the Hotel Monticello some time after he had conferred with two other men whose identity he promised to reveal "at the proper time." The district attorney explained that Diamond said that the men had police records and that he didn't want them locked up as material witnesses.

"He told me that he went with these men to room 829, where they talked for about half an hour," Crain said. "They did not lock the door after them, nor did Diamond lock it after they had departed. After they had left, Diamond said, he went to sleep.

"He believes that he slept for about half an hour, when he was awakened by a noise in the hallway. He said that he saw three or possibly four men near the doorway and that they opened fire on him without saying a word. The first shot struck him in the forehead and stunned him. He said that he rolled from the bed and a second bullet struck him in the left side, under the arm.

"Then he seized a pillow and threw it as he received a wound in his right side, but he denied that he was kicked or beaten after the shooting. He said there was no struggle with them; that they left the hotel, making their escape by means unknown to him. He said that he believed that about ten shots were fired at him."

But the gangster could not describe his assailants nor could he suggest any motive for the attack.

Diamond was served with a subpena, returnable November 17, when the district attorney will begin a John Doe inquiry before a grand jury to investigate the shooting and also the alleged criminal activities of Diamond and his associates. Crain said that he was informed that Diamond would be in the hospital for ten days longer.

Autoist on Trial In Death of Three

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Oct. 23.—The greater part of the session of the circuit court today was taken up in securing a jury for the trial of John Kidner, automobile salesman, Keyser, W. Va., indicted for manslaughter in connection with the death of Mrs. Fay Walker and children, Barbara Walker and Martin Sherman Walker, of Dawson, this county, who were struck by an automobile driven by Kidner on the McMullen highway, near Dawson, June 3 last.

Seven members of the Walker family were returning from a call on a neighbor after night. Thirty-five talesmen were summoned before a jury could be secured.

The State charges that Kidner was careless in operating the machine, was speeding and not using due care. Kidner's defense is that the accident was unavoidable in that he was about to pass a car when another car approached him on the wrong side of the road. He was pocketed, and in attempting to turn out to avoid a collision he struck the pedestrians. He says he was blinded by the lights of the oncoming machine and did not see the Walker family. Testimony will be heard tomorrow.

GEM ROBBER SLAIN BY STREET GUNFIRE

NEW YORK LOOT $125,000

Philadelphia, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Two men attempted to hold up a jewelry salesman in the heart of the shopping district today and in a running pistol fire one of them was killed.

Fifteen to 20 shots were fired, scattering a crowd that had filled the streets in the noon hour.

The salesman was Walter Hayman, who was about to enter the jewelry store of J. E. Caldwell & Co., Juniper and Chestnut streets. Two men backed him against the wall of the building. Hayman shouted and attracted the attention of Joseph McCabe, jewelry store guard, who attacked the men with his fists.

The holdup men broke away and ran into the arcade of the Widener Building in which the jewelry store is situated. Policemen joined the chase and the fleeing men fired at their pursuers as they ran. Policemen opened fire and the two men fell. They were removed to a hospital where one died.

The dead man was not identified. A bystander received a slight wound in the knee from one of the bullets.

Robbed of $125,000.

New York, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Daring thieves who invaded the downtown "diamond market" today snatched platinum and unset diamonds valued at $125,000 from the safe of the jewelry firm of Segman and Abrahams at 102 Fulton street, just as William Segman opened the vaults for the day.

Segman told police he was alone in his office and after removing one tray of diamonds from the safe, turned to reach for another when he felt the muzzle of a revolver against his neck.

His captor led him, without a word, to an adjoining room and there bound him to a radiator. Segman heard no disturbance in his office, but several minutes later when he freed himself he burst into the office and found the gems gone.

His office staff had not yet reported for work and Segman said he did not even know how many robbers there were.

Fulton street used to be the police "deadline" south of which known criminals were arrested at sight. Some years ago the line was moved north to Fourteenth street.

Office on Sixth Floor.

The Segman offices are on the top floor of a seven-story office building principally occupied by wholesale jewelers.

Police said Segman told them the robbers had blindfolded him with adhesive tape and he had ripped it off after freeing himself from his bonds. Examination of the tape, police said, showed that no hairs from Segman's eyebrows were attached to it.

The loot consisted of rings, bracelets and brooches, including $5,000 worth held on memorandum. The police said the robbers had left $15,000 worth of jewelry behind. The jewelry was insured for $100,000.

Motorist Held Pending Inquest in Boy's Death

William J. Knott, 26 years old, of Arlington, Va., is being held at the Fourth Precinct station pending a coroner's inquest into the death yesterday of William Palmer, 11-year-old colored boy, who was struck by an automobile said to have been driven by Knott yesterday afternoon.

The accident occurred at the intersection of First and N streets southwest. The boy died while he was being taken to Providence Hospital by a passing motorist.

Virginia U. Selects Rhodes Candidates

Four Entered in Competition for Scholarships in England.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 23.—The University of Virginia has selected four students as candidates in the annual Rhodes scholarships competition. They are Arthur Louis Cooke, of the American consulate, Plymouth, England; Smith Thompson, of Norfolk, Va.; Sam Rice Baker, of Montgomery, Ala., and Henry F. Worver, of Pittsburgh, Pa.

The selection was made at a meeting of the university committee on Rhodes scholarships, of which Dr. Robert K. Gooch, a former Rhodes scholar, is chairman.

The stipend of a Rhodes scholarship is fixed at $2,000 a year. Beginning this year, Rhodes scholars may be allowed either to postpone their third year, returning to Oxford for it after a period of work in their own countries, or may spend the third year in post-graduate work at any university of Great Britain, and in special cases at any university on the continent of Europe, the overseas dominions, or in the United States, other than the country of their origin, on conditions approved by their own college and by the Rhodes trustees.

JURY TRIAL DEFENSE MADE IN HIGH COURT

ATTORNEYS IN CLASH

and that persons who owned the allegedly recklessly driven horses and vehicles could be sentenced to pay a fine of 20 shillings, with the same jail sentence. This statute, which went into detail about the severity of various ramifications of the offense, according to attorneys, is the nearest thing in common law to the present offense of reckless driving.

At this point, Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes made the comment that some offenses today appear inconsequential but under common law a defendant would have been drawn and quartered.

Mr. O'Connell, who argued the case for Colts, explained to the court that the theory on which they had gone to the Court of Appeals was that under the Constitution every defendant in a criminal case was guaranteed a trial by jury. Mr. Lynch differed with this view and defended the right of Congress to enact a statute whereby persons who were charged with offenses involving fines of $300 with the option of 90-day jail sentences could be denied jury trials.

Constitution Is Cited.

Defense Attorney O'Connell, however, argued that no one accused of a criminal offense could be denied a jury trial and cited the third, fourth and seventh amendments to the Constitution.

Shortly afterwards Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes inquired of Mr. Lynch what he considered a petty offense or if there was any definition of such an offense. Mr. Lynch argued that the Supreme Court, in the Schick case, had defined such a situation. He pointed out that in the Schick case the court had ruled that an offense involving less than a $50 fine was a petty case.

Mr. O'Connell, following Mr. Lynch, declared that under the seventh amendment to the Constitution, the framers of that document had decreed that a civil action involving more than $20 was to be tried by a jury. But they made no such differentiation in connection with petty and major criminal offenses, he declared.

Powers of Discrimination.

"It was an historical fact that prior to the framing of the Constitution some of the Colonies were reluctant to join a Federal Government," Mr. O'Connell declared. "That they were more or less suspicious of this Federal Government that was about to be formed was evident and is preserved in the records of that day. This was because they feared that the rights of the Colonies would be usurped. It was because of this feeling that the men who framed the Constitution were so careful to put on the Government the limitations which are found in the Constitution."

Mr. Lynch pointed out that the states have the powers to discriminate between petty and serious offenses and made reference to the powers of State legislatures. Mr O'Connell countered this statement with one in which he declared that if Congress has the right to decide what is a petty offense that it can fix a petty offense at more than the 90 days now held in the District and can carry it up to an indeterminate number of years. He also stressed that if Congress has that power it can declare that murder and any of the major felonies can be punished by fines of less than $10.

Mr. Lynch in arguing his case stressed the fact that it would be of great benefit to the Government if the Court held that a petty offense without jury trial could be punished by a stiff sentence up to $300 with the alternative of 90 days in jail. This, he declared, would aid in the enforcement of the prohibition law.

Route 10 Under Improvement.

Lynchburg, Va., Oct. 23 (Special).—The State highway department has started work on a 3-mile stretch for the new route for Route 10 as it enters Lynchburg from the west. The new stretch will eliminate several bad grades and curves. A camp is being pitched for workmen.

Couple Observes Golden Wedding

Special to The Washington Post.

Purcellville, Va., Oct. 23.—Dr. and Mrs. Adrian Baldwin celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary at their home in North Fork recently when 150 of their friends gave them a surprise party. Dressed in their wedding clothes of 50 years ago, they greeted their guests from Washington, Leesburg, Purcellville, Round Hill, Hamilton and other nearby points.

The Rev. Fletcher Ford, Baptist minister from North Fork, presided at the gathering. Miss Mary Elizabeth Hughes read an original poem and old-fashioned songs were sung. The couple received many gifts of gold.

Dr. Baldwin is a retired physician and Mrs. Baldwin prior to her marriage was Miss Lizzie Janney.

Man Held on Bail In "Bead Racket"

Said to Have Offered $5 to Stringers, Who Paid $5 Deposit.

Baltimore, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Said by Federal authorities to be a petty racketeer who has been using the mails to defraud Middle Western residents with a bogus homemade jewelry scheme, Edward Fienstein, alias Edward Lewis, was ordered held by United States Commissioner Supplee today in $1,500 bail. Fienstein said his home is New York City. The arrest was made when a woman sent a complaint from Mississippi.

Officers said Fienstein published advertisements in newspapers throughout the West stating he would pay $5 for any one who would string beads for him and he would provide the beads and string. A $5 deposit was required to serve as "a guarantee against loss."

A search of Fienstein's office, officers said, revealed more than 100 letters, many with the $5 deposits, and a bank book revealed large deposits by Fienstein in a bank here.

$10,000,000 WANTED FOR DRY EDUCATION

Prohibition Foundation Will Sponsor Nation-Wide Teaching Program.

AIMED AT YOUNG VOTERS

Chicago, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—A Nation-wide program of education in behalf of prohibition was announced today by the American Business Men's Prohibition Foundation. Charles R. Jones, chairman, said a budget of $10,000,000 would be raised for newspaper and other advertising.

"More than 100 years of tireless education preceded the adoption of the eighteenth amendment," Mr. Jones said, "but with the ratification of the amendment by 46 of the 48 States practically all educational effort ceased.

"People forget quickly; they must be told over and over again. Moreover, during these past ten years following the advent of prohibition something like twelve or thirteen million young voters have come of age who were children when the amendment was enacted. This younger generation has been given very little serious instruction in the meaning and possibilities of the eighteenth emendment."

Mr. Jones said the foundation was formed under a "not for profit" charter last January as a result of the growing realization of the need for education on prohibition. He said the organization first assembled statistics on the effects of prohibition and that it now was ready to pass the facts on to the people. He added that the plans had been approved by Amos W. W. Woodcock, director of the United States Bureau of Prohibition.

The foundation lists as members of its advisory board nationally known men from all sections of the country, including James C. Penney, chain store executive; S. S. McClure, magazine publisher; Louis J. Taber, master of the National Grange; Dr. William Love Bryan, president of Indiana University; Dr. Charles C. Selecman, president of Southern Methodist University; Dr. John Timothy Stone, president of McCormick Seminary, and Amos Alonzo Stagg, director of athletics, University of Chicago.

Two Fined for Selling Mexican Rebels Planes

Amarillo, Tex., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Harold English, manager of the Amarillo Airport, and Otis L. Williams, oil man and aviation enthusiast, were fined $1,000 each in Federal court today for violation of the neutrality laws.

They were charged with transporting planes to rebels during the revolution in Mexico more than a year ago. Imposition of prison sentences of three years was deferred pending good behavior. The men pleaded guilty and said they thought they had as much right to sell planes in Mexico as in Texas.

Cherbourg, France, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—France's newest submarine, the Promethee, a long-distance cruiser of 1,500 tons, was launched today. The undersea ship is 295 feet long. Its surface speed is 18 knots, submerged 10.

MAN IN GREEN HAT BARES RUM DEALS

know that liquor has been ordered, delivered, and consumed right under the shadow of the Capitol dome ever since prohibition went into effect. In telling of my experience during this period I am going to state the facts just as I saw them.

During these ten years I met hundreds of senators and representatives. It was the usual thing for a senator or representative to order a case and split it up among his colleagues. I believe that a majority of both Houses depended upon me at one time or another for supplies at their offices.

No one man, in my opinion could begin to supply all the liquor consumed by members of the House and Senate and their staffs, both at their offices on Capitol Hill and in their homes in Washington. I do not claim to have done so, but I will say that I have been a regular caller at more offices on Capitol Hill than any other person I met while working there.

I believe I saw a side of prohibition no one else has seen during this same period. It was certainly a revelation to me. Besides dealing directly with a large number of the members of the Senate and House, as I shall relate, I had unusual opportunities to observe others.

As the result of my experience on Capitol Hill since prohibition went into effect I would say that four out of five senators and congressmen consume liquor either at their offices or their homes. This is a conservative estimate. I have heard members of both Houses put the figure considerably higher.

I got into the business on Capitol Hill by accident. Before the war I worked steadily for the Union News Co., the Adams Express Co. and as a brakeman and flagman for the Pennsylvania Railroad. My mother was a member of the W. C. T. U. and as a boy I attended Methodist Sunday school. There were twelve children in the family. My father was a steel puddler, working his trade at Wheeling, W. Va., where I was born April 22, 1894, and in Alabama. My father did not take a drink for 32 years before his death and having had this example of sobriety held up to me as a youngster I have never been a regular drinker.

Served in World War.

When national prohibition was adopted I was not in this country. I believe my attitude toward prohibition was no different than that of most of the American boys who went overseas. We saw liquor being used in all the allied countries and when we were at the front, detailed with French troops, I received rations of cognac along with the other men. This was with the 321st Light Tanks, an outfit that was cited by Gen. Pershing and Gen. Petain and decorated by President Poincare and President Wilson. In 1919 I came back on a transport carrying 2,200 American troops. We took a straw vote on prohibition just before the ship docked in New York. All but 98 of the men aboard voted against it.

Washington D.C.
October 7th 1930

I am submitting herewith some of the "high spots" of my experiences at Washington.

This is the story of ten years on Capitol Hill from 1920 to 1930,—accurate and correct in every details.

George L. Kibbey

My experiences were no harder than those of many other ex-service men in trying to make the adjustment to civilian life. I tried but failed to pass the physical examination for my old railroad job. I got married, but conditions were not so good right after the war, and I could not find steady work.

A friend of mine told me that liquor was bringing better prices on Capitol Hill than anywhere else in Washington and that a living could be made supplying the demand. I thought he was joking. A few days later, in the summer of 1920, I met this friend in the lobby of the old Hotel Varnum in Washington. He introduced me to two representatives from a Southern State. They asked if I could supply them. After making arrangements to get the stuff, I made my first deliveries on Capitol Hill to these two members. These were the first members of Congress I had ever met. I did not know it at that time, but learned later that both of them had voted for the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act.

That was my start in the business on Capitol Hill. As a boy, I had visited Washington and sat up in the House and Senate galleries and listened to speeches, and had seen the sights about the Capitol which I little knew then were to become so familiar to me.

I soon got over any feeing that these men in Congress, just because they were supposed to be big statesmen, are any different from other people. Some of them I found were mighty good fellows, and others not so good, but I learned right off the bat that when it comes to eating, drinking and having a good time in general, they are as human as other folks. For ten years I was to see these men every day Congress was in session, both at work and at play, and so I believe I observed them from a little different viewpoint than, say, the average constituent gets to know his senator or representative.

After meeting the two representatives who helped me get started on Capitol Hill I saw that there was a demand for my services that would keep me busy for some time and I began to work out the problems of the business just like any other young fellow who was following a new line and was ambitious to succeed with his work.

The system I used in getting established on Capitol Hill was comparatively simple. The first two representatives I met introduced me to friends of theirs in the House and vouched for the good quality of the deliveries made to them. I did business only after introduction to a prospective customer—usually at his office. I found members of the House were usually eager to give these introductions. They seemed to feel they were doing their colleague a favor and often when a new member came to Congress it would be a natural thing for him to rely upon one of his older colleagues in the House to help him get onto the ropes at Washington.

I remember one good customer of mine who was very active in introducing me around. He would sometimes call me up on the telephone and tell me to drop down to the House Office Building. When I came into his office he would say: "George, I want you to meet a good friend of mine who would like to have you call on him occasionally."

If I wasn't already serving this representative my friend would call him on the telephone and ask him to come to his office. My friend would introduce me to this representative and tell him: "Cassiday is O. K. He has been serving me for a long time and is a good man to be in touch with when you have some constituents in town."

The new customer would then ask me what I was handling and would usually set a time for the first order to be filled. In most cases the order would be: "Just bring a couple of quarts of the same stuff you have been handling here and I will try it out."

It was not long before I had the run of the Senate and House Office Buildings and was spending more time there than most of the representatives.

At first, the business grew along State lines. I found that the average representative was better acquainted with colleagues from his own State than with the members of the House at large. At one time I had a solid delegation from one State on my list, including a dozen members. This business all came to me through introductions from one member to another. I used the same method with little variation during the entire ten years.

I was not long learning there were advantages in confining my activities to Capitol Hill. I came into contact with the best people and enjoyed the association with many of them.

Some of my patrons regarded themselves as judges of good liquor, demanding only the highest quality and willing to pay well for it. It was my observation, however, that few of them could really tell good liquor from bad, and most of them liked to haggle over the price. Only a few seemed to feel that they were entitled to special consideration because of their official position.

There was one serious drawback which I encountered early in trying to build up an exclusive congressional trade. When Congress recessed and the members returned home, the bottom fell out of the market in Washington. During a recess of Congress I had very little to do, and I was forced to eat up the surplus accumulated while Congress was at work.

The problem of keeping a steady and reliable source of supply while Congress was in session was the first I had to solve in getting established. Shortly after prohibition came in, members of Congress were drinking corn liquor. Northern members had little or no acquaintance with moonshine, but Southern representatives had been brought up on it and they would do missionary work with their colleagues. Supplies came in from Virginia, Maryland, and other nearby States, where it has always been made and still is in the country districts.

The moonshine fad soon wore off on Capitol Hill, and the demand was for rye, Scotch, Bourbon, and all sorts of imported and bonded liquors. I recall one member in particular who was perhaps the largest consumer of liquor of any variety that I ever met in or out of Congress. If his case had not been an exception, the problem of supplying the changing tastes of members of Congress would have been easier. This representative was one of the party leaders in the House and one of the ablest debaters in either branch of Congress. He was a "bottle-a-day" man. I have seen him many times take a regular-sized water glass, full to the brim, and drink it to the last drop. When other representatives with whom I dealt saw him coming down the corridor, they would say, "Here comes ———. Get out the corn and put up the rye."

Commencing in 1921, I found a method of supplying the trade on Capitol Hill which proved successful during the next four or five years. I was introduced to this source of supply by a former Department of Justice agent. He took me to a place on Seventh avenue near Thirty-fourth street in New York City which handled all grades of liquor. It was possible to load the supplies into large suit cases and carry them under the Seventh avenue subway, right into the concourse of the Pennsylvania station. Watchers were stationed along the route and protection was guaranteed to the train. One man could carry 30 to 40 quarts in two large suit cases. By making numerous trips I was able to keep up with the demand on Capitol Hill. During those days the Washington trains would frequently be loaded from one end to the other.

Later the supply base was changed from New York to Newark, then to Baltimore, and finally to Philadelphia. In those days most of this was bonded liquor withdrawn from warehouses. When the train reached Washington after one of these trips the suit cases were handed to a redcap, carried to a taxicab and delivered where desired.

Actual distribution to customers on Capitol Hill was the big end of the business. In order to operate successfully, I had to tackle that problem from the start.

Tomorrow "The Man in the Green Hat" will tell in detail how large quantities of liquor were stored and cut in the House Office Building itself for the congressional trade.

5,000 WILL ATTEND VETERANS' REUNION

First Division Society Opens Twelfth Annual aGthering in Capital Today.

GEN. SUMMERALL GUEST

A visit to Arlington National Cemetery, where Gen. Charles P. Summerall, chief of staff, will place a wreath on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, will mark the opening of the twelfth annual reunion of the First Division Society, A. E. F., here today.

More than 2,000 former enlisted men and officers of the First Division were in Washington for the reunion last night, and it was predicted at registration headquarters at the Willard Hotel that 5,000 would be on hand before the event concludes tomorrow evening.

Gen. Summerall, who is president of the society, will be guest of honor at a banquet at the Willard tomorrow night to mark his retirement from active service. His resignation will become effective on November 18, when he will be succeeded as chief of staff by Maj. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who is en route to the Capital from Manila.

Three Salvos Are Fired.

The opening gun of the reunion yesterday was fired in the form of three salvos of artillery, fired at Ft. Myer, Va., at 6:05 o'clock yesterday morning, the exact time at which the first American shot in the World War was fired by Battery C, Sixth Field Artillery, a First Division unit.

The trip to Arlington National Cemetery will start at 10:15 o'clock this morning when the veterans will leave by buses and private cars from the F street entrance of the Willard. Wounded veterans will be carried in automobiles to the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, but others making the pilgrimage will meet Gen. Summerall at the Arlington gate and march to the tomb.

After this ceremony the party will go to Ft. Myers where luncheon will be served. The luncheon will be followed by a military exhibition in the riding hall at the fort. Gen. Summerall will review the troops at Ft. Myer.

All the wartime colors of the First Division have been collected from various parts of the country and brought to Washington, where they will be massed at an impressive ceremony to be held at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the First Division Monument.

Army Band to Play.

The monument ceremony will begin with selections by the Army Band, followed by an invocation by Dr. Murray Bartlett, of Hobart College, N. Y. Former Chief Justice Walter I. McCoy will introduce Gen. Summerall, who will make a brief address. After a benediction by Col. Thomas J. Dickson, chaplain of the First Division, the ceremony will conclude with more music.

Gen. Summerall and Maj. Gen. Campbell King, former chief of staff of the division, will be the only speakers at the banquet, which will be preceded by election of officers of the society for the coming year.

A feature of the banquet will be the official program, which will be decorated with sketches drawn by Capt. A. B. Butler, noted cartoonist of Tulsa, Okla., and a First Division veteran, depicting various incidents in Gen. Summerall's life.

Notable among veterans at the reunion is Col. Fred Feigel, of New York, whose son, Lieut. Jefferson Feigel, was the first American field artilleryman killed in the war.

Another is Gen. Frank Parker, commander of the Sixth Corps Area, who is flying to Washington from Chicago.

A trip to Mount Vernon which had been scheduled has been canceled because the water in the Potomac River is so low that the boat would not be able to land the veterans.

GERMAN AIR GIANT WHICH WILL VISIT U. S.

The huge Dornier plane, Do-X, will begin its flight across the Atlantic from Friedrichshafen, Germany, to New York in November. Capt. in this country today, he said, is that Government officials are thinking in terms of pennies instead of dollars.

Now, he said, is the time for the Federal Government to undertake vast building projects. It would not hesitate to spend money if a war were on, he said, and it should not hesitate now, because the United States is in he midst of the "greatest economic struggle in its history."

Advocates Fund of Billion.

He advocated the spending of a billion dollars this year in flood relief work on the Mississippi River.

Secretary of Labor Davis, a member of the President's unemployment committee, said that unemployment aid must be handled from two standpoints.

"We have a group of single men and women who are without work and who have reached the end of their resources and must be helped," he said. "But more important than this group are the family groups in which there are little children. The help must come for these families promptly and adequately so that no child shall be taken away from its parents because of the present industrial emergency."

Matter for Congress.

Chairman Alexander Legge, of the Federal Farm Board, made it clear late yesterday that he was not advocating the distribution of wheat as food for the unemployed. Of course, he said, if Congress wanted to appropriate money and purchase the wheat for that purpose, the Grain Stabilization Corporation would be glad to sell the wheat. But that, he added, is a matter for the consideration of Congress, not the Federal Farm Board.

The District of Columbia Department, Disabled Veterans of the World War yesterday forwarded to President Hoover a resolution asking that all married women in Government employ, whose husbands are also Federal workers and receive more than $3,600 per year, be dismissed and their places filled by veterans. The resolution declared that an "acute emergency" in unemployment exists.

ROBBERS TAKE SAFE BODILY FROM HOUSE

Unable to Open Strong Box, They Load It on Truck and Drive Away.

JEWELRY ALSO STOLEN

Unable to open the safe of Charles N Fraser, typewriter dealer, at Forest Glen, Md., last night, robbers loaded the 500-pound strong box on a truck and took it along, it was reported to Montgomery County Police of the Silver Spring substation.

The robbers entered the residence of Mr. Fraser by breaking the pane out of a front window and slipping the catch on the window. They ransacked the house and took clothing and jewelry valued at approximately $75.

They then apparently attempted to open the safe by removing the hinge bolts. The bolts came out but the safe door wouldn't open, police surmise. The marks of heavy solid tires on the ground outside indicated that the robbers tired of working on the safe at the house and took it along on a truck so they could work on it at their leisure.

The Frasers were not at home when the robbery took place. The safe contained shares of Underwood Typewriter stock, deeds and automobile titles as well as other papers, Mr Fraser told the police. Littlye that could be turned into cash the burglars was contained in the safe, although the contents were extremely valuable to the owner.

Montgomery Caunty policeman Joseph Nolte, investigated the robbery and discovered fingerprints which may be valuable clews.

Mr. Fraser is an agen of the Underwood Typewriterd Co., and is well known in the Metropolitan area of Montgomery County, which is part of his territory.

POLITICAL INTRIGUE RIFE

derbilt, quite a political factor, indeed. She is making speeches in her Parisian French to the French Canadians of the State.

Republicans say scornfully that does no good, because it is not the patois of the French Canadians of this State. But they can't get around the fact that Mrs. Gerry at the end of her talks asks if any one wants a copy of the "Congressional Ladies' Cook Book," or whatever it is. She hands out two or three copies, and they cost $3 apiece, and says that if anybody else wants one she can get it by writing her.

Really, Mrs. Gerry should be given a place with Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick as a very politically resourceful woman. Thats' the trouble with us in Washington. Some of our women have been permitted to hog the resourceful limelight.

But getting back to our line of thought. What difference does it make how this States votes? Yet there is more bitterness here among the candidates, more intensity of feeling between the rival parties, more real old-fashioned politics, more workings of what the political hangers-on like to call deep strategy than in most any other State.

One gets the impression that it is something like the international yacht race between the Shamrock III, or whatever it was, and the Enterprise; juts a grand jark for all Newport to see, a great rivalry between two scions of the colony, both bully boys, dontcher know, and with unlimited money to spend.

They call it the Democrats versus the Republicans to be in keeping with the order of things. Why, it's just a jolly competition between the Gerrys and the Metcalfs, and it is a great day for the yacht builders and the sail makers and all the other hangers-on, so to speak. When rich men have their diverting ambitions these fellows are most apt to get in on the dividends.

The Italians and the French say: "Ah, tis ze very fine thing," the Irish say "Begorrah, it is grand," and the Polish speak a language which one can't understand. The little State seems to have about every nationality imaginable.

Maxim Room Silencer Allows Ventilation

Hartford, Conn., Oct. 23 (N.Y. W.N.S.).—Hiram Percy Maxim, inventor of the Maxim gun silencer and other devices for noise elimination, announced today a successful test of his latest invention, a silencer to prevent noise from entering rooms and at the same time permit proper ventilation. The test was made today in the directors' room of the Hartford National Bank & Trust Co.

The silencer, it was said, will be used in the Chrysler Building in New York and at several large hotels. The new device is installed by opening a window to the desired height.

"I regard the perfection of this invention as the culmination of my life's work from a human standpoint," said Mr. Maxim. "I have had many contracts with hospitals and it has been my desire to make life livable for everyone, especially those suffering in hospitals. It is by far my most important invention."

spring, summer and early fall. But now because the breadlines are lengthening at the dawn of winter, because the charity organizations are broadcasting appeals for help, because an impatient public has turned the batteries of its criticism upon the seeming apathy of the administration, the President concedes the crisis as winter comes and begins preliminary plans two weeks before the election!

"God grant that good may come, however late, but what excuse can the administration offer for the precious ten months lost before the winter blasts began to blow?"

Explaining that when a minority party asks the expulsion of the majority from power it should be required to set forth the reasons for the demand, Bowers concluded:

"We ask it because those in power have broken faith with the tillers of the soil and deepened their distress.

"We ask it because of the enactment of a tariff law, at the behest of contributors to a campaign fund, which permits the favored few to pick the pockets of the consumers by a billion dollars a year.

"We ask it because of the stupidity of performance that has turned against us the resentment of mankind.

"We ask it because of a tariff policy that threatens to shut us out from the markets of the world.

"We ask it because of a fiscal policy that makes it impossible for our debtors to pay their debts.

"We ask it because, to serve the exigencies of politics, the administration encouraged the hysterical market speculation and thus made inevitable the panic that laid us low.

"We ask it because of their failure to take immediate and practical steps to meet the human problem of the unemployed.

"We ask it because in the gravest economic crisis in generations they have failed to give us a leadership of courage and vision and have left us drifting helplessly in the fishing streams of the Rapidan.

"Because the Republican administration has collapsed and forfeited the confidence of the Nation; because it has impoverished us at home and discredited us abroad; because of its amazing ineptitude and multitudinous failures, we call upon the people of every political persuasion who have not been served and who have been betrayed to assert their rights and rebuke those in power by the election of a Democratic House and Senate."

only chance is to capitalize the depression, are not only willing to exaggerate the situation as they have been doing from the beginning, but are unable to conceal their actual pleasure over such an issue."

Mr. Fess said "at such a time of world crisis the least that ought to be expected from every citizen is cooperation with the President to mitigate the distress of unemployment."

"The American people," he asserted, "too well understand the political motives of the absurd charge that the President is responsible for world conditions, and will resent the Democratic leaders' assumption of their lack of ordinary intelligence."

The Republican chairman charged that Democratic leaders "omitted no step in Congress to impede the President's legislative program while their campaign strategy outfit, with headquarters in Washington, had worked overtime in an effort, first to embarrass, then to break down the head of the Government."

"If anything more than this type of campaign was necessary to arouse the voter," Mr. Fess added, "the Democratic position on the tariff as announced by ex-Gov. Cox (1920 Democratic presidential nominee) supplied the requirement."

Quoting Mr. Cox as saying recently he thought the Democrats, if they gained control of Congress, would repeal the tariff act "without hearings or other ceremony," Mr. Fess added:

"Let the business man contemplate years of uncertainty involved in fulfillment of that Democratic purpose. Tell the farmer who has 93 per cent of the increase in this law, every item of which was urged by all the farm organizations of the country, that he is to be placed in competition with his foreign competitor, let him compare his protection under Republican legislation with that under Democratic legislation."

Week of Five Days Hagerstown Plan

Nine-Hour Working Day to Keep City Street Workers Busy.

Special to The Washington Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 23.—A five-day week of nine hours daily has been adopted by the City of Hagerstown in a plan to keep its street workers employed during the winter months, Mayor Reuben Musey announced today. The mayor said he expected most of the 80 street workers could be kept at work under the plan.

Ordinarily about half of the street workers are furloughed during the winter. The city plans to employ them on street work during the good weather, and at other odd jobs on inclement days.

At the same time it was announced that a survey was to be made to determine the feasibility of completing Hagerstown's sanitary sewerage system this winter. If enough homes are found along the proposed system to provide sufficient funds to meet the interest on the cost this work may be started shortly to help laborers unemployed here.

Florida Governor Before Grand Jury

Executive Appears Voluntarily to Testify on Charges Against Him.

Tallahassee, Fla., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Gov. Doyle E. Carlton spent an hour before special Leon County grand jury here today as a surprise witness in an investigation of alleged charges made by certain newspapers in the State against the governor and other State officials.

The governor was not subpenaed, but appeared voluntarily and asked that he be allowed to testify. The grand jury recessed until tomorrow morning as soon as the governor came from the room.

The grand jury has been inquiring since last Monday into charges the governor claims were made against him. At the suggestion of the chief executive, Fred O. Eberhardt, editor of the Florida State News here, and E. T. Hollingsworth, editor of the South Jacksonville Herald, were questioned first regarding the alleged charges, because the grand jury said they purported to know about some irregularities in the government of the State.

15 Sealed Indictments Given in Smuggling Quiz

Auburn, N. Y., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Fifteen sealed indictments were returned by the Federal grand jury here today in connection with the northern New York smuggling ring.

Most of the indictments returned today, it was learned, would be in addition to those returned last week. The contents of those indictments never have been revealed.

Eleven men now are under arrest charged with conspiracy. Government officials have steadfastly declined to say what, if any, connection these arrests have with the indictments. Four of those under arrest are United States Customs Border Patrolmen.

Charles F. Miller Rites Tomorrow

Former Capital Resident Is Stricken at Home in McLean.

Funeral services will be held at 11 o'clock tomorrow at Mateer's funeral parlors in Cherrydale, Va., for Charles Frederick Miller, who died suddenly at his home in McLean, Va. The Rev. Dr. Harvey Dunham, pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Lewinsville, Va., will officiate.

Mr. Miller, who was 79 years old, had liven in Washington practically all his life until a year ago when he moved to McLean. He came to the United States with his parents in his early childhood from Germany, where he was born. The family settled first in Baltimore, but a short time later moved to the District. Mr. Miller had been a member of the Odd Fellows for 57 years.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Sarah C. Miller; three sons, William Miller, of Baltimore; Charles Benjamin Miller, of McLean, and Howard Miller, of Baltimore, and one daughter, Mrs. Florence Davis, of Washington. Burial will be at Columbia Gardens, in Clarendon, Va.

Ground Glass Found.

Frank O'Loughlin was arrested at the O'Loughlin home, where he was talking to Leo O'Loughlin, the child's father, who is a city detective. The father, the day before the girl's body was found, was taken to a hospital suffering from effects of ground glass he had swallowed. He was discharged from the institution yesterday.

Medical officers said ground glass also was found in Leona's viscera. A cat and a dog, pets of the family, also died from what examiners said was effects of ground glass.

Douglas Millican, 8-year-old son of Mrs. O'Loughlin by a previous marriage, was questioned today by investigators for the district attorney. They said Douglas related that Tuesday night, shortly before Leona disappeared, the girl and her father both were fed some rice, which his mother warned him not to eat.

"She told me I had already eaten too much other food," Douglas was quoted as saying.

Prisoner's Name Misleads Police

Hazel L. Lee Turns Out to Be Man, So Matron Travels in Vain.

Detectives at Police Headquarters here were considerably chagrined yesterday afternoon when they took a police matron with them to Alexandria in answer to a call from police that they had Hazel Louis Lee, wanted by Washington police, in custody.

When they arrived they found that they would not need the matron, for the "woman" turned out to be a man, and a soldier at that, who was arrested on a bench warrant secured by the Prohibition Commissioner for alleged perjury in testimony sworn to before Commissioner Needham Turnnage in a liquor case.

Lee, who is 28 years old, is said to be a soldier attached to Fort Myer.

Rum Car Is Seized, But Driver Flees

208 Gallons of Liquor Are Taken From Small Auto by Police.

One of the biggest seizures of liquor made in recent months, according to the police, was made by Sergt. N. O. Holmes and Detective H. G. Wannamaker, attached to the vice squad, when they captured an automobile with 208 gallons of alleged liquor about noon yesterday.

Holmes and Wannamaker were cruising in the neighborhood of Seventh and R streets northwest when the car, a small coupe, passed them. They caught the odor of hte liquor and gave chase for about a block, when a colored man, who was alone in the car, jumped and ran up an alley, eluding the officers.

On examination the car disclosed seventeen cases of half-gallon jars, some fastened under the rear of the car and piled high on the seat beside the driver's place. Cases of the liquor even formed the seat for the driver.

Government Employe Denies Rum Driving

A plea of not guilty was entered and a jury trial demanded by James A. Barry, a Veterans' Bureau employe, when he was arraigned in Police Court yesterday morning on charges of driving while under the influence of intoxicants.

The car he was driving was said to have collided yesterday with one operated by Edward Krause, of Silver Springs, Md., which in turn collided with another car driven by Violet Stein, of 3511 Davenport street northwest.

Aid Appeal Made In Danville Strike

Federation of Labor Head Asks Organizations to Help Fight.

(Associated Press.)

The American Federation of Labor yesterday appealed to its affiliated organizations for financial contributions to support the strike of textile mill workers in Danville, Va.

Recalling that the national convention of the federation in Boston recently directed its officers to seek such support, President William Green formally issued an appeal for financial aid, pointing out that a "courageous fight was being made for the right to belong to a trade union."

"There is much suffering among those who are on strike and their families dependent upon them," Green said. "The wages which they received were very small. The conditions under which they worked were unsatisfactory and the rights which trade unionists were permitted to exercse were denied them."

Small Tobacco Sales Continue at Danville

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Oct. 23.—Tobacco sales on the Danville market continue to be small, partly owing to the lack of rain.

Although the market has been open for almost a month the total volume of pounds is far below what it was this time last year. Some warehousemen are of the opinion that the textile strike is having an effect on sales.

'Amos 'n' Andy' Picture Seen by Select Audience

"Amos 'n' Andy," known to high and low alike via the radio, last night made their bow through the medium of the motion picture talking screen to a select audience at the RKO Keith Theater in their first photoplay, "Check and Double Check."

The special presentation was made through the courtesy of the National Broadcasting Company, Radio-Keith-Orpheum and under the auspices of the National Press Club.

More than 1,000 members of the Press Club, Government officials and other dignitaries, holders of special invitations, attended the showing given immediately after the regular program at Keith's.

UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF.

With highly commendable promptness Col. Arthur Woods, director of unemployment relief, has started to work. With his appointment less than 48 hours old he has selected an office, designated certain key assistants, conferred with President Hoover and members of the Cabinet committee created to function in the emergency, and outlined a tentative program designed to bring into play every agency of the Government. Col. Woods' first official act was to bespeak the aid of industry in the emergency. In so doing, he recognized the fact that industry, and not the Government, holds the key to the solution of the problem of unemployment.

Col. Woods has a two fold duty to perform. Primarily, he must set in motion forces for the creation of jobs and coordinate the activities of industry, the Government, the States, counties, municipalities, &c., to the end that there be no overlapping. In addition, he should find it necessary to combat the hysteria that already is becoming evident and that promises to show itself in unexpected quarters. A case in point is a statement made by Alexander Legge, chairman of the Farm Board, to the effect that the board would be glad to make its holdings of wheat available as food for the unemployed if Congress would replace the money used by the Stabilization Corporation for its purchase.

There has been no intimation of a food shortage. Food prices are at a lower level than they have been for some years past. Granaries are overflowing. Foodstuff production, despite the drought, was not seriously reduced during the summer. There is plenty of food for all, and there is absolutely no need for turning over the Government's wheat stocks to feed the unemployed. How, for that matter, supposing Congress were to fall in with the Legge suggestion, would the wheat stock be distributed as food for the unemployed? Would it be milled, baked into loaves, and handed out to bread lines?

The country must supply jobs for the unemployed, and only jobs. The need is not for bread lines, but for work. The wheels of all industry require stimulation. The only satisfactory stimulant is the expenditure of money that will flow back through the retailer, the wholesaler, the jobber, the transportation agency and the factory. Provide jobs and every one will provide his own bread.

Col. Woods may be depended upon to organize the "relief" along the proper lines. It is not his task to ask Congress to donate tons of bread to the hungry. Foolish and impracticable proposals based upon hysterical visions of starvation are handicaps to the real work that lies before Col. Woods.

GREATER TRAIN SPEED.

Automobiles, buses, trucks and airplanes have become such deadly competitors of the railroads that the latter are forced to make great efforts to regain their former prestige and protect their enormous investments. They are adding lavish equipment and improving their service. The railroads are also voluntarily reducing their passenger and freight rates, and are giving special attention to comfort, courtesy and safety. In this connection such specific instances are to be noted as swing-back seats for day coaches, improved dining and Pullman facilities, electric-motored or oil-powered engines, luxurious smoking and parlor cars for both men and women, new safety devices, brightly painted and highly polished locomotives, musical steam whistles and train secretaries and hostesses.

In the matter of speed, with which they are experimenting, the railroads are about to make their latest bid for public favor. Near Berlin the other day a railway coach shaped like a Zeppelin, with a 500-horsepower airplane motor and driven by a propeller, sped 25 passenger-guests at 95 miles an hour within two minutes after starting on a 5-mile stretch of rails. The experiment was declared a success, and German railway executives are disposed to substitute this form of rail travel for the old and slower train service.

The German feat recalls to mind last year's effort of the Canadian National Railways to meet the demand for faster trains. In a test run in Canada an oil-electric engine was pitted against an ordinary airplane, and actually succeeded in outdistancing the plane. Within the last week Sir Henry Thornton, chairman and president of the Canadian National Railways, pointed out to a meeting of passenger-traffic officers that vastly greater speeds must be attained by railroad trains if they are to hope to compete with other agencies of transport.

That the railroads will soon be competing among themselves in the matter of speed is a foregone conclusion. Even without making any considerable changes American, Canadian and British railways can materially increase the speed of their trains; for, as both train crew and passengers know, speeds exceeding 80 miles an hour are now and again attained by railroad trains along certain stretches of track. Electrification of lines is going forward, with resulting increased speed with safety. There is no reason why electric trains should not travel at 100 miles an hour.

THE HOLY LAND CONTROVERSY.

Great Britain's new policy in Palestine is developing many unfortunate ramifications. In London Stanley Baldwin and Sir Austen Chamberlain are threatening to make Palestine a political issue. In Jerusalem the Jewish National Council voted to reject the new policy and decided not to participate in the proposed legislative council which Britain intends to set up as the chief instrument of self-government for the Holy Land. In the United States a movement is under way to influence the State Department to intervene.

It is difficult to see how the Zionist cause can be aided by any of these steps. It would be most unfortunate if the Palestine question should be made a football of British politics. By refusing to participate in the legislative council that would be made up of Jews, Arabs and representatives of the British government the national council is frustrating a movement designed to foster good will between the two races and to give each proportional voice in the government.

The movement to involve the United States Government in the controversy is wholly inadvised. The Government and the American people are in sympathy with the Zionist movement. In 1922 Congress enacted a resolution declaring that the United States favors "the establishment in Palestine of a national home for the Jewish people, it being clearly understood that nothing shall be done which may prejudice the civil and religious rights of Christians and all other non-Jewish communities * * *" To give effect to this resolution and to definitely establish the rights of the United States in this territory mandated to Great Britain a treaty with that country was signed. But Britain is responsible to the League of Nations alone for the administration of its mandate. There is no occasion for the United States to meddle with the Palestine controversy.

The mandate instructs Britain "to facilitate the establishment in Palestine of a national home for the Jewish people." But it also requires Britain to uphold the rights of the indigenous Arabian inhabitants. Palestine is not to be reconstructed into a Jewish nation, but a national home for the Jews is to be created within that country. The Simpson commission has found that immigration and acquisition of land by the Jews must be regulated if the rights of the Arabs are to be maintained.

Thus far the British government seems to have the better of the argument, because it has the facts on its side. When the Zionist organizations merely denounce the new policy and refuse to cooperate in the new program they are fighting against practical necessity. These organizations, however, are free to make their own survey, point out the commission's mistakes and faulty conclusions, if any, and demonstrate how their program could be carried out without injustice to the Arabs. A program that is not founded upon sound economic and social relationships can only result in failure and calamity.

NEW YORK'S JUDICIARY SCANDAL.

Investigators of New York's judiciary scandals have run up one blind alley after another. It has been established to the public satisfaction, at least, that there has been trafficking in judgeships and that the judicial system is honeycombed with corruption and graft; but, except for the fact that a justice disappeared under mysterious circumstances, no evidence of guilt has as yet been fixed upon an individual. This week, however, one of the investigators uncovered what appears to be evidence of a vice ring involving members of the police vice squad and certain unsavory characters who have functioned as police stool pigeons, professional bondsmen and minor court attaches. It is intimated that this ring has been preying upon women and others for years, and that recently its annual profits have been very great. This ring, so the story goes, would obtain arrests, collect a percentage of the bonds demanded by the court, exact a fee for "fixing" the case and, in one way or another, get a dismissal of the case or secure its erasure from the books of record.

Does this disclosure mark the beginning of the end of the judiciary scandals? Presumably, the investigators will go after the vice ring tooth and nail, never resting until they have broken it up and put its moving spirits behind bars. It is pointed out specifically that no magistrates or other jurists are involved in the scandal, but this very declaration leads to the suspicion that perhaps it is to be used to cloak the larger judiciary scandals that have been under investigation.

New York's judiciary scandals should not be covered over by the exposure of a vice ring and its prosecution. If they are not based in fact, in justice to the judiciary they should be proved groundless. If corruption is prevalent in the New York City judicial machine, it should be exposed and dealt with summarily.

REFINING BROADCASTING.

Two announcements that may have an important bearing on the problem of radio congestion have recently been made. The National Broadcasting Co., through its president, M. H. Aylesworth, states that the problem of synchronized transmission has been solved. Dr. James Robinson, former chief of radio research of the British Royal Air Force, claims that his newly developed stenode radiostat positively eliminates interference of all sorts. The system of synchronized transmission and the stenode radiostat have yet to be put to the acid test of trial in actual operation, but if either proves practicable the way will be opened for greatly improved broadcasting.

There is room for but 600 radio stations in the present broadcast spectrum. These stations are crowded in to such a degree that whenever any one of them strays even slightly from its assigned channel the transmitting efficiency of other stations is seriously impaired. Moreover, in the present crowded spectrum it is impossible to permit stations to utilize high output. The dispute that invariably accompanies applications for increased power is grounded on the fact that the broadcast band is badly overcrowded. If, however, chain stations could be synchronized to operate on a single wave-length, the channels they otherwise would occupy would be released for independent stations. Synchronization would have the effect of broadening the spectrum.

The stenode radiostat, if practicable, would have similar effect. It would permit closer spacing of broadcasting stations by increasing the selectivity of receiving sets so that cross-talk, heterodyne whistles, &c., could be tuned out by the listener.

COMRADES OF THE FLAG.

Several thousand veterans of the First Division, American Expeditionary Forces, are assembled in Washington to attend the twelfth annual reunion. The District of Columbia Chapter of the First Division is acting as host to the visitors.

At the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier today the veterans of the First Division will render homage to the lad who typifies America. Many of these men must have known him in the flesh. Any one of them might have been in his place. As the veterans salute the Unknown they will recall Sommerviller, Ansouville, Cantigny, Montdidier-Noyen, Soissons, Aisne-Marne, Saizerais, San Mihiel and the Meuse-Argonne, and they can picture in imagination any one of many fierce struggles in which their comrade lost his life and became the immortal symbol of American valor.

As the years go by the First Division will follow the Grand Army of the Republic into the shadows of memory. While they are in the prime of life it is well that they should come to Washington, to identify themselves closely with their Government. They are most welcome. As they disperse they will carry back to all parts of the country renewed devotion to the flag to which they gave fresh glory, and which greets them affectionately as a companion in arms.

MIXING OF RACES

By Prof. E. B. REUTER,
In the Scientific Monthly.

Wherever the members of divergent racial stocks have come into contact they have associated to produce a group of nondescript hybrid offspring. The social and cultural status of these half-caste individuals is determined by the attitudes of the politically and culturally dominant group. They may be accepted as a lower stratum of the dominant culture group; they may be classed as members of the exploited group, or they may be formed into an intermediate class or caste. For a longer or shorter time the two racial groups may live side by side, in a state of relative separateness, each maintaining a semblance of racial and cultural integrity. But the hybrid population grows by natural increase, by the continued intermixture of the races and by the intermixture of the hybrids with each of the racially separate groups. The uniform results are an increase of the hybrids at the expense of each parent group, the present disappearance of racial lines and the ultimate mongrelization of the entire population.

At the present time the contact of racial stocks is incomparably greater than at any previous time in world history. The rise of modern science laid the basis for a new world order. It made possible a machine industry with an enormously increased production of material goods at the same time that it brought new types of communication and cheap and rapid means of transportation; it made possible and inevitable a world-wide commercial and economic unity that brought into contact and association peoples heretofore widely apart. But it brought also a spread and deepening of popular education with a consequent growth in objectivity and a weakening of sentimental and traditional controls; it operated directly and indirectly to the economic and intellectual liberation and mobility of the individual man. The new freedom, in the presence of the marked differential in economic opportunity in different regions, got expression in an unprecedented migration. This led to the contact and intermixture of diverse stocks previously widely separated, to the exclusion and absorption of weaker peoples and to the repopulation of whole continents by the amalgamated stocks.

This wholesale and indiscriminate intermixture of biological strains is, in extent at least, unlike anything before known in the contact of peoples. The conditions of the miscegenation have in many cases violated conventional and formal standards and expressed, or given rise to, serious social disorganization and personal demoralization. The facts as well as the apparent immediate consequences have aroused active and violent emotional condemnation. The general public, as well as many social students, impute great significance to this amalgamation of the races. The prevailing note in the sociopolitical discussion is one of pessimism: there is fear of racial degeneracy, moral decadence and culture decline; an uneasy and unanalyzed sense of impending racial and cultural disaster. In some cases this emotional attitude has been expressed in formal and legal as well as in popular efforts to check the movement already accomplished or beyond control.

And none there was his post to fill.
The fires went out; the rooms were cold,
The women folk began to scold;
In bags the morning mail remained,
And all about disorder reigned.

The office boy remained away
And topsy turvy went the day.
With none the messages to run
A dozen things were left undone,
And clerk and foreman grumbled long
Because so many plans went wrong.

The president went out of town
But naught occurred to cause a frown,
The fires were lit, the errands run,
The needful tasks were promptly done,
They scarcely noticed he was gone,
So smoothly everything went on.

The sum of big and little deeds.
Though business leadership requires
There must be one to build the fires
Since trivial cares disturb us most,

By ROBERT QUILLEN

GOVERNMENT by the people exists only as a theory and an ideal.

Whatever the form of government may be the rulers are the strong.

Nobody knows what the result would be if the people should attempt to govern themselves—if every citizen should vote and each group should require its representative to obey instructions—for the experiment has never been tried.

Certain it is that the learned, the wise and those free of prejudice would not rule, for in all lands these are a minority.

In America, where citizens speak proudly of "government by the people," the common man actually has very little to say about the way he is governed.

The only way the ordinary citizen of a republic can govern himself is by means of the ballot. He can, at least in theory, choose representatives to do his will.

But if he doesn't vote he has no voice at all, and often he doesn't vote.

In the very beginning, when men were laying the foundation of the republic, not one voter in five responded when asked to choose representatives to frame the Constitution. That proportion has varied in subsequent elections, but as a rule not more than three citizens in five attempt to govern themselves. The others, while boasting of freedom, are content to be governed by rulers not of their choosing.

Does it follow that citizens who vote are the true governors of the land? It does not.

They would be if they instructed their representatives and the representatives obeyed instructions, but that seldom happens.

Except in rare cases, the "representatives of the people" do not know what the people want. They try not to violate the majority opinion, for they wish to hold their jobs, but often they do not know what majority opinion is and must use their own judgment.

Are these representatives, then, the true rulers?

No, for they do not retire to their closets to form their judgments. They consult the press to discover public opinion and they heed the advice and the protests of rich and powerful men.

The press does influence public opinion, if only by printing the news, and the opinions of powerful men are news.

The rulers of America are the capable, who know what they want and exert themselves to get it.

In a "free" land, as elsewhere, the common man is governed because he doesn't care or doesn't know what to do about it.

Too Much Credit.

Louisville Courier-Journal.

Why not more team work on the part of the Republican campaigners who are insisting that it is the opponents of President Hoover who are responsible for the depression which some of the Democratic campaigners insist on calling the "Hoover panic"?

Most of them attribute the mischief to that arch fiend, John J. Raskob, but others make a wider sweep and indict the whole Democratic party for the deviltment. Chief among them is Speaker Longworth, who, in a radio address, tells the country that the Hoover administration is not to be blamed for the "hard times," but that they were brought on by the Democratic opponents of the Hoover administration.

This is investing the Democratic party with a power which it did not dream that it had.

Women in Politics.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Once again it becomes our duty, and a pleasure as always to break a lance for the American woman. Certainly the statement by Miss Agnes Hamilton, M. P., that, while the American woman may excel in business, her British sister has galloped away from her politically requires attention. Superiority in politics, as in other activities is, we assume, determined by results. Results in politics necessarily means office, and by that inexorable yardstick the American woman, we contend, cuts as impressive and comely a figure as the British woman. It may be that no such fountain of statistics, no such chatelaine of facts, as Miss Margaret Bondfield has as yet appeared in the American terrain, but where in that Websterian circuit "whose morning drumbeat following the sun and keeping time with the hours" may be seen a Mabel Walker Willebrandt? It may be true, too, that history will not enroll Ma Ferguson's name among our great post-war governors, but what English woman could muster up the nerve to rule a domain like Texas? She would as soon think of crashing the gate of Windsor Castle as attempting so imperial a job. And when it comes to high political finance we offer Ruth Hanna McCormick as a spender of the blood royal compared with whom the most extravagant princess of Merrie England is a dynastic piker. While we're about it, we might ask the identity of the first English woman to trip her satin-shod way into the House of Commons? Wasn't it Lady Astor, whom some poet laureate will eventually immortalize as Nancy of Virginia? For the time being that will be, so to speak, about all.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Another View of How Gen. George Washington Would Regard Present-Day Relations With Europe.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The avenues of approach to the opinion of Gen. George Washington on any present subject would seem to be too many and too broad to be monopolized, even by the altruistic pacifist of California—Mr. Edward Berwick. Gen. Washington had a scant respect for adequate preparation against what might come to pass through the action and reaction of forces wholly beyond our control, and he put it tersely when he said, as it is reported: "In time of peace prepare for war." Had that wholly sensible advice been followed in 1912 and the following three or four years there would be fewer mounds in France and Flanders field, and the debt that we are now carrying would never have reached the gigantic proportions it has attained.

With the permission of the gentleman, may the writer, for a moment, step into one of the avenues mentioned and suggest that had Gen. Washington been privileged to read the covenant of the League of Nations, he would have balked at article ten and have made a long pause at sixteen, and at subdivision C in article 23—isn't it easy to suppose that he would say, "No! I'll never permit the Stars and Stripes to float over any tent or bungalow where the regulation of traffic in women and children, opium and other dangerous drugs is being carried on."

Yes; we are in a pact to "outlaw war" and Uncle Sam will keep his promise, but in these troublous times he "doesn't know what the fool in the other car will do," and so must be prepared to meet any emergency that may arise. Our cheapest insurance is an adequate Navy, a merchant marine that will carry at least 75 per cent of our trade and a general preparedness which will develop our man power, as men, who recognize the duties as well as the opportunities of citizenship.

We are in a vastly stronger position to be of use in the world by remaining outside the league than if we were in; no nation would trust us any more than they do each other. But outside we may act as a pacifier and helper. Who believes for one moment that this Nation would have been called on for the Dawes plan had we been a member of the League of Nations?

An Englishman, who had sat through an entire session of the league in Geneva, said in the hearing of the present writer: "You are wise to keep aloof. The league is an apparent necessity in Europe, but you are 3,000 miles away and should need no further experience of burning your fingers in the fires of Europe. Personally, I'd like to see you in, but for your own sakes I hope you'll keep out." It seems to be taking a long step into a hoped-for Elysium to assume that Gen. Washington "would gladly welcome" the world court and the League of Nations. How easy to wed with these institutions; but in what court could we get a divorce? May we not aver with confidence that today he would be the same stanch American he ever proved himself to be, with a vision of national stability rather than a wish to regulate the world?

ARTHUR GIBSON MORSE.

Fewer Wet Than Dry Voters Go to the Polls When Liquor Issue Is Involved—Archie Rice's Analysis.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In 130 instances the 48 States have voted where the wet-dry issue was involved in the poll. To determine just how many adults in each hundred in the State actually voted wet or dry I carefully figured out the existing State population and adults of the year of each vote, except where the census returns were immediately applicable.

Here are the results: In 111 cases the wet vote did not average 30 in the hundred adults and the dry vote less than 30 adults in the hundred 90 times. In 18 cases the wet vote was between 30 and 37 per cent of the State adults, and the dry vote was that high in 13 cases.

In only one election has the wet vote ever exceeded 37 adults in the hundred of any State, but the dry vote has mustered between 38 and 59 adults in the hundred 27 times, and in 26 different States. The only time the wets have rallied more than 37 adults in the hundred was in Nevada's referendum in 1926, and then the wets produced 42 adults in the hundred, but in 1928 dropped back to 29 in the hundred for Smith and gave Hoover 42.

My detailed survey of voting conditions in the 3,076 counties of the Nation showed that 2,142 counties voted for Hoover and 938 for Smith, while of the cities exceeding 100,000 in population, Hoover carried 64 and Smith 27. Smith's chief urban strongholds were Providence, Boston, New York, Albany, Jersey City, Scranton, Milwaukee, St. Paul, St. Louis, New Orleans, San Antonio, San Francisco.

My surveys and analyses, involving close to 8,000 mathematical calculations, revealed that 74 per cent of the adult males of the Nation voted and in the ratio of approximately 51 for Hoover to 49 for Smith; that 48 per cent of the adult females of the country voted, and in the ratio of 69 for Hoover to 31 for Smith.

DIRTY LITERATURE.

In a quiet, but what is hoped is an effective way, says the Los Angeles Times, a crusade is being waged against the use of profanity in books as well as in plays. Some recent volumes have been notoriously offensive in this direction. There are not only naughty scenes, but naughty words. The publishers are asked to delete these swear words and conduct their story in a chaste and discreet manner. It may mar some of the realism of which they prate, but that realism is of no importance in a world built up of it. It is mentioned that there are virtually no newspapers in America admitting oaths or obscene words to their columns. Papers are charged with sensationalism, but they are at least clean. Books and plays can be sensational without being dirty.

REDS IN CHINA TRAP U. S. MISSIONARIES

IGNORED WARNING TO GO

(Associated Press.)

Word reached the State Department last night from the American Consul at Hongkong that eight American Catholic missionaries at Kanchow, Kiangsi Province, were unable to leave there for places of safety.

The message was sent to the consulate at Hongkong by Father McGillicudy, who said that he had received a letter from the missionaries dated October 9. Their names were given as Bishop O'Shea and Fathers Cahill, Strauvel, Curtis, Erbe, McLaughlin, Young and Mehringer.

Father McGillicudy informed the consulate that he was alarmed for the safety of the missionaries in view of the Communist capture of Kian in the province.

The missionaries were warned repeatedly during the past months to leave for places of safety, but declined to do so.

Walter A. Adams, American Consul at Nanking, another message to the department said, has urged the ministry of foreign affairs to take steps to effect release of the Filipino sister captured by the bandits at Kian. Mr. Adams also reported in detail steps taken to effect release of the Rev. Bert N. Nelson, of Minneapolis, Minn., captured early this mopth by another group of bandits.

Shanghai, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—The Nationalist government moved again today to crush the bloody Communist war on Christians in China, as new reports of outrages against foreigners were reported.

Foreign Minister Wang announced the government will throw "its full strength into crushing the reds" who recently massacred thousands of persons and plundered foreign missions as a part of a campaign of wholesale murder, robbery ad incendiarism in Kiangsi Province.

The minister insisted, however, that the government could not be held responsible for safety of foreigners who persisted in remaining in dangerous areas.

Statement by Wang.

Informed that several American and other foreign missionaries were forced to flee from Jaochow, Kingtecnen and Kian to save their lives from reds waging bitter warfare upon foreign and Chinese Christians, Wang said:

"American and other foreign missionaries have been repeatedly warned not to enter bandit and Communist infested portions of the interior. While the Nationalist government is trying to obtain release of missionaries held in Kiangsi and other provinces, the government can not be held responsible for welfare of foreigners who persist in remaining in districts already dangerous or likely to become battlefields between government troops and Communists.

"Conditions existing in central China afford a vivid picture of what the entire country will be like if the reds gain the upper hand.

"Communism at present is an abstract problem in America and other nations. It has become an active menace in China, therefore the government plans to throw its full strength into crushing the reds."

Details of Looting Cited.

Writing from his place of concealment near Poyang Lake in Northern Kiangsi, Father Verdini, an Italian priest, gave details of the looting by Reds of the Lazarist Mission at Jaochow and the flight of himself and other missionaries. Father Verdini's letter, dated October 14, said that he knew of no missionaries being killed.

Five thousand Communists, he said, descended upon Jaochow after Nationalists guards had fled. All mission property, except the church itself, was destroyed. Shops and townspeople were robbed and many slain.

The missionaries fled. Father Verdini thought that Bishop Sheehan, of Streator, Ill., director of the Jaochow Mission, had escaped to Fuchow, 100 miles away, where he might be safe, although in a dangerous region.

Father Verdini believed that Father Altenburg, of Milwaukee, Wis., had reached Wuyuan, Southern Anhwei Province, Tuesday.

Father L. J. Coyle, Lincoln, Nebr., escaped toward Nanchang. Leo Moore, Perryville, Mo., fled with Verdini and Father Meyer, a Dutch Priest, on a Chinese junk on Poyang Lake. The priests hoped to escape from the Reds active about the lake.

Father Verdini also reported the looting of Kingtechen, from which "eight out of every ten residents have fled to the countryside while those remaining turned robbers or Reds."

Wyoming Divorce Given Thomas F. Ryan Second

Sheridan, Wyo., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Thomas F. Ryan, 2d, grandson of the late Thomas Fortune Ryan, New York multimillionaire, today obtained a divorce from Margaret M. Ryan, on grounds of desertion. The decree was granted at a hearing in district court before Judge James Z. Burgess.

Testimony of two witnesses, Harry Churchill, member of the Wyoming Game and Fish Commission and friend of the plaintiff, and Mr. Ryan, preceded granting of the decree. They testified to desertion for more than one year. Mrs. Ryan is of a prominent Pittsburgh family, and is living in the East.

PRESIDENT OF CHINA BECOMES CHRISTIAN

METHODIST RITES USED

Shanghai, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—President Chiang Kai-shek of China has been converted to Christianity.

Appearing unexpectedly in Shanghai late today, the generalissimo went to the home of his mother-in-law, Mme. K. T. Soong, and was baptized into the Christian faith by sprinkling, according to the rites of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

The ceremony was performed by a Chinese pastor, the Rev. Z. T. Kuang, a graduate of the Southern Methodist Episcopal Mission University at Soochow. The mission's headquarters is at Nashville, Tenn. Chiang explained his action in these words:

"I feel the need of a God such as Jesus Christ."

Action Surprises Shanghai.

The president's conversion was a distinct surprise to Shanghai. Only a few intimates, mostly relatives, attended the ceremonies after the chief executive came from the capital at Nanking.

Christian circles heralded the baptism with great joy and said it struck a blow at communism. Communists have been directing attacks at foreigners recently and particularly at Christianity as being representative of foreignism.

Pastor Kuang said he did not expect Chiang to take an active part in church affairs as he is too busy with government duties but "he and the Spirit of Jesus Christ within him will go marching on."

The president's conversion is believed due to influence of Christian relatives. His wife, the former Meiling Soong, and Madame Soong, her mother, have been devout Christians for years as have other members of the Soong family.

Incident in 1925.

The late Dr. Sun Yat-Sen was a Christian. Another famous general, who once espoused Christianity was Feng Yu-Hsiang. He was known as "the Christian general" and had his entire army baptized. Later he is said to have renounced his faith under the influence of bolshevism.

An instance of Chiang Kai-Shek's preconversion partiality to Christianity was seen in 1925 when a dentist at the Yale-in-China mission at Changsha extracted an aching tooth for the general. He was so grateful that when his armes later surged through the country he ordered the Yale buildings spared.

Another associate of Chiang's who is an outstanding Christian is H. H. Kung, minister of commerce and labor. He is a descendant of Confucius. Before conversion Chiang had no formal religion.

Hoover Asked to Speak At Lincoln Day Dinner

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover was invited yesterday by Richard Lawrence, of New York, president of the National Republican Club, to speak February 12 at the club's Lincoln Day dinner.

Mr. Lawrence told the President, who is a former member of the club and now an honorary member, that every Republican President since Harrison had spoken at the Lincoln Day dinner. Mr. Lawrence said he also gave the President his views upon the New York political situation and told him the race between Gov. Roosevelt and Charles M. Hoover Asked to Attend Launching of Vessel

(Associated Press.)

Stanley Dollar, president of the Dollar Steamship Lines, yesterday invited President Hoover to attend the launching December 9 at Newport News, Va., of a passenger vessel to be named for the Chief Executive.

Mr. Hoover said he doubted that he would be able to attend, but took the invitation under advisement. Should he not be able to attend, Mr. Dollar asked that Mrs. Hoover be present. The ship will be the largest passenger vessel ever built in the United States, Mr. Dollar said.

STIMSON CLARIFIES EMBARGO ON ARMS

Misleading to Term Ban as "Unprecedented" Act, He Declares.

REGULAR MOVE, IS VIEW

(Associated Press.)

A formal statement intended to clarify the intent of the United States regarding arms shipments to Brazil was issued last night by Secretary Stimson.

Mr. Stimson said the embargo placed upon such shipments was without precedent in that it was the first occasion in which a ban had been placed on shipments of munitions and arms to a South American country, but added, "It is misleading to call it an unprecedented action."

"Some accounts in the press this morning reported that our action in placing an embargo upon the sale of arms and munitions to revolutionists in Brazil was unprecedented," the statement said.

Termed Regular Action.

"While it is true that this is the first occasion where the United States has placed an embargo on the shipment of arms and munitions to a South American country, it is misleading to call it an unprecedented action as it is our regular action under similar circumstances.

"We have placed embargoes on the shipment of arms and munitions on various occasions when there were conditions of domestic violence in Central America, Mexico, Cuba and the Orient. It just happens that a situation requiring the application of this principle has not hitherto come up in South America and there has therefore hitherto been no occasion for applying the general principle.

"There is nothing unprecedented in the principle which we have applied many times before. It is very important that people should not misunderstand it as a new principle. It is important for the reason that the revolutionists who may be hurt by our action in placing an embargo may assert that we are taking sides for some ulterior reason with one or the other of the combatants. Instead of that, we are acting according to general principles of international law.

No Matter of Choice.

"Those principles declare that where we are in friendly relations through diplomatic channels with a government which has been recognized as the legitimate government of a country that government is entitled to the ordinary rights of any government to buy arms in this country, while the people who are opposing and trying to overthrow that government and are not yet recognized as belligerents are not entitled to that right.

"It is not a matter of choice on our part, but is a practice of mankind known as international law. We have no personal bias and are doing nothing but attempt to carry out the law of mankind."

German Mine Toll Is Now 255 Dead

Total Includes 16 Who Succumbed in Hospital; Few More in Debris.

Alsdorf, Germany, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—The death toll in the Auna II coal mine disaster of Tuesday had reached 255 tonight and it was believed a few more would be found in the debris-filled mine.

The total includes sixteen who have died in hospitals of injuries. The others were carried out laboriously by rescue squads which stumbled through choked shafts and over tons of debris.

Because of the great number of dead, the local cemetery has proved too small and preparations were made today to lay out a new burial ground. In it, on Saturday morning, the dead miners will be placed in common graves.

25 Lebanon Students Suspended for Hazing

Lebanon, Pa., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Suspension for two weeks of 25 upper class men of the Lebanon Valley College was announced by officials today as opening a drive against drinking, gambling and swearing by the men's senate and faculty which they said were practiced at the college.

The suspensions followed investigation of charges of paddling made by several freshmen after a hazing session last week. By the ruling, the 25 students will be barred from classes and other college activities for two weeks. The ruling affects the varsity football squad as six of the students suspendeed are regulars on the team.

Liquor Worth $150,000 Is Seized in Marblehead

Marblehead, Mass., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Liquor valued at $150,000 was seized and seventeen men were arrested early today when police raided the headquarters of what they described as one of the biggest rum plants in the history of the North Shore.

Among those arrested was Capt. Edward W. Flynn, of the Salem fire department. Patrolman George Kelly, of the local police department, one of the first to reach the plant, was struck by a tear gas bullet. He was painfully burned about the face.

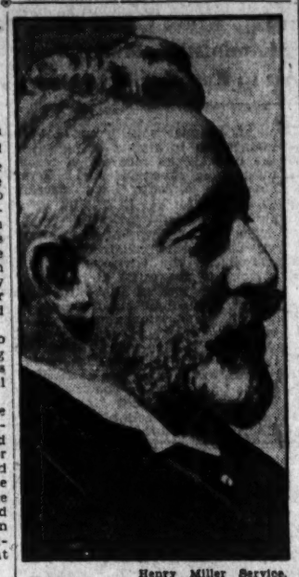
Kaiser Wrote to Victoria He Feared Bismarck's Ire

Published Letters Throw Light on Impressions of Gladstone, Churchill.



Henry Miller Service.
FORMER KAISER WILHELM.

London, Oct. 23 (A. P.).—When Bismarck and the kaiser quarreled in those days which preceded the chancellor's dismissal by William, the "Iron Chancellor" was inclined to hurl things at his youthful sovereign's head. The letters of Queen Victoria and of distinguished persons of her time to the widow of Prince Consort Albert, published today in book form, revealed this and many other interesting secrets which for more than 40 years had been buried in the archives of Windsor Castle.

The emperor wrote one letter to his grandmother in which, explaining why he dismissed his late father's friend and military and political mentor, he said:

"In my discussions with him he (Bismarck) treated me like a schoolboy. When I urged that I believed the ministers were really in favor of my views, although they would not venture to say so because he was opposed to them, he told me that they were all blackguards and cowards. He became so violent on occasions that I did not know whether he would throw an inkstand at my head."

Ferdinand, Prince of Bulgaria in Victorian days, who later became king and is known to the present generation as the exiled Czar of Bulgaria, Victoria described in this manner:

"He is totally unfit—delicate, eccentric and effeminate * * * should be stopped at once."

The documents make it appear that the kaiser's quarrel with the Prince of Wales, who later became King Edward VII, was due to William's feeling that he was not being treated with the dignity due him as kaiser.

Regarding W. E. Gladstone, her prime minister, Victoria said: "He will ruin the country if he can, and how much mischief has he not done already! * * * His violent attacks on his former colleagues; his extraordinary latters and speeches in which he will not admit the possibility of his being wrong or others being right, have injured him very much."

Of Lord Randolph Churchill, father of the present Winston Spencer Churchill, she wrote:

"He is so mad and odd and also has bad health * * * that strange, unaccountable man who has been a perpetual thorn in the side of his colleagues since he has been in office * * * This impertinent and not reliable or loyal ex-minister."

Hittite Mansion Unearthed By Archeologic Expedition

University of Chicago Party, Digging in Turkish Mound, Finds Valuable Evidences of Era of About 2000 B. C.; Traces of 10 Periods Exposed.

Alishar, Turkey, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—A gray sunbaked mound stands in the heart of the ancient land of the Hittites; burroughing through it for five years, America narcheologists have cut a cross-section of the history of mankind as they dug for a solution of the Hittite mystery.

On this one mound, the Alishar Huyuk, a mound 2,300 feet long and 2,000 feet wide, situated 128 miles southeast of Angora, the oriental institute of the University of Chicago has just completed its fifth season of excavations. Dr. Hans Henning von der Osten, leader of the expedition; Richard Martin, of Chicago, and a German, Herr Riefenmuller, saw the 1930 expedition produce the most important results of the oriental institute's five years in Anatolia.

Digging 81 feet below the citadel wall, which crowns the Alishar mound, the expedition this year struck the dwelling place of stone age man exposing relics of a settlement existing at least 10,000 years before the Christian era. Working down to this neolithic level, the expedtiion has exposed, one on top o fthe other, relics of ten distinctive periods of man's history.

Below the surface, were found in succession the Osmanli strata, the Seljuk, the Byzantine, the Roman, and the remains of the period comprising at once the Gallic invasions of Asia Minor, the Cappodocian kingdom, and the Phrygian.

Downward came the strata of the new Hittite empire, and downward again, leaving the iron and coming to the bronze age, appear the remains of the great first Hittite empire, which rose to power in the second half of the third millenium, B. C., and fell some where around 1800 B. C. Piercing below this great treasure house for Hittite study, the American expedition passed the strata of men of the copper age, and so at last reached Neolithicum, exposing the wooden roof support of a dwelling inhabited by man 12,000 years ago.

Hittite tablets which have been deciphered give brief light upon great men and great events. There stands out the name of the Hittite King Kusharra, who in he third milenium B. C., conquered for and wide and made Hattushash the capital of the Hittite empire. From a Babionian chronicle it is known that Hittites sacked Babylon and ended the great Hammurabi dynasty.

Greatest of Hittites, the scant records show, was King Shubbiluliuma, who brought the empire to its greatest height around 1400 B. C.

After the year 1200 B. C. all records of the Hittites suddenly cease, by some still unknown catastrophe.

How the lost race lived in the days of its power is being brought to light by the American expedition in Anatolia. Battling against blazing sun, drought and malaria, the expedition is laying bare Hittite dwellings, palaces, fortresses, and temples, and is unearthing implements and jewels and the very bones of the men and women to whom they belonged.

The most imposing Hittite building ever brought to light was exposed this year. It is a huge mansion wherein were found valuable cuneiform tablets and a crypt contanling skeletons, vases, and jewels of bronze and of gold. The Turkish government has made a loan to the excavators of one of the skeletons and several of the tablets which will be studied in Chicago this year.

HIGH WATER HELPS FEDERALS IN BRAZIL

EXPORT OF FOOD HALTED

Rio de Janeiro, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Heavy spring rains today brought a new defense to the aid of the federals who are opposing revolutionists in the Sao Paulo-Parana sector, scene of the hottest fighting thus far in the Brazilian civil war.

At Itarare, around which heavy conflicts have centered for more than a week, the River Parana-Panema has swollen until it provided a natural defense for the government troops and has halted attempted forays by the rebels. Itarare is on the lower Parana-Sao Paulo border.

An official statement issued today said the government continues to maintain its authority in the capital and throughout the State of Sao Paulo.

Railway Declared Open.

It added that railway communication had not been interrupted over the state nor between Sao Paulo and Rio de Janeiro, and that telephone and telegraph service were operating normally. The reference to railroads presumably is in answer to rebel claims that the line connecting Brazil's two greatest cities, the capital and Sao Paulo, had been severed.

The communique asserted that the frontiers of Sao Paulo State-Minas Geraes on the north and Parana on the south, both dominated largely by the rebels—had been strongly garrisoned by forces of police and soldiers.

Prisoners captured in recent conflicts continue to arrive in both Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo. A group captured in the recent fighting near Igarapava, when the federals cleared out the triangle of West Minas Geraes, reached the latter city this afternoon.

Food Conservation Begins.

In a step to conserve food and supplies in the capital, the minister of agriculture today ordered that no merchandise or foodstuffs could be exported without special permission. Decrees regulating the volume and price of foodstuffs were issued early this month with the beginning of the revolt.

The extension of the business holiday, declared two weeks ago, until November 30, was made official this morning by proclamation of President Washington Luis. Banks were permitted to open today and functioned normally, except that they were not allowed to issue bills of exchange.

PUMPS RAISE LEVEL OF COLUMBIA ISLAND

SPAN WILL BE PAINTED

Work of raising Columbia Island to the level of the floor of Arlington Memorial Bridge has been started by the United States engineer's office, which is pumping tons of sand and gravel from the bottom of the Potomac River to be used in building up the island about 30 feet above its present height.

On the Washington end of the bridge, Maj. Joseph D. Arthur, district engineer for the War Department, has started to remove the triangular piece of earth which now lies at the river's edge between the water gate and the approach to Rock Creek and Potomac Parkway.

The earth thus removed is to be carried by a suction pipe line across the river to be used in building up Columbia Island. Removal of this triangular section will provide a clear unobstructed view of the bridge from the approach to the parkway.

Finishing touches are now being put on the $1,000,000 bascule-drawn span in the center of the bridge which raises to permit the passage of vessels up and down the river. The span will be painted to conform with the color of the granite of which the main terminal sections of the bridge are constructed.

Workmen already are busy with chisels and pneumatic hammers carving out the designs which are to adorn the granite. Several of the Roman fasces, or bundles of faggots, symbolic of authority, already are carved on the sides of the structure. Work is also being started on the first of four huge eagles which are to be raised above the circle to be constructed on Columbia Island at the point where roads leading to the Lee highway and the Mount Vernon highway will merge with the memorial avenue leading up from the Virginia bank of the river to the entrance to Arlington National Cemetery.

Gregg, Shorthand Man, Takes 30-Year-Old Bride

Gallup, N. Mex., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—John Robert Gregg, of New York, wealthy inventor of the Gregg system of shorthand, and Janet McKinley, daughter of David McKinley, former president of the University of Illinois, were married here today in a private ceremony at the home of C. N. Cotton, a relative of the bride.

When the marriage license was obtained, Gregg gave his age as 63 and the bride as 30. The couple left this afternoon for Albuquerque, from where they will go to New York. The wedding was the culmination of a romance which began on board a steamship in the Mediterranean about a year ago.

$350,000 Fraud Laid To Three Under Arrest

Newark, N. J., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Charged with swindling investors of more than $350,000 through the sale of worthless stock, James De Lyon Howth, New York promoter, was held in $100,000 bail today. With him were arrested Leroy J. Ellis, president of the New Jersey Accident Insurance Co. and the General Agency Corporation, and Lester MacBain, a director in both firms. They were held in $10,000 bail each.

Assistant Attorney General Grossman said the men had been selling worthless stock for a year and a half.

Pair of Suspects In Kidnaping Freed

Missouri Heiress Declares William Prater Is Not Her Captor.

Carthage, Mo., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Two suspects in the kidnaping October 13 of Mrs. Alma Wilson McKinley, Greenfield, Mo., heiress, were released today after the victim said that William Prater, held by officers since late yesterday, was not her abductor.

Mrs. Emory Hill, recently divorced wife of a Stotts City, Mo., banker, arrested with Prater, also was given her freedom. Prater is a Greenfield automobile salesman.

Mrs. McKinley, forced at the point of a gun to leave her home October 13 and kept in hiding 21 hours by a male abductor, came from Greenfield to view Prater. She was released without payment of ransom. Prater told authorities he was with Mrs. Hill until 8 o'clock the night of the kidnaping, which took place at about 7:30 p. m. Another suspect, arrested several days ago in Kansas City, also was released.

Blimp to Be Used in Tests To Develop New Fuel Gas

Largest Ninrigid U. S. Airship, When Constructed, to Be Employed in Seeking Combustible Material of Same Density as Air to Run Engines.

(Associated Press.)

The Navy Bureau of Aeronautics announced yesterday it had contracted for the construction of the largest nonrigid airship in the country for use by the Navy to develop a fuel gas which would replace gasoline.

The envelope for the ship now is being built by the Goodyear-Zeppelin Co. at Akron, Ohio, while the car is being constructed at the Philadelphia Naval Aircraft Factory.

The blimp, which will have a gas capacity of 320,000 cubic feet, is to be 220 feet long and 54 feet in diameter. The car will have a capacity of six persons. A speed of 50 miles an hour and a cruising range of 2,000 nautical miles is included in the ship's specifications.

The Navy Department long has sought a fuel gas of the same density as air so that equilibrium could be maintained in airship flying without the necessity of recovery of recovery water from consumed fuel. German scientists already have developed "blau gas" for use in driving the engines of the Graf Zeppelin.

The fuel reservoir of the new ship will be a special constructed gas cell laid inside the envelope along the bottom of the hull. As the cell deflates with loss of fuel, air will be sucked in to maintain its shape.

With the development of gas fuel to air in density, aeronautics experts say it will not be necessary to weigh the ship with apparatus designed to recover water from the exhaust, the method now used on the Los Angeles. With the new device air instead of valuable helium will be valved off to maintain equilibrium.

Military Patrols Egyptian Railways

Decree of New Election Law Brings Tension, but No Outbreaks.

Cairo, Egypt, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—A state of tension existed in Egypt today as a result of promulgation by King Fuad of a new constitution and election law. The newspapers reported an armored train patrolling the railway between Cairo and Assiut and another one between Cairo and Alexandria. Two more trains were held in readiness.

It also was stated that troops were dispatched to provincial centers, but early this evening quiet continued.

Thousands of co[illegible] of the new constitution and election law today were distributed throughout the country. The new constitution provides that the chamber of deputies must not exceed 150 members, elected by delegates each of whom represents 50 electors. The minimum voting age is fixed at 25. It has other drastic changes.

Lindbergh Balked By Fog on Journey

Colonel Was to Have Made Inspection Trip on Air Line's Route.

McKeesport, Pa., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—The weather, and there was all sorts of it, today thwarted completion of an inspection trip over the Eastern link of the new line of the Transcontinental-Western Air Transport, Inc., by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, chairman of the concern's technical advisory committee.

The colonel arrived at Bettis field here shortly before 1 p. m., from Harrisburg, refueled his ship, and started for Columbus, Ohio, where he expected to spend the night. He took off into fog and smoke, which made for poor visibility and forced the flier back to McKeesport after he had covered only a few miles of the distance to the Ohio capital.

Col. Lindbergh was expected to resume his trip tomorrow morning.

This Woman Fat and 40 Tells How She Reduced

Her Physical Attractiveness Compels Admiration

It was this way—I was reading the evening paper and right before my eyes was an article headed "How one woman lost 47 pounds of fat in three months" and you can just bet I woke up and got interested right away.

And all this woman did to lose all that fat was to take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast.

That seemed easy to me—I was sold on Kruschen Salts and took my first dose the next morning—that was four months ago.

Well, as you can all see, my fat is gone—I've gained a shapely figure—bright eyes—clear skin—and tireless energy—and I never felt better in my life.

Kruschen Salts (It's the Little Daily Dose That Does It) brings activity to mind and body—Its rejuvenating influences causes the stomach, liver and bowels to do their work naturally and faultlessly.

There is nothing so good as Kruschen—(remember the name) taken every morning—it causes every organ, nerve, gland and fiber in the body to function naturally. One woman lost 19 pounds in four weeks.

A bottle of Kruschen Salts that lasts 4 weeks cost but 85 cents at Peoples' Drug Stores or at any drug store in the world.

Mrs. Betty Luedeke, of Dayton, writes, "I am using Kruschen to reduce weight—I lost 10 pounds in one week and can not say too much to recommend it."—Adv.

$31.00 DOWN

Automatic Gas Heat AT LOW COST

BALANCE $9.30 PER MONTH

At such low initial outlay can you afford to be without this modern convenience?

There is no need for a big outlay of cash to install Bryant Gas Heating. Low initial cost and a generous time-payment plan eliminates that!

For instance, the 10% down payment on a Bryant Gas Boiler for the average Washington home falls within a range of from $31.00 to $39.00, with the balance extended over 30 months! The low monthly payments range from $9.30 to $11.70, or less than $2.70 per week! Larger homes are in proportion.

Not only is the cost of equipment well within your means, but with the new low house heating rate, the cost of operation is equally low. $84.00 to $190.00 is the range covering the majority of Washington homes.

An exact estimate with definite figures for your home can be obtained by calling our house heating department, National 8280.

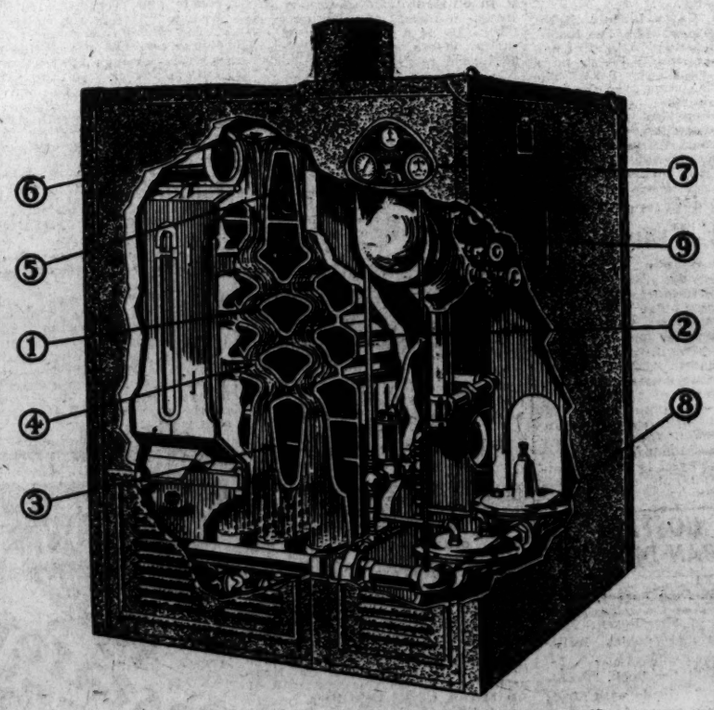
Model 45 Bryant Gas Boiler

Model 2 Bryant Gas Heater



Cut-away View of Model 45 Bryant Boiler

1. Cast-iron sections of the water-tube type present a large area of heat-absorbing surface.
2. Pitch of water-tubes promotes a definite, rapid circulation throughout the height of a Bryant Section preventing air bubbles from insulating the walls and assuring maximum heat transference.
3. Large lower tubes ribbed to present a high percentage of heating surface within the zone of the hottest gases.
4. Staggered gas travel contributes to maximum efficiency. The hot gases from each burner are so baffled back and forth, constantly rubbing heating surfaces, that only sufficient warmth is left in the gases to promote the necessary draft.
5. Large steam liberating area and ample steam chamber with baffle insure a steady water line and rapid steaming.
6. Integral draft-hood saves much headroom.
7. Gauge-panel centers at a single point the few gauges that ever call for passing inspection.
8. Manifold and controls enclosed, symbolic of their attentionless reliability.
9. Enduring crystalline finish adds to the handsome appearance of Bryant Boilers.

Parties Given As Diplomat Takes Leave

Maj. Gen. Pope-Hennessy Feted on Completion of Stay Here.

A WHIRL of parties attended the departure of Maj. Gen. L. H. R. Pope-Hennessy, C. B., D. S. O., retiring Military Attache of the British Embassy, who left Washington last night for New York, whence he will sail tonight on the Lectonia for London to enjoy a life of leisure until he receives a new appointment.

Dame Una Pope-Hennessy has been an absentee from the diplomatic group for some time. She left this country over a year ago, and has spent the greater part of the time in Switzerland, recuperating from an illness. She will meet Gen. Pope-Hennessy in London, and they will spend the winter in Switzerland.

Ranking officers of the Army attended the luncheon given by Gen. Pope-Hennessy at the Anchorage yesterday. His guests included the commandant of the Army War College, Maj. Gen. William D. Connor; Maj. Gen. Ewing E. Booth, Maj. Gen. Samuel Hof, chief of ordinance; Col. Harry M. Cootes, Col. Irving Carr, Col. Robert C. Foy, Maj. Hayes A. Kroner; Gen. Pope-Hennessy's successor, Col. Fitzmaurice Day; Capt. J. T. Godfrey and Mr. Ronald Ian Campbell, of the British Embassy staff.

In the afternoon military attaches of the various diplomatic missions entertained a small group at a reception in the Chinese room at the Mayflower for Gen. Pope-Hennessy, when gold braid and military decorations were the order of the day. The hosts were Senor Coronel don Francisco J. Aguilar Gonzales, of the Mexican Embassy; Lieut. Col. Marco Pennaroli and Commander Paolo Sbernadori, of the Italian Embassy; Maj. Joaquin P. Riera, of the Spanish Embassy; Capt. Enrique A. Prieto, of the Cuban Embassy; Lieut. Col. Zorobabel Galeno, of the Chilean Embassy; Col. Shohei Washizu, of the Japanese Embassy; Commander Twisleton-Wykeham-Fiennes, of the British Embassy; Col. Fitzmaurice Day, Col. Foy and Maj. Kroner.

The British Ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, was host to his countrymen at a small dinner at the embassy on Wednesday evening, when the guests included members of the staff.

Mrs. Fitzmaurice Day will not join her husband in Washington until December. She is fondly remembered in the Capital as Eleanora Morgan, and her arrival is anticipated by her many friends, who recall her from debutante days.

New Chief of Staff Expected November 18.

Maj. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who will succeed Gen. Charles P. Summerall as chief of staff on November 21, probably will reach Washington about three days earlier. He landed in San Francisco from Manila, where he has been stationed for some time, the middle of October and since that time has been taking a "swing around the circle" inspecting various Army corps areas, including Omaha and Chicago, where he spent some time.

After the retirement of Gen. Summerall and his departure from Fort Myer, where, with Mrs. Summerall, he has occupied the chief of staff's quarters, the new chief of staff will take over the interesting old house with his mother, Mrs. Arthur MacArthur, as hostess. Mrs. MacArthur is with her daughter-in-law, Mrs. MacArthur, jr., on Kalorama road.

The Chief of Staff and Mrs. Charles P. Summerall entertained at dinner last evening informally, when their guests were Maj. Gen. and Mrs. William D. Connor and Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Joseph C. Castner, of Fort Lewis, Wash. Gen. and Mrs. Castner are visiting Dr. and Mrs. Francis Hagner during their stay here.

The newly appointed Counselor of the Mexican Embassy, Dr. Don Pablo Herrera de Huerta, and Senora de Huerta have arrived in Washington from China, where Senor de Huerta has been on duty. They came to Washington by way of Guatemala.

Mr. Joseph Cotton Moves to Georgetown.

The Assistant Secretary of State, Mr. Joseph P. Cotton, has moved into his quaint Georgetown home at 1403 Thirtieth street from his former residence at 1701 Nineteenth street. His daughter, Miss Isabel Cotton, will again be his hostess this winter in the absence of Mrs. Cotton, who is not well and is spending the winter in the North.

Mr. John Farr Simmons, recently arrived in Mexico City as First Secretary of the American Embassy, has been designated by the Department of State to attend the immigration conference to be held in Mexico City, acting as special emissary.

Admiral William S. Sims, retired, and Mrs. Sims have left Newport, where they spent the summer, and are now at their home in Boston.

Mr. Edwin Denby, former Secretary of the Navy, by appointment of President Harding, and Mrs. Denby will sail today on the Ile de France for Europe. Also sailing on the steamer will be Mr. Gustave Meissner, representative of the American building committee to the International Colonial Exposition in Paris next year.

Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Reed, of New York, are at the Carlton for a few days.

Col. D. J. Carr will sail on the Pennland today from New York for France and will spend some time abroad.

Mr. and Mrs. Legare Return to Capital.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander B. Legare returned to their home on N street yesterday morning after a five months' absence from Washington. They spent most of the summer at York Village, Me., and en route to Washington stopped off for a few days in New York.

The Mayor of Boston, Mr. James M. Curley, accompanied by his daughter, Miss Mary D. Curley, are at the Willard.

Mrs. Mark Brooke and her daughter, Miss Hallie M. Brooke, left yesterday for New Orleans, where they will join Lieut. Col. Brooke, who is stationed there. They will return to Washington in February.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Campbell Worthington have sent out invitations for the marriage of their daughter, Miss Alice Rice Worthington, to Mr. Bishop Perkins Hill, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Alexander Hill.

The wedding will take place at noon, November 17, with a breakfast following at the Hay-Adams House.

Mrs. William Hugh Stokes and her young son will join Mr. Stokes in Baltimore, where they will make their home early next week. Mrs. Stokes has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Jackson Turner, at their home on nineteenth street.

The American Ambassador to Spain, Mr. Irwin Boyle Laughlin, will arrive in New York today on the Berengaria. He will be at the St. Regis, although he plans to come to Washington in a few days.

Mr. Laughlin is in this country on a 30-day leave of absence.

MISS HARRIET ANDERSON will be presented to society at a tea which her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chandler P. Anderson, will give at their home on November 18. They also will give a dance at Grasslands on December 6.

Virginia Home Is Purchased By Mr. Todd

Brother of Mrs. Gilbert Acquires Residence in Middleburg.

Mr. Jouett Todd, brother of Mrs. S. Parker Gilbert, jr., following a precedent set by countless others throughout the country, has purchased a home on the outskirts of Middleburg in the fashionable "blue grass" section of Virginia.

He has moved his lares and penates from Louisville, Ky., where his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Ross Todd, make their home, and is now established in Virginia indefinitely. The Todds, senior and junior, spend much time in the East, and it is natural that Mr. Todd should elect to live in Middleburg. He has many friends there and in Washington as well. He was graduated last June from the University of Virginia.

Mrs. Gilbert, who was Miss Louise Todd, and her husband, will doubtless make frequent visits to Middleburg during the coming winter. The Gilberts make their headquarters in New York, Mr. Gilbert having purchased an apartment at 30 Sutton place on his return from Europe last summer. He served as agent general for reparations under the Dawes plan and for a number of years he and Mrs. Gilbert made their home in Berlin.

Mr. and Mrs. John L. Bradford, of 1425 Rhode Island avenue, are at the Grove Park Inn, in the mountains of North Carolina, for several days.

The French Ambassador, M. Paul Claudel, who has returned from Maine after a few days' absence, entertained informally at tea yesterday afternoon for a number of French merchants who are traveling in this country.

Italian Envoy Gives Dinner At Embassy

Mr. James M. Curley, Mayor of Boston, and daughter, Miss Mary Curley.

Mr. Thomas W. J. Johnson, social director of Boston.

Mr. William P. Long, of Boston.

The Rev. Francesco Lardone, of the Catholic University.

Dr. Mario Dessaules, Italian consul at St. Louis.

Lieut. Col. Marco Pennaroli, military attache.

Nobile Andrea Soardi, secretary of the embassy.

The hostesses at the dinner of the Voteless District of Columbia League of Women Voters, tonight at 6:30 o'clock at Stoneleigh Court will be Mrs. James G. Cumming, Mrs. Harris T. Baldwin, Mrs. Alvin Dodd, Mrs. Mary E. Hull, Mrs. Edward Keating, Miss Ellen M. Rugg and Mrs. W. I. Swanton. The guests of honor and speakers will be Mr. Basil M. Manly, expert on economics, and Mr. Paul Gascoigne, radio director of the Republican National Committee, who will discuss "What the Tariff Will Do to the American Home." Mr. Gascoigne will support the tariff, with Mr. Manly presenting the adverse side of the question.

Attends School Here

Underwood & Underwood.

MISS EMILY DAVIS, daughter of Commander Archibald H. Davis, U. S. N., retired, and Mrs. Davis, has returned from Watch Hill, R. I., to attend school in Washington.

Mrs. Thomas G. Rees To Address Alliance.

Mrs. Thomas G. Rees, of Boston, president of the General Alliance of Unitarian Women, will be the guest of honor and speaker at the first regular meeting of the Women's Alliance of All Souls' Church this morning at 11 o'clock in Pierce Hall at Fifteenth and Harvard streets. Mrs. John L. Hyde will preside. Luncheon will follow the business meeting and address with Mrs. O. M. Johnson, hostess.

Dr. Lloyd Leaves For Health Parley.

Dr. Bolivar J. Lloyd, medical director of the United States Public Health Service, and assistant director of the Pan-American Sanitary Bureau, left Washington yesterday for Fort Worth, Tex., and Mexico City to attend a series of meetings of the American Public Health Association. In Fort Worth he will be joined by Surgeon General Hugh S. Cumming and Dr. Rafael Silva, director general of health of Mexico, who will accompany him to Mexico.

Dr. Cumming and Dr. Lloyd on their return, will stop off in Louisville, Ky., to attend a meeting of the Southern Medical Society, of which Dr. Cumming is president.

Following a custom established seven years ago Mrs. Helen Hay Hagner will give the first tea of the year for debutantes, receiving this afternoon at the Mayflower when she will be assisted by the debutantes of last year.

At the tea tables will be Mrs. George B. Pillsbury, Mrs. Arthur MacArthur, Mrs. George C. Minnegerode, Mrs. William Laird Dunlop, Mrs. Jennings Bailey, Mrs. Bowman MacArthur and Mrs. John Francis Shaw, daughter of Mrs. Hagner.

Mrs. Hoover To See Game In Princeton

First Lady and Group of Friends Will Watch Navy Play.

Mrs. Hoover will go to Princeton tomorrow to attend the Navy-Princeton football game. Accompanied by a party of friends, she will arrive there in time to have luncheon at Prospect, as the guest of President and Mrs. Hibben, and after the game at Palmer Stadium will return to Washington.

The Ambassador to Germany and Mrs. Frederic M. Sackett spent Wednesday night at the White House as guests of the Chief Executive and First Lady. They are sailing for Europe today.

Mrs. William Henry White has returned to Washington after an absence of three months. She is now in her home at 1729 Park road.

Mr. and Mrs. Harral Mulliken will present their daughter, Miss Eleanor Mulliken, at a tea at their home on Thanksgiving Day, November 27.

Mrs. W. Chapin Huntington will entertain the Society of Women Geographers tomorrow afternoon, at her residence, 1906 Twenty-third street. Tea will be followed by a business meeting at which officers and members of the executive council will be elected.

The commandant of Fort Myer, Col. Harry S. Cootes, and Mrs. Cootes will go tomorrow to the races at Montpelier, near Charlottesville, Va., and will pass the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Edward Taylor at their home, Edge Hill. On November 6 Col. Cootes will go to New York to show his horses at the Madison Square Garden Horse Show. The show will last through that week.

Mrs. Cootes will not announce the dates of her days at home until after Christmas, but on December 23 she and Col. Cootes will entertain at a tea at Fort Myer, when they will present their daughter, Miss Mary Dixon Cootes, to society. Miss Cootes is a student at Smith College, and will make her debut during her Christmas holiday.

The District committee of the Sons and Daughters of the Republic of the D. A. R. will hold a meeting tonight at 8 o'clock in the Mount Pleasant Public Library, where all the meetings this year will take place.

The chairman, Miss Elizabeth Marlott Barnes, has recently returned from the D. A. R. conference at Atlantic City. Miss Barnes will personally direct all the club activities, and assisting her will be Mrs. Paul Revere Roundy, Mrs. Williams, Miss Jean Warfield and Miss Caroline Isabel Babb.

Miss Mary Louise Chace entertained at dinner and bridge last evening at the American Association of Women's University Clubs.

Duchess' $500,000 Jewels Employed in Many Ways

Paris, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—A practical duchess, Loella, of Westminster, wife of one of England's wealthiest peers, possesses a coronet of diamonds and platinum valued at more than $500,000 that can be taken apart and worn as separate necklace, brooch and pair of earrings.

It was designed and made for her in the Rue de la Paix and is quite the last word in ensemble jewelery.

Three large diamonds, two almond shaped, form the central stones of the diadem. The almond shaped pair can be attached as pendants to the brooch, which is formed by the peak of the headdress.

All three large stones were in the possession of the Duke of Westminster at the time of his marriage about 18 months ago to Miss Ponsonby, who is the daughter of the treasurer of the King of England, Sir Frederick Grey Ponsonby.

Rugs and Talkies Beaten by Youth

Young Berliner Wins Hush Money From Distracted Director.

Berlin, Oct. 23.—Because he found out that when you beat a rug in the vicinity of a talkie studio the microphone will record honest-to-goodness gun shots, young Richard Frantz, 18-year-old Berlin humorist, is $20 richer. Paul Heidmann, a movie director, was reaching the climax of a talkie in his recording studio in Berlin. Absolute silence was ordered. Suddenly, as the hero was approaching his beloved on tiptoe, discordant blasts and shots registered in the recording room.

The electricians and guards were alarmed. A hectic search revealed Richard lustily beating a long carpet, with ten more piled up beside him. It was Saturday, the only day in the week when law abiding Berliners are allowed to beat carpets. Whoever interferes with the Saturday beating is punishable by law.

Japanese Admits Firing Bullet Into Consulate

San Francisco, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—An attache of the Japanese consulate admitted today accidentally firing a bullet through the window of the Guatemalan consulate.

The attache, whose name was not revealed, was handling an old revolver when it was discharged accidentally last night. The bullet sped out the window, glanced off a monument and went into the offices of the Guatemalan consulate. Today Consul General Kanane Wakasugi, of Japan, apologized to Consul General Juan Anino, of Guatemala.

Archbishop of Granada Succumbs at Saragossa

Saragossa, Spain, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Cardinal Vicente Casanova, Archbishop of Granada, died here this afternoon.

Cardinal Casanova was 76 years old. He was created a bishop in 1907, and in 1921 was created Archbishop of Granada. In March, 1925, he was elevated to cardinal. It was his principal life work to revive the sacred music of the liturgy. He established a college of seises (the sixes), groups of acolytes, to dance and chant according to ancient formal ritual in the cathedral during the ceremonies of Corpus Christi and on other special occasions.

New York City Plans To Feed Unemployed

New York, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—The city made preparations today to serve from 12,000 to 15,000 meals a day during the coming winter to the unemployed. Also 3,000 persons nightly will be sheltered in the municipal lodging house and a recreation pier, which is to be converted into barracks.

While these plans were under way Public Welfare Commissioner Frank Taylor estimated that there were already 10,000 persons homeless in the city. Police were checking up to see whether unofficial estimates that 800,000 were out of work were correct.

Sansevieria, "Lucky Plant"

In the Days of Cortez

—it was the belief that the golden stripe in the leaf had come from the pot of gold found near the roots of one of these plants, hence the name, "Lucky Plant".

It was considered unlucky to part with these plants and they were guarded and cared for by all members of the tribe, and today—they are still lucky because they are the best house plant ever introduced. The botanical name is

Sansevieria Laurentii

This novel house plant with its green and gold sword-like leaves will add quite a bit of cheer to the home or office.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

TREATING ECZEMA.

DR. J. H. STOKES lays down ten commandments for physicians who treat that great group of disorders which are carelessly grouped under the name eczema. Of these, the people themselves, as distinguished from the physicians, should have knowledge.

1. Search for the external excitant. Many cases of eczema are the result of exposure of the skin to substances that poison it. Among these are the cases of occupational eczema due to photographer's chemicals, the surgeon's formalin or bichloride hands, the groceryman's sugar eczema, the laundry woman's soap eczema. In this group belong the fur eczema, the glove eczema and the tetters due to dyes. Among addicts, the occupational eczemas lead all the rest.

2. Reduce the amount of carbohydrates in the diet. It is necessary to have close knowledge of what is eaten to make a diagnosis of diet eczema. The usual recital of one's diet is apt to be misleading. A period of stay in a sanitarium, where the daily intake of food is closely watched and recorded, may be necessary. Among the carbohydrates found most frequently at fault are the sugars, cereals and breads. This is the usual cause of the eczemas in babies, which usually go by such names as tetter and headscald.

3. Look for ringworm and other infections of the skin with bolds, yeasts and bacilli of the type which cause this group of diseases. Eczema of the feet, under the arms and in the head of the adult, is apt to be of this type.

4. Expect less of the laboratory. Dr. Stokes recognizes the value of skin tests, sensitization tests, and laboratory examinations. At the same time, he thinks we are depending too much on them. The whole history should be studied, a complete examination should be made, and the laboratory study should be given its proper weight. The tendency is to unload all responsibility of diagnosis on laboratory procedures. This fourth commandment leads to the fifth.

5. Study the nervous system of every case of eczema. In some the symptoms are due wholly to nerves. In others nerves supply the entire foundation work on which the superstructure is built.

6. Keep away from water and soap and learn to juggle greases, ichthyol, and tars, and especially coal tars.

7. Use X-rays sparingly, quartz lamp oftener, and calcium oftenest.

WON'T AFFECT CHILDBIRTH.

Mrs. E. G. C. writes:

My sister is 26 years old. She has had stomach ulcers or ulcer for the last two years, which apparently have been healed by milk and cream, diet, &c. She now expects to be married very soon.

Is there any danger in her having children? Would her former trouble cause any ill effects in a child?

REPLY.

No.

Jane Corbin INTERPRETS the MODE

New York, October 23.

WE always think of lace dresses as belonging to summer, but many a lace dress appears in the winter collections this year. Everywhere you see them with a colored velvet belt, unless it be a black velvet bent, and very often the graceful lady who is wearing such a gown has either shoes to match her belt or else carries a handkerchief or a fan, or less often, to be sure, wears an artificial flower of this bright color.

• • • •

'Tis said that Lady Mountbatten first wore plain pumps of silver kid with her very new little silver belt. These simple silver belts are everywhere seen with both black and white gowns and very often are accompanied by the silver kid pumps, to be sure.

• • • •

"J'aime le tabac, nous dit-elle, parce qu'il est un puissant stimulant de l'intelligence et de l'imagination." So says S. A. Princesse Lucien Murat about smoking—she loves to smoke because it is a stimulant to the intelligence and to the imagination.

I still say that a really elegant and fastidious woman does not smoke. Nor could my intelligence ever be stimulated to the point where I would be willing to think that tobacco-scented breath and nicotine-stained fingers were worth enduring for the amount of enjoyment I could get from smoking.

• • • •

Many fans have written in and asked me what they could do about nicotine-stained fingers, other than scrubbing them with pumicestone. You can ask your doctor the next time you have occasion to see him for a simple prescription which you can have filled in the drug store to remove the stains, and better than that, you can use a cigarette holder, if you just must smoke in order to convince yourself that you are a modern woman.

• • • •

Be smart and send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to us this week for the leaflet of novel costume ideas, whether you are going to attend a Halloween party or not. Because it's chuck full of the most unusual costumes that you never even suspected could be thought up, and they are costumes that suit any kind of a masquerade party, whether it be carnival week in Panama or the rose carnival at Monte Carlo or a mardi gras at the Lido. Address your letter to the Dare Department at The Washington Post, you know.

• • • •

So I sketched a smart blue woolen coat for you, from Philippe et Gaston, my dears! 'Twas trimmed in ermine, too, and had its air of simple smartness which I always look for on things that I sketch for you.

• • • •

Did I ever tell you that the French-Maid-Who-Is-Spanish takes grease spots and such like out of my dresses by so simple a thing as covering the spot on both the right and the wrong side with French chalk? You leave it on a few hours, brush it out vigorously, and if you've caught the spot while it was fairly fresh there won't be any more.

I'll tell you more about this tomorrow.

• • • •

It's clever to have a beret made from the same material as your sports or street ensemble this fall. Especially is this a cunning idea for children, let alone a practical one for those rainy days!

• • • •

You should resolve now that you'll look for the weekly Dare fashion letter in The Washington Post every Sunday.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

"The Rule Book."

DEAR MISS M'DONALD: I am 16 and have been reading your advice to girls my age. I wish you would help me.

Since I was 14 I have been going with one boy after another. All these friendships were harmless, my mother approved of them, and, although the boys came to my house often, I never went out with them.

Then last year I went into high school. I began to go out with older boys. I still kept to my "old-fashioned" ideals and never let any of them kiss me. Then I met a boy whom I cared for very much. He was and is one of the finest boys I've ever known. He came to my house and took me to dances, but he never let a date interfere with his studies and athletics. Of course, I respected and admired him all the more for this. The very first time he took me out I let him kiss me. I felt vaguely that I would regret it and I was right. Once I had taken the plunge I could not stop and simply lived for the next time I would see him.

Finally I began to see that he was not the type who could care for a girl as much as I cared for him. He had never told me he cared, never said anything that he could in any way reproach himself with afterward. One of my chums suddenly blazed into popularity and he seemed interested in her so I backed out and never lifted a finger to keep him. But the next month or so was like a nightmare to me. I tried to hate him, but I knew that it wasn't his fault that I fell for him. More than anything I regretted letting him kiss me. If I had not done that, we would have been good friends and nothing more. I was bitter and cross and my popularity rated at zero. Then the summer vacation came mercifully and I am quite myself again, only much wiser.

Now I'm wondering how to act to him next term when I see and talk to him again. How shall I behave to boys in the future? Do you think I'll ever have an experience like that again? GYPSY.

Like most of the things that happen to us in this life, Gypsy dear, I believe that what happened was all for the best. I will tell you why. And how I know. In this day of digging for "experience" it is a blessing when the first experience brings home the truth. You know now without real tragedy just why it pays to preserve your own serenity to remain mistress of the situation no matter what unexpected turns it may take. You know now what was wrong with your technique. You know why it is best for the man to do the regretting. You have learned about all you need to know and have learned it without any serious loss.

You mention in your letter that the boy "never let you interfere with his work" and that you "respected and admired him all the more for that." There is where woman can learn from man. Only a weak man goes all to pieces over a woman. His work, whatever it happens to be, his own vital interests are guarded and remembered in the very midst of his love. Woman should profit by his example. Some women do. And how they profit. Woman has a few interests to guard and remember in the midst of her love. And she is learning to guard and remember them. No longer is woman just a slave waiting for her big moment. She is a reasoning being and she knows that there are rules and knows why they were important to success. Sometimes she learns through bitter experience. Sometimes through some fortunate incident, as you have done. You will never make the same mistake again, and will have all the more attention and devotion for having learned the rules.

As to meeting the boy again. Greet him cordially and happily as if you have had just the finest summer of your life, be friendly, happy and date him if he asks you. But when he offers to be the world's greatest lover again, just tell him you believe you have grown up. Tell him just that and not another word. It is plenty. It covers the ground. It tells the truth. It removes any reproach that might attach in his infantile mind to your conduct and reestablishes you perfectly and with a new interest. And then stick to the rule book. Your life's romance is not within the walls of any high school, so keep the decks clear. Enjoy yourself to the full, have every date you want but keep the decks clear for the real thing. And write me again in a month and tell me how things are coming. Will you do that?

This column is for you! Your experiences, opinions and suggestions will help those who read this page. Express your views and help those in need of advice. You need not sign your name.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

WHEN WATERING HOUSE PLANTS.

SO many readers ask me, "How often do house plants need water?" Of course, the answer to this question depends on several things. First, the variety must be considered, a plant which in its native state grows on a desert requires much less water than does a plant which is a dweller of some marshy place. Slow-growing plants will as a rule stand a great deal of neglect in regards to moisture. Then rapid-growing varieties or those producing blossoms require more water than those that are resting.

We must use judgment when caring for plants, just as we would do if we were caring for children. They should not be allowed to wilt before they are watered nor should they be watered every day.

This prompts the question, "How shall I know when they need water?" An experienced grower can tell by rapping a pot if the plant needs water. Where the soil is dry the pot gives forth a different sound from the one you hear if the soil is moist.

It is always better to water any plant thoroughly or not at all. Plants growing in small pots are frequently filled with roots; merely wetting the surface of the soil means that the lower roots in the pot are always dry. This, in a short time, lowers the general vitality of the plants and they begin to shed their leaves, lose their luster and fail to put forth new growth. And all plant lovers know that when plants get into such a condition they are soon the prey of not one but many insect enemies.

At frequent intervals most all house plants should be set in a tub of water and be left to soak up all the water they will take. It is a good thing to spray them about once in ten days. This improves their general condition and keeps the foliage brighter.

During dull weather, as a rule, all house plants require less water. When the sun is shining the evaporation is greater and they then require more moisture.

Too much water during the dull weather of midwinter frequently causes the leaves to turn yellow and the buds to fall off. In November and December many readers complain of the buds of fuchsias falling. It is nearly always a case of too much water.

What Today Means to You

"SCORPIO."

IF October 24 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a. m. to 12:30 p. m., from 5 p. m. to 6 p. m., and 10 p. m. to 11:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 9 a. m. to 10 a. m. and 11 p. m. to midnight.

Astrological influences on this date favor an active life, particularly physical exertions. Events will show that only the best horses are handicapped. A journey and small change are shown. Do not entrust important matters to others—"If you would have your business done, go; if not, send."

The child born on this October 24 will have an active, restless spirit, but a frank, honest, sincere, loyal and liberty-loving nature. It will be drawn toward science, philosophy and religion. It will possess warm affections and sympathy, and will never be able to accumulate material possessions.

Being born under the sign of Scorpion, you should have a very determined, reserved, tenacious and secretive nature. You have unmistakable traits of character that cause you to be either very much liked or very much disliked. Your somewhat suspicious nature causes you to be distrustful and your vindictiveness and fault finding tendencies may be carried to an abnormal degree. Amidst your traits, you have that grit and backbone which enables you to achieve higher attainments than most of those born in other signs. If the desire is awakened, you will be able to completely overcome your most odious faults, or to so harness them that they will work for your good. Your passional, animal instincts are very strong, but when they have been conquered and temperance learned, you will be able to rise to great spiritual heights. It has been said "the greater the animal the greater the man."

You are endowed with an "eagle eye," and an insatiable thirst for finding out the true nature of things. Many occult researchers, chemists, inductive philosophers and detectives owe their faculties to this sign. You can criticise perfectly and impartially, and you are able to give your judgment in a decisive and clear manner.

A series of difficulties in the early part of your life will eventually lead on to honors and success. You will not find your true mate early in life, and it is probable that you will marry more than once.

Guiding Your Child

GOODIES.

By MRS. AGNES LYNE.

No conscientious mother today permits her child a too free indulgence of sweets.

She has probably learned to satisfy her child's natural desire for candy by allowing him one piece daily just after dinner. This usually works very nicely, except where the child is tempted by offers of candy from other children or when he is visiting at other people's homes.

These temptations are bound to prove too much for him if he is expected to refuse them absolutely. If he does have sufficient self-control to pass up a treat his playmates may feel that he is trying to be superior, and then feel some hostility toward his priggishness.

Children vary a good deal as to the amount of sweets that they can take without loss of appetite or suffering from indigestion.

If a child seems unaffected by occasional off-schedule candy, there is no point in restricting him, but if his appetite or his digestion is impaired there is need for careful regulation.

It is usually possible to get him to cooperate if we do not make cooperation too hard. We must try as far as possible to protect him from temptation.

We may suggest that he can accept proffered candy, but that he must keep it to eat after his dinner. We may keep him supplied with substitute sweets made of ground dry fruits and nuts instead of the usual chocolate and sugar variety.

These "health candies" may be made at home with an ordinary food-grinder and such sweet fruits as dates and figs as well as dried prunes, apricots and peaches, sweetened and flavored with honey and lemon and rolled in fresh cocoanut or decorated with nuts.

Alumni Luncheon to Be Saturday.

The General Alumni Association of George Washington University will hold the first of its monthly luncheons on Saturday, November 1, at 12:30 o'clock at the Lafayette Hotel. Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of the university, will speak.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

(Bureau of Animal Industry.)

Flank steak.
1½ cups bread crumbs.
1 teaspoon salt.
⅛ teaspoon pepper.
1 onion, minced.
½ cup chopped celery.
2 tablespoons butter or beef drippings.

Wipe the meat with a damp cloth. For the stuffing, brown the celery and the onion slightly in the fat and combine with the other ingredients. Spread the stuffing over the steak. Beginning at one side of the steak, roll it up like a jelly roll, and tie securely in several places with clean string. (When carved in slices, the meat will be cut across the grain, if rolled from the side, not the end.) Sear in a small quantity of fat in a heavy skillet or a baking pan on top of the stove, and turn the meat frequently until browned on all sides.

Slip a rack under the meat in the pan, cover closely, and cook in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) for one and a half hours, or until tender. When the meat is done, remove from the pan and prepare gravy as follows: Drain off the fat. For each cup of gravy desired measure two tablespoons of fat and return to the pan, add 1½ to 2 tablespoons of flour and stir until well blended and slightly browned. Then add 1 cup of cold water or milk and stir until smooth. Season with salt and pepper. Serve the stuffed steak with browned potatoes.

IT WAS LOCKED

By JOHN HAWK.

READ THIS FIRST.

The Earl of Winston's body is found in the room of Robin Smith, young poet, at a house party at Alston Manor. Robin has attended so he may see Lady Gwendolen Winston, with whom he is desperately in love. In a fit of anger the poet locks his door and jumps out of the window, returning to his attic room. The next day he is arrested and the various members of the party testify at the coroner's inquest. Bruce Armstrong, his same hunter, is on the stand.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER 19.

"You seem to have pretty accurate information. Unfortunately, I can't recall my exact words, nor Mr. Smith's agreement with me. However, I should expect any intelligent man to agree to the obvious unreasonableness of the existing state of affairs. * * *"

"You condone murder?" interrupts the coroner.

"Not at all! I neither defend nor criticize the state of affairs. I only point it out. * * * "

"But it is possible that a young and impetuous person hearing your views might be fired to act on their implicaton;"

"I think it is extremely unlikely." The explorer's clear blue eyes stare out from under his bushy eyebrows at the coroner, and from him to the twelve men of the jury. "In fact I don't believe it is possible that my detached and wholly intellectual remarks aroused more than an equally detached and purely intellectual acquiescence from any one present."

"That is for the gentlemen of the jury to consider," returns the coroner suavely. "Now will you tell us whether you noticed any unusual event which led you before the discovery of the body to think that something might be wrong?"

"I observed one thing which may or may not be significant, but which every one else has failed for some reason to mention. I refer to the fact that when Lord Winston and Prince Pozolevsky were introduced, the prince declined to shake the hand Lord Winston extended in greeting."

Robin raises his head at this new turn of affairs. It is a relief to hear another name mentioned in a doubtful manner, although he wishes the prince no harm. He strains his ears to catch every word.

The jury, no less than Robin, showed a reawakened interest in the evidence. There is a new liveliness, a new eagerness in their faces. Until then it had seemed a foregone conclusion that the poet was guilty. But here, in the words of the explorer, they scent what might be an unexpected twist to the case.

"You interpret that as possibly indicating unpleasant relations between these two men?"

"I most certainly do."

"Yet no one else so interpreted it. And it has been testified that Prince Pozolevsky had no acquaintance with Lord Winston prior to that meeting."

"I should want to verify that fact."

The coroner is seen to frown with annoyance. He had not anticipated this turn of events. He eyes the tall, broad-shouldered witness with perplexity.

"You base your doubt of the prince entirely on this one act, which may be a perfectly natural one?"

"I do not!"

The gentlemen of the jury start. The representatives of the press lean forward.

"What else occurred which you consider of consequence?"

"I consider it worth noting that when Lady Gwendolen was worried and inquiring as to the whereabouts of her brother, Prince Pozolevsky muttered under his breat, "The devil take him!"

"He said that?" The coroner is obviously astonished.

"He said 'Tehort poberi evo,' which is the Russian equivalent."

"It had nothing to do with it! Nothing!" he shouts.

The explorer shrugs his shoulders.

For the first time that morning the faces of the twelve men become really expressive of some emotion other than curiosity. Some seem excited, some incredulous, all are now interested as they had not been before in the actual proceedings of the case, in the mystery of the murder, dissociated from the personality of those concerned.

Robin turns his head and stares at the prince, whose face is intensely pale, and whose eyes burn with an unnatural brilliance. He feels that the foreigner is in the grip of a violent emotion, and silently prays that he may in some way be cleared. Yet at the same time he has a fellow feeling with the foreigner almost as if he were his brother in danger. It makes him less alone. He knows now that it was the aloneness which was so unbearable.

"You noticed other peculiar things?"

"I have told you all." Again that singular smile.

At which the coroner nods and dismisses the explorer, who returns to his chair with a curious inward look in those clear blue eyes, a look of great concentration.

"Samuel Miller."

Robin starts as the unfamiliar name is called. He looks about wonderingly, and sees a plainly dressed, oldish man extricate himself from the group which has gathered in the doorway. It is no one whom Robin has ever seen before.

"I understand," begins the coroner in the same opening words he has used throughout, "that you are the head gardener here at Alston Manor?"

"I am, your honor."

"About two days ago you made an interesting discovery. Tell the gentlemen of the jury about it."

"It was the morning after the poor young lord was murdered, your honor, and I was cleaning up the garden as usual with me on Saturdays, upset though I was by the happening at the house. And as I was clearing away a paper here maybe, and a cigarette stump there, I saw something shining among the bushes. The thickest bushes grow in that part of the garden, so I had to crawl some way to get my hand on the shining thing. And when I got to where it was I saw that there was two things close together. They weren't lying on the ground, but caught in the thick foliage. They were so deep in I thought to myself at the time: 'These things must have been thrown a good way and pretty hard to get so firm and deep.' And after I'd thought that I pulled the things out. They were silver, I thought; silver and glistening jewels. I took them right in to my mistress—being an honest man who is careful of his reputation—I took them right to my mistress and she says——"

"What did she say?" Every ear is straining to hear.

"She says," the witness continues after turning the matter around in his mind for the best way to put it, "she says: 'Why, if these aren't Lord Winston's watch and cigarette case! Where in the world did you find them, Miller?' And I says, says I: 'I found them in the thick bushes by the entrance walk, Your Ladyship.' 'How could they have come there?' she says, more surprised. 'Some one threw them there. That's how they come,' says I——"

"Thrown in. From the walk to the road, you'd say?"

"They could have been, but I'd say from a height, sir, if you want my opinion."

"But they could have been thrown by one in flight down the walk?"

"Yes, sir."

"That will do, Miller." With a friendly nod the coroner dismisses the witness.

Robin has little difficulty in seeing the trend of that evidence. Who but he should be fleeing down the walk? It is all so damnable; so inevitable. First, the locked door (God knows why he had locked it), now the finding of these belongings of the murdered man. He's surely being pursued by a malicious fate. It is futile even to hope; yet a spark of hope had quickened his pulse when the explorer was giving his testimony, only to be extinguished by this gardener.

"Robin Smith" The stentorious tones of the coroner calling his name awoke Robin from his reverie with a start. He springs nervously to his feet and walks mechanically to the foreground, trying with all his might to appear at ease and self-contained.

"Robin Smith." The coroner repeats the name more slowly, as if washing to impress evry syllable on his audience. "You have heard the evidence. You have heard how the dead man was discovered in your room with the door locked. How his valuable watch and cigarette case were found near the path where you passed to the main road in your midnight flight to the city. Now that the men of the jury may judge wisely, tell in your own way and your own words how your door came to be locked with a dead man inside, and how you came to leave in so curious and sudden a fashion. By curious, I refer to the fact that you left by the window instead of by one of the doors, and by sudden I mean without taking leave of your hostess, nor even telling her it was your intention to depart, but letting her think you had gone to your room to get your poems to read."

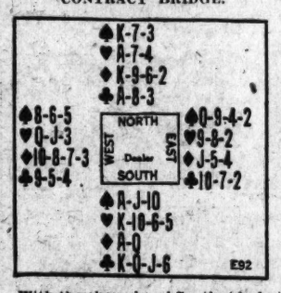
WORK ON BRIDGE

CONTRACT BRIDGE.



With the above hand South (dealer) having a count of 21, bid three No Trumps. West passed, and North with a count of 14 (a wonderfully high count considering that South had bid three No Trumps), had the strength to bid for a small slam but showed his strength gradually hoping to produce a grand-slam bid. Instead of bidding six No Trumps, North bid four Clubs thereby showing the Ace of Clubs and a count of at least 5 more on the side. South, having bid the full strength of his hand, was compelled to bid four No Trumps to show that he had no interest in a slam. North, however, had strength to go on without South's further cooperation and bid five Hearts to show the Ace of Hearts. Seeing that North was bent on slamming, South now gave the information that he held the Spade Ace by bidding five of that suit. North then called six No Trumps.

It was a close question whether South should have gone on to seven No Trumps in view of all the strength that North had shown; he was conservative in not doing so because his 21 was a minimum for an original three No Trump bid.

With the Diamond suit opened and East playing the Jack, Declarer won with the Ace, and then led four rounds of Clubs. On the fourth Club lead West discarded the Five of Spades, dummy the Trey of Spades and East the Four of Diamonds. Then South led the Jack of Spades, won with the King in dummy, returned the Seven of Spades and finessed the Ten which held the trick.

After that South led the Ace of Spades, and this lead troubled West. The Declarer was marked with the King of Hearts and very probably the Queen of Diamonds. Therefore West could not afford to discard from either suit, but he must do so. He chose the Heart and South then led the Queen of Diamonds which captured a trick, and then a small Heart. West false-carded with the Queen and dummy won with the Ace. Dummy led the King of Diamonds, then a Heart; Declarer playing the King and making thirteen tricks.

Women Plan Fight On Prohibition Act

Meeting Today Will Seek Way to Aid Drive of Crusaders.

Ways and means of cooperating with the Washington Crusaders in preelection assaults on the prohibition law will be discussed at a board meeting of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition reform, to be held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at the home of Mrs. William Beverley Mason, 1738 M street northwest.

The organization was formed last spring and more than 2,000 members were enrolled before activities were suspended in the summer. While many social registerites have joined, leaders of the movement deny that it is a "society women's" association. Mrs. Mason, who is secretary of the local chapter, said yesterday that "we want women from all walks of life to join us in organizing attacks on a law that is corrupting our children."

Other officers are Miss Belle Gurnee, chairman, and Mrs John F. Dryden, treasurer.

Modern Marquisettes Recall Quaint Styles

Mix ingredients. Spread on buttered slices of thinly cut white bread. Arrange sandwich fashion, cut off crusts with sharp knife. Roll in damp cloth and store in bread box until time to serve.

White Cream Cheese Filling for 25 Sandwiches.

4 tablespoons finely chopped green peppers.
½ cup chopped pimento stuffed olives.
4 tablespoons salad dressing.
1 tablespoon cream.

Mix ingredients with a fork. When very soft, spread on buttered slices of thinly cut graham bread. Arrange sandwich fashion.

Hot Chocolate, Serving 18.

4 cups water.
1½ cups sugar.
¼ teaspoon salt.
12 cups milk.
1 cup whipped cream.

Mix the chocolate, water, sugar and salt. Cook slowly, stirring frequently, until the mixture becomes thick and creamy. Add the milk. Cook until well mixed and hot. Beat for two minutes. This prevents a scum from forming on the top when the chocolate stands a few minutes. Pour into cups and top with portions of the whipped cream.

Fruit Cake.

(A Rich Cake.)

1 cup butter.
2 cups light brown sugar.
5 eggs.
½ cup grape juice.
3 tablespoons lemon juice.
2 teaspoons vanilla.
4 tablespoons sour cream.
2 teaspoons cinnamon.
1 teaspoon cloves.
1 cup chopped figs.
1 cup chopped raisins.
½ cup chopped nuts.
½ cup chopped candied pineapple.
½ cup chopped candied orange rind.
4 cups flour.
½ teaspoon soda.

Cream the fat and sugar. Add eggs and beat three minutes. Add rest of ingredients. Pour into two greased loaf pans. Bake 1½ hours in very slow oven.

A sweet filling for sandwiches can be made by mixing chopped dates, figs and raisins with a little sweet cream. Spread on buttered slices of graham bread, this makes a suitable sandwich for the child's lunch box.

Ford's New 'Log Cabin' Has 14 Rooms, 7 Baths

Marquette, Mich., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—A new summer "cottage" has been built at the exclusive Huron Mountain Club, near Big Bay, on Lake Superior, for Henry Ford. It is built of faced logs brought from the Ford mills at Pequaming, and it is 108 feet long by 68 feet wide. There are fourteen large living rooms, seven baths and four fireplaces. It is provided with servants' quarters, a laundry and has four screened porches, the largest 42 feet long.

One side of the house faces Lake Superior and the other looks out on Pine River.

Too much ACID

Many people, two hours after eating, suffer indigestion as they call it. It is usually excess acid. Correct it with an alkali. The best way, the quick, harmless and efficient way, is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained for 50 years the standard with physicians. One spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in stomach acids, and at once. The symptoms disappear in five minutes.

You will never use crude methods when you know this better method. And you will never suffer from excess acid when you prove out this easy relief. Please do that—for your own sake—now.

Be sure to get the genuine, prescribed by doctors for conditions due to excess acid. It is always a liquid; it cannot be made in tablet form. Look for the name Phillips' and the word genuine in red.

GLEAMY WHITE TEETH AND A SWEET BREATH

Try Phillips' Dental Magnesia Tooth-paste just once and see for yourself how white your teeth become. Write for a free ten-day tube. Address The Phillips Co., 170 Varick St., New York, N. Y.

MONTPELIER RACES SET FOR TOMORROW

President Madison's Estate Will Be Scene of Annual Event.

PUBLIC TO BE ADMITTED

Special to The Washington Post.

Culpeper, Va., Oct. 23.—Saturday will mark the sixth annual joint meeting of the Foxcatcher Hounds Hunt Club and the Montpelier Hunt Club, to be held at Montpelier, and races have been scheduled for the afternoon. Three of the races will be on the Montpelier track, one of the best private tracks in the East, and three will be steeplechases.

The steeplechases are across rolling country, with stiff jumps on hilltops, and the Foxcatcher Plate, a three and one-quarter mile over this course is a gruelling test of horseflesh. The plate offered in this race must be won twice by the same owner to secure permanent possession, and in five previous renewals of the race no owner has yet managed to do it. The winners heretofore are: 1925, Mr. West's Ben Hampshire; 1926, Mrs. K. N. Gilpin's Ben Hampshire; 1927, Irvin Beaver's Burton II; 1928, S. W. Carver's Louvois Pride; 1929, Fox Chapel Farms' Merry Widow.

The Bellevue, a mile and three-quarter flat race, has only been run four times and was won in 1926-27 and 1929 by Foxcatcher Farms' entries, Louise Leith's Mons Meg taking it in 1928. William duPont, of Wilmington and the Foxcatcher Farms, rode his own entry, War Eagle, a Man o' War colt, to an easy victory in this race last year.

The races are held on the historic Montpelier estate, in front of the old home of President Madison, and the public is admitted without charge. Last year there were about 2,000 in attendance, and a larger crowd is expected this year.

Those on the racing committee are Mrs. T. H. Somerville, Jack Skinner, John W. McComb, Hugh B. Craig, V. Bedford, William duPont and T. H. Somerville.

University Extends Leave of Dr. Wilbur

San Francisco, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur's leave of absence as president of Stanford University was extended for a year by the board of trustees tonight. Simultaneously the board extended the appointment of Dr. Robert E. Swan as acting president.

Dr. Wilbur requested the extension to continue his duties as Secretary of the Interior.

MAN, 27, WED FOUR TIMES, FACES TERM

SENTENCE IS POSTPONED

Ralph I. Meighan, with four wives to his credit in the 27 years of his life, pleaded guilty in a Baltimore court yesterday to a charge of bigamy. The man's third wife, with whom he is living in Bladensburg, told the court that she wanted him back. The judge postponed sentence, pending a report of the probation officer of the Maryland city.

Meighan is legally married to Mrs. Bessie Meighan, number three, who said she wants him back. But early in 1929 he married Miss Mary K. Balster, of Clarendon, Va., leaving her after a few months to return to Bessie.

Meighan's record runs something like this—Married at 15; married again, jailed for marrying again; escaped jail; married again; married again; arrested again. He claims that being jailed for the first bigamy was illegal, as his first wife had died before he married the second one. He admits that he escaped from a South Carolina jail, however.

Robert W. McCullough, an attorney of Bladensburg, appeared in the Baltimore court for Meighan. The man was tried there because he married the Virginia woman in that city.

BUSH GUN TRACED BACK THREE YEARS

INQUEST SET FOR TODAY

While a Nation-wide search is being conducted for William J. Carnell, wanted in the killing of Louis Bush, bus owner, who was fatally shot on the night of October 6, police here are completing the chain of evidence to present against him when captured and returned to Washington

The capture is momentarily expected. It is definitely known, from information given by Frank Mahoney, who was returned after his capture in Pittsburgh, that Carnell had less than $30 in his possession.

Inspector William S. Shelby, in charge of the man-hunt, is expecting a report from Edwin R. Donaldson, police microscopist, telling whether the blood found on an overcoat Carnell is alleged to have sold to a boy for $4 and which was later found in a Seventh street second hand shop is really human blood, and whether it is the blood of the man who was killed. The report will probably not be made for several days.

Fatal Weapon Traced.

In the event that the coat does reveal human blood a further test is to be made to determine whether it is Carnell's or Bush's blood

Mahoney, who is said to have admitted to police that he drove Carnell to the scene of the shooting and later drove away when he heard the report of the revolver, was quoted yesterday as declaring he "wanted to make a clean confession of all he knew in the case," and trust to his alleged ignorance of the shooting affair to save him from a charge of murder.

Police yesterday afternoon also traced the gun used in the killing back for three years, when it was in the possession of a man who lent Mahoney $5 on it and later allowed him to redeem it Friday, October 3, for the same amount. The man's name was not disclosed by the police, but he was reported to be a boarder in the home of a District policeman.

William H. McKay, 25-year-old stonemason, who was arrested on the night Mahoney was returned from Pittsburgh in the custody of Detective Sergt. Thomas Sweeney, was said by police to have been with Mahoney when the gun was redeemed. He is still being held at the Tenth Precinct for further questioning. Both he and Mahoney were questioned for more than an hour at headquarters yesterday afternoon.

Inspector Shelby announced late yesterday that an inquest would be held at the District Morgue this morning at 11:30 for the purpose of fixing the blame for the death and naming the ones to be held responsible for the deed.

Carnell's Mother to Appear.

Mrs. Sarah Margaret Sullivan, 60-year-old mother of Carnell, is expected to tell the coroner's jury how her son held her under a threat of death while he was hiding in the attic of the home where the bloody clothing of Carnell was found. She has been held without charges at the House of Detention pending the inquest.

Mahoney yesterday told police of how he had been befriended by Bush when he was released from the District Workhouse at Occoquan in January, 1926, where he had served a six months' term for grand larceny. He applied at the Fourteenth street office of the Gray Line Sightseeing Co., explaining his past to Bush personally, and the wealthy man's sympathy was instantly aroused, so much so that he immediately gave him a job and arranged with officials of the Traffic Bureau to issue a driver's permit to Mahoney on his own responsibility after they had hesitated because of the man's past history.

Then, for the best part of three years, Mahoney lived up to the expectations of Bush and his subordinate officers. Until he was temporarily dropped from the pay roll when the slack tourist season came this fall he worked steadily at the job.

"He was like a father to me," Mahoney is quoted as saying to police, "and we parted the best of friends when I left his employ recently, little dreaming of what was to come."

Australia Raids Red Groups.

Melbourne, Australia, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—The police conducted a series of raids today on alleged Communist groups in the course of which 23 persons were arrested, including the secretary of the organization. Searchers said they found under a floor in the Communist headquarters ammunition and Soviet propaganda.

IN THE PLAYHOUSE

By JOHN J. DALY

AFTER playing a year at His Majesty's Theater in London, Miss Peggy Wood, starred in "Bitter Sweet," is now about to have a rest and may eventually be seen in a new offering on Broadway. Evelyn Laye, who made such a hit in the New York version of "Bitter Sweet" last season, is now on the high seas, ready to relieve Peggy Wood—for her homecoming. The upshot of it all is that Washington will certainly not see "Bitter Sweet" this year, the departure of Evelyn Laye for other shores cancelling the contemplated American tour.

Among the comedians who stand ace high in the National Capital is one W. C. Fields, whose antics last graced the Earl Carroll Vanities here. Since then Mr. Fields moved to Hollywood and turned out several short-reel comedies—good, bad and indifferent. Now he is back on Broadway again and is about to be featured in a new comedy, to be called "Ballyhoo." Arthur Hammerstein will produce the new show, written under the direction of Arthur Hammerstein 3d, the man who wrote the books for "Rose Marie" and "Sweet Adeline." There is a bare possibility that the premiere of this new work, "Ballyhoo," will take place in Washington, to be ready for the New York trade about January 1.

• • • •

Last night Broadway saw, under another name, a play that held the boards in the Belasco Theater two weeks ago; a play then called "Everybody's Secret," one of the Professional Players' productions. Aside from a new leading lady—Miss Marion Hopkins has the place of Jane Bramley, seen here—the play had about three changes of title since leaving Washington. These were, "The King's Forty Horse Power Motor," "All That Glitters," and "His Majesty's Car," under which title it is now playing at the Ethel Barrymore Theater.

• • • •

The mere fact that the Shuberts have put a new play into the Ethel Barrymore Theater in New York proves that no immediate plans are being worked out for the Ethel Barrymore entry into New York with "Scarlet Sister Mary," the play made by Dan Reed from Julia Peterkin's novel. Just at present, the novelist, the playwright, the star, and the cast are having quite a time of it trying to decide just how the Gullah dialect might be effectively used, some saying yes and some saying no. Latest advices are to the effect that the dialect will be dropped all together in another week, the novelty of Miss Barrymore appearing in blackface being sufficient to draw crowds. The play will remain outside of New York for some time.

• • • •

Since the Southland has been found to be fraught with playwriting material, Broadway is getting quite a bit of Negro folklore passed over the footlights. The latest play with a Southern background is "Sweet Chariot," which Michael Mindlin is taking into the Ambassador Theater. Negro life in a Southern seaport is here depicted and the cast—all but four being Negroes—is headed by Frank Wilson.

Sidney R. Buckman, introducing himself to the theater with his first play, "The One Man," an opening last night in New York, was particularly fortunate in having Paul Muni play the part of this one man. Paul Muni, while he has never been seen in Washington as an actor, made a personal stage appearance here last season to boost an all-talkie. Later he went over to the Belasco to see a celebrated stage star and won recognition immediately from a first night audience. Now, Mr. Muni is planted on Broadway with what looks like the hit of his career. He is being boosted as one of the world's best actors.

Ed Wynn is bringing out what theatergoers there are in Baltimore, where he is playing this week in "Simple Simon," preparatory to besieging the Lafayette Square Playhouse, the Belasco, Sunday night. They are looking for capacity business at the Belasco, with the Ed Wynne show, and they'll have it if the comedian is to meet expenses on the week. The high cost of production, &c., is the reason.

Mr. Beauvais Fox, who, with Mr. Clayton Hamilton, his sparring partner, usually preceded the all star cast in the Sheridan comedy. These two were known as "The Gentlemen with Coronas." Mr. Fox, alone, is now in town heralding the arrival on Monday of Mrs Fiske, at the National, in a repertoire. The first play will be "Ladies of the Jury."

DISCIPLES DEFEND YOUTH OF PRESENT

CONVENTION IS CLOSED

Optimistic pictures of the worth of modern youth and the mounting world-wide influence of Christ were painted by speakers in programs yesterday and last night bringing to a close the first world convention of Churches of Christ.

This final session, attracting a large audience to Washington Auditorium, likewise concluded the massive convocation of the religious group from more than 35 lands who assembled here in a ten-day gathering, opening with a five-day international convention of Disciples of Christ and including also a youth's convention of Disciples of Christ.

In an address regarded as a highlight of the meetings, Dr. Daniel A. Poling, of New York, editor of the Christian Herald and president of the World Christian Endeavor, yesterday morning made a stirring defense of modern youth. He announced that the White House conference on youth education next month will report to President Hoover that the younger generation on the North American continent never had appeared more promising as now.

Raps Critics of Youth.

Taking occasion to rap the critics of youth on the basis of impressions that girls and boys constantly carry flasks and drink to excess, Dr. Poling said that the indictments were unfair, and moreover that criticism in this direction contributes nothing to a solution of youth's problems.

"Intrinsically, the young people are as fine as they ever were and as responsive to all appeals of decency," he declared. In conclusion he contended that no name in history captures the attention and imagination of youth so much as does the name of Christ.

As the principal speaker at the final session last night, the Rev. Dr. Hugh McLellan, pastor of the First Christian Church of Winchester, Ky., stressed the influence and importance of Christ.

Civilization at Peak.

"The influence of Christ is so inextricably interwoven in the warp and woof of our civilization that to tear it out would destroy the whole fabric," Dr. McLellan asserted. "Try in imagination to dissever Him from our culture and civilization. Think what art and literature would be without the cleanness of Christian morals. Think what the poor would suffer without Christian benevolence. Picture a nation of Christless homes."

"The civilization of the United States and Great Britain stand at the peak of historic national attainment. It is no accident that in this civilization the Christian element is paramount. The servants of Jesus have marched with the servants of the State in all national development. Indeed, the ambassadors of Christ have been the pioneers. History has no meaning without Him, and civilization reaches its high points as it struggles toward Him."

Kiwanis Lauds Hoover For Jobless Measures

A resolution commending President Hoover for his efforts to relieve existing conditions in unemployment was adopted yesterday at the annual Navy day meeting of the Kiwanis Club, held at the Washington Hotel.

Among the distinguished guests who addressed the gathering was Charles Francis Adams, Secretary of the Navy, who spoke on the growth and functionings of the Navy. Several short talks were given by the heads of the various branches of the Navy.

Service in Smith Suit Is Defended

Secretary of Company Was Summoned Legally, Says Plaintiff.

Opposing a motion to quash service of a suit filed against the F. H. Smith Co., H. K. Taylor, of 441 P street northwest, yesterday filed an affidavit in District Supreme Court asserting that the service made on William R. Baum, present secretary of the company, was regular.

Mr. Baum, in asking the court to quash the service of suit, declared the company is a Delaware corporation and does not do business in Washington. He asserted that he had been illegally served in that he was in the courthouse on another legal matter when the deputy United States marshal handed him the papers.

Taylor claims, however, that the Smith Co. official was not served in the courthouse, but was given formal notice of the suit while he was in the business district. Taylor also claims that Mr. Baum's business had terminated in ample time for him to have returned to Wilmington, Del., before he was served with the paper. Taylor is suing for receivership, and is represented by Attorney T. S. Settle.

Wife Charges Husband Was Unfaithful to Her

Charges that her husband had been unfaithful to her are contained in a petition for absolute divorce filed yesterday in District Supreme Court by Mrs. Florence V. Shorb, of Tenth street northwest near Otis place, against Earl G. Shorb, of Buffalo, N. Y.

The couple was married on December 21, 1921, and was separated in May, 1927, and have no children, according to the wife's petition. Attorney John D. Sadler appears for the wife.

"Jungle" Murders Of Boys Unsolved

Memphis Police Doubt if "Hobo" Attackers Are Responsible.

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Few secrets are wrested from the hobo "jungle" on the Mississippi River's western bank and tonight the slaying of Burton Hensley and Woodrow Wilson, North Carolina boys who left school for the high road, seemed to have joined the mysteries of the swamps.

The two friends, each 17, were found dying there yesterday in a clearing among the cottonwoods and willows. Their heads had been beaten and they lay upon the embers of a camp fire.

Today the mists that cloaked the scene were no more elusive than the solution sought by R. E. Nailling, deputy prosecutor of Crittenden County, Ark., which is bordered by the river. Nailling suggested the boys may have been robbed and beaten near the highway leading to the river bridge and taken to the clearing by attackers who thought to throw suspicion upon the jungle's frequenters.

To back up his theory he pointed out that the boys' burns were not sufficient to kill.

4 on Canadian Farm Victims of Murderer

Edmonton, Alberta, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Four persons were killed and a fifth shot, probably fatally, today on a farm near Smoky Lake, Alberta. Police were seeking George Dwernychuk, of Edmonton, as the slayer.

The dead are John Walanski, father-in-law of George Dwernychuk; Mrs. John Walanski; Mary Walanski, 16, an invalid; John Darichuk, middle-aged farmer; Mrs. Huchaluk, aged grandmother of Mary Walanski, also was shot down and is in a critical condition.

Dominion Issues Talked in Private

British Prime Minister to Solve Questions by Direct Method.

London, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—J. Ramsay MacDonald, British Prime Minister, hopes by personal negotiations to solve the problems of the imperial conference. To this end Mr. MacDonald has begun private conferences with the prime ministers of the various dominions.

Meetings with R. B. Bennett, Canadian Premier, and the other chief delegates will follow, with the subject of each talk to be the particular problem confronting that dominion.

The conference with Mr. Bennett will largely be devoted to wheat. While it is said that the Canadian's proposal for a preferential tariff is not likely to be accepted by the home government, the Canadian delegation expects to achieve its objective by the proposed British quota system for imports.

Man Shoots Self To Death in Hotel

Signal Corps Engineer Is Found With Two Wounds Through Chest.

Earnest R. Hentschel, 40 years old, of Springfield, Mo., committed suicide yesterday morning in his room in an apartment hotel on Fourteenth street northwest, near Fairmont street.

He was found lying on the bed with two bullet wounds through his chest, a revolver by his side, after a colored maid had received no answer to her knock when she attempted to enter and clean the room.

Efforts are being made to locate Hentschel's relatives. One relative is said to live in Washington. Coroner J. Ramsay Nevitt, who viewed the body, ordered it turned over to a local undertaker after issuing a certificate of death by suicide. Hentschel was an engineer, attached to the Signal Corps of the Army.

Mrs. SIDNEY THOMAS:—

"I always use ESSO"

Mrs. Thomas is often seen at the Chevy Chase Club. She is an experienced motorist and drives her smart little Ford coupé all over Washington.

You don't have to be an automotive engineer to appreciate the matchless performance that ESSO, the Giant Power Fuel, gives in any car. Says Mrs. Thomas:—

"I always use ESSO because it seems to make driving more enjoyable. And, too, I like the perfect service one receives at the ESSO service stations."

And that's the experience of a growing number of motorists all over Washington. The favorite motor fuel of the car-owning public in Washington, as proved by a recent impartial traffic check—used and recommended by half the leading car dealers of Washington — the unanimous choice of motor experts, both at Hoover Field and the Washington Airport for use in their own cars . . . that's ESSO's Washington record to date.

If you haven't tried ESSO, do it today. Get a tankful of this especially-prepared gasoline containing Ethyl fluid. It sells at a 3-cent premium, but it costs no more by the mile.

WASHINGTON: FRIDAY, OCTOBER 24, 1930. 15

6 G. W. FRESHMAN GRIDMEN OUSTED AFTER PAY DEMAND; 15,000 TO WATCH G. U.-WEST VIRGINIA CLASH TONIGHT

Hilltop Team Favorite in Contest

Punting of Bartrug Big Asset to Mountaineers.

G. U. Team Picked by Mills for "Fighting Spirit."

By JACK ESPEY.

WEST Virginia's Mountaineers, big, strong and confident as usual, return to show their wares to a Washington crowd tonight when they collide with Georgetown's Hilltoppers in Griffith Stadium in the sixth of a series of games dating back to 1902. It is Georgetown's annual "homecoming day" contest at which alumni will be honored. The kick-off is scheduled for 8:15 o'clock.

In spite of the fact that both teams have met defeat already, a crowd equaling the 15,000 gathering at the G. U.-West Virginia Wesleyan game on October 10 is anticipated. A warm rivalry has grown between Georgetown and West Virginia since they renewed the series in 1926 after a lapse of 24 years.

West Virginia is confident of winning, but Georgetown is the favorite, although slight odds will be offered by those willing to bet on the result. It is generally believed that Georgetown's attack will prove too deceptive for its opponent and Georgetown's defense capable of withstanding the best the visitors have in offense.

Little Difference In Weight.

There is little difference in the size of the squads. According to lists of weights issued by the respective publicity departments, they will stack up evenly in total poundage at an average of 176 pounds per player. West Virginia has an edge in the back field, 168 to 163, but Georgetown is heavier in the line, 184 to 181.

True to his promise, Head Coach Tom Mills has shaken up the Hilltop line-up as a result of his dissatisfaction with Goergetown's showing last Saturday against Western Maryland.

C. U. GRIDMEN WRECKED BY INJURIES

Good Showing Hope of Cards Against Duquesne.

TWENTY-ONE Catholic University football players, composing one of the smallest squads the Brookland institution ever sent away for a game, departed last night accompanied by Coaches Bergman and Gross and Manager Bill Reilly for Pittsburgh where tonight they will meet Duquesne University's eleven.

Greatly weakened by the loss of valuable players through injuries, the Cardinals can not hope for anything more than a low score. The coaches admit as much.

So depleted is the Cardinal squad that only six backs are available for service. Owing to the injury of Fred Guarnieri, quarter back, Bergman has had to send Rocco Blasi, an end, to the signal calling post. Blasi took over his new duties only three days ago.

This game will see the return to action of O'Brien after three weeks of idleness due to injuries. The contest also marks the debut of Fraatz as a starting player.

Following is a list of the players who made the journey: Billinger, Ambrose, Mullen, Monaco, Nimphius, Menke, Achstetter, Callahan, O'Brien, Clark, Fraatz, Lyons, Stapleton, Blasi, Sheary, Bertoni, DeMello, Guarnieri, Oliver, Whelan and Quinn.

Westbrook Pegler Says

Students and Band to Invade Richmond for V.M.I. Fray.

Special to The Washington Post.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Comforting information has been received from Doctor Tommy Richards, the physician to the Harvard football team, and I hasten to pass the same along, as it seems likely that a considerable number of people will be cheered thereby. Following an inspection of the Harvard casualty clearing station in the new field house close by the football field, Doctor Richards swung himself up onto the drainboard of the sink in the dark room where the x-ray pictures are developed, lit a cigarette, and blew a forked jet of gray vapor from his nose.

"About those things," I said, "are they really as harmful to athletes as the old Sunday school pictures of a cigarette fiend's lungs used to imply."

"No," he said, "they're practically harmless to the lungs. The only reason why smoking is detrimental to athletes in training is that the smoke going through the nasal passages has a tendency to dry them up. Consequently, when the player is exerting himself his breathing is hampered. That is why we say smoking is bad for the wind. But the lungs aren't affected.

Ideas on Tobacco, Liquor Erroneous.

"People have many fine old erroneous ideas about tobacco and liquor. For instance, there is practically no danger of wood alcohol poisoning in bootleg liquor, even if it be straight wood alcohol, and most of the deaths that we read of, ascribed to wood alcohol poisoning, and the cases of blindness, are not due to wood alcohol at all. The fact is that wood alcohol is so difficult to take that it is practically impossible to swallow and retain enough to kill or blind. But pure alcohol is a poison itself, and the deaths from bad alcohol which we read about are due to old-fashioned acute alcoholism, which was by no means unknown before prohibition, as I can assure you. Alcohol poisoning induces paralysis of the optic nerve and any one who has become fairly well bottled on pure whisky will have recollections of the earlier symptoms of this trouble."

The doctor peered from face to face, but there was no incriminating response. Perhaps nobody present had any recollections of ever having drunk any pure whisky. He continued:

"After a person has drunk a certain amount of good whisky his vision becomes blurry and inaccurate. Or here, as the case may be, there is a colloquial, nonscientific name for this condition. I believe you would say the subject was cockeyed drunk. Then, if the subject continues to drink, he will lose his sight entirely for a time. There is a vulgar name for his condition, too. The subject is said to be blind drunk.

Alcohol, Used Sparingly, Good for Athlete.

"But, although alcohol is a poison, a judicious amount of it, administered correctly, is good for athletes and I would be in favor of giving it to them in training, in the form of beer or ale, if it could be done.

"The subject of athletics in medicine is a fascinating study. We have the opportunity to observe and keep records on thousands of cases, but in-

MARYLAND U. ASSURED ROOTERS

Students and Band to Invade Richmond for V.M.I. Fray.

UNIVERSITY OF MARYLAND'S Football Team will have considerable moral and vocal support in its game with Virginia Military Institute in the Municipal Stadium in Richmond, Va., tomorrow afternoon.

Maryland will run a special train to the Old Dominion capital, which not only will carry the football squad, but the capable Old Line Band of 50 pieces and a large number of students. Many Maryland followers also will go by auto, the flivver brigade being due to leave early tomorrow morning.

The Old Line gridders will reach Richmond in time for an early luncheon and then will go direct to the stadium to dress for the combat with the Cadets.

Reserves Get Hard Work.

The program that Coach Curley Byrd has carried out all week was followed again yesterday, the reserves getting all the rough work and the regulars merely running through signals and other fundamentals and keeping on a playing edge. A couple of the regulars have minor hurts and a couple of others are suffering from colds, but all will be available for use tomorrow.

As matters stand now the line-up will be as follows:

If Evans is in the game he will call the plays and if he is not the duty will fall to Woods.

The Old Line reserves have shown much benefit from the strenuous drilling and those used against V. M. I. doubtless will measure up to expectations. Then, too, they will not be sent into the game in wholesale lots, as was done against St. John's last week.

Mrs. Eynon Joins Husband As Columbia Golf Champion

MRS. EVERETT EYNON, whose husband is the men's club champion, yesterday won the women's club championship of the Columbia Country Club, defeating Mrs. J. Marvin Haynes, who won the title last year, on the seventeenth green, 2 and 1.

Mrs. Haynes, covering the outward nine in 39 strokes, was 2 up at the turn. Mrs. Eynon's card totaling 42. Thereafter, however Mrs. Haynes lost four holes in succession. She missed a putt on the tenth green which would have given her a halt, encountered a trap on the eleventh, played her third shot on the twelfth into a trap and then three-putted the thirteenth green when her tee shot laid her ball not over 15 feet from the pin. The succeeding holes were halved until the match was over. The medal score was 84 for Mrs. Eynon and 86 for Mrs. Haynes.

Mrs. Frank Tomlinson, former champion of the club, won the second flight, and Mrs. Charles R. White was victor in the third flight. At the conclusion of the final round all the contestants were entertained at lunch in the clubhouse, after which the prizes were awarded.

FIRST FLIGHT—Final round—Mrs. Everett Eynon defeated Mrs. J. M. Haynes, 2 and 1. Consolation—Final round—Miss Elizabeth Brawner defeated Mrs. N. B. Frost, 2 and 1.

SECOND FLIGHT—Final round—Mrs. Frank Tomlinson defeated Mrs. C. Arthur Slater, 3 and 1. Consolation—Mrs. A. S. Gardiner defeated Mrs. H. C. Flynn, 2 and 1.

Yale Reverts To Regular Backfield

Booth, Austen, Dunn and Crowley to Face Army.

Cadets Drill Today in Bowl; Notes of East's Teams.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 23 (A. P.).—That altered Yale back field of yesterday apparently was just a gesture. Today Mal Stevens had the usual Booth-Austen-Dunn-Crowley combination at work and indicated he would start it against Army. The Cadets arrived at Wallingford, Conn., for an overnight stay at Choate School, and will practice in the bowl tomorrow.

Offensive Work Stressed By Roper.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Once more Bill Roper devoted an entire practice session to the offensive side of the game today. Howson, a fine punter, probably will start against Navy, but Lea, an end, was slightly hurt again in scrimmage yesterday and may be on the sidelines.

New York U. Ready For Fordham.

New York, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—New York University's football warriors wound up hard work for the Fordham game today. Only a light signal drill will be held tomorrow. Al Gaudet again held a place in varsity back field.

Punting and Passing Marks Rams' Drill.

New York, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—If N. Y. U. thinks it has small chance to score through Fordham's line, Fordham doesn't think it has any more of getting through the Violet forwards. Coach Cavanaugh had the Rams out for four hours today, practicing mostly punting and passing. He indicated the Rams would depend upon an aerial attack chiefly.

Pitt Regains Hood For Notre Dame.

Pittsburgh, Oct. 23 (A.P.). — The Pitt Panthers, who battle Notre Dame next, went through a hard workout today and were cheered by the announcement that there is a possibility that Franklin Hood, pile-driving full back, and Jim MacMurdo, end, would be in shape to play.

Ingram Satisfied With Navy.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Bill Ingram apparently is satisfied with the improvement shown by his Navy Team. He restricted the Midshipmen's workout to a light dummy scrimmage today. Steffanides seems to have replaced Smith at end, although which of the two will star against Princeton has not yet been announced.

Colgate Needs Defense For Passers.

Hamilton, N. Y., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Colgate's last heavy practice session for Penn State saw Coach Andy Kerr emphasize today the need of a defense for the forward passes the Nittany Lions probably will throw.

Brown to Make Shakeup.

Providence, R. I., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—A Big shakeup looms at Brown. Indications are that Eddie Gilmartin will be the only regular to retain his place in the Bruin back field against Holy Cross, and changes also are to be made at center and right end.

Ticknor Returns to Harvard Line-Up.

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—The principal development of Harvard's practice session today for the Dartmouth game was the return of Ben Ticknor, great center. A long but light workout, with a long dummy scrimmage, occupied the Crimson warriors today.

Bromberg to Play For Dartmouth.

Hanover, N. H., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Gay Bromberg, Dartmouth's outstanding lineman, evidently shook off his "heavy cold" overnight, for he was in the line-up here today when Jackson Cannell put his green regulars through the last of the hard workouts for Saturday's Harvard game at the stadium.

Christner's Knee Hurt, Stribling Bout Called Off

Newark, N. J., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—The scheduled fight between Young Stribling and Kayo Christner at the Newark Armory tonight was called off today by Harry Mendel, promoter. An injury to Christner's right knee was given as the reason.

PIXLEE OUSTS PLAYERS SEEKING PAY FOR ODD JOBS IN ADDITION TO BOARD AND TUITION GRATIS

Pixlee Explains G. W. U. Methods Of Assisting Incoming Athletes

THE practice of "caring for" athletes at George Washington University was explained by Athletic Director James E. Pixlee yesterday following the "strike" and summary dismissal of six players of the freshman football squad.

Athletes recommended to the athletic office at the university are interviewed personally in almost every case, Pixlee said, and there is no professionalism, proselyting or subsidization.

"The athletic department, as distinguished from the university itself, promises prospective athletes only that it will obtain for them such employment which will coincide with school hours and practice hours that will enable them to pay for their board and lodging.

Offer of Job Only Consideration.

"Every one of the athletes came to the university with the definite understanding that we would do nothing for them except to see that they got a job. If we could not find a job that would leave them free to play football, I agreed to see that room and board was to be provided for a month, and that after that I would find a job whether it interfered with football or not, providing only that it left them time for study.

"Yesterday, when the first month expired and no jobs were available for four members of the Freshman team, namely Fikes, Nixon, Swift and O'Rourke, they were dropped from the squad and are now available for positions that had interfered with football practice. None of these four are nivolved in the present insurrection.

One Job Divided Into 15 Shifts.

The athletic department is often hard pressed to find positions for the players which will coincide with practice and school hours and readily accepts odd jobs about the campus for them, also positions nearby as janitors, night watchmen and at filling stations. In one case, a filling position job was so divided among the players to provide work for fifteen men in fifteen shifts. Forty dollars was the amount named by Pixlee as the average monthly wage of athletes who worked at the odd jobs. This, he said, was sufficient to pay their board and lodging.

Pixlee has had to deal with three distinct groups of athletes since he entered upon his duties as athletic director in the fall of 1929. Firstly, were the athletes already at the school who had played under an athletic scholarship fund which provided board, tuition and means to get spending money.

Secondly, is the group of athletes who matriculated as freshmen in 1929 and are the beneficiaries of the positions whichthe athletic office is able to find for them. They enjoy a free training table during the football season now as varsity men. There have been no complaints from this group.

Thirdly, is the body of freshman athletes who entered school last month under the same conditions as did the freshmen of 1929 and who are involved in the current insurrection.

Ordered "Housecleaning" Thanksgiving Day.

Room and board as well as athletic scholarships and other concessions had been given athletes when he assumed charge of the department in 1929, Pixlee said, and in his first year at the university he inherited this first group of charges, whose living expenses were paid out of the "scholarship fund."

Conditions were so bad under this system, according to Pixlee, that he declared early ni the football season that there would be a "housecleaning" on Thanksgiving Day, 1929, after the last game.

According to Pixlee, he took the "athletic scholarship" fund that had been provided and split it equally among the players on the team who wished to share in it, announcing at the time that free board and room would stop and that the players were free to quit school if they liked.

Only Three Refused To Share Fund.

The fund was not allocated outright, but credited to the players' future tuition in six installments to cover the first semester's work. Only three players on the varsity team of 1929—Berkowitz, Hoffman and McGrew—refused to accept credit for the money thus divided. They are the only three players of the 1929 varsity invited to play with the present varsity squad.

The only concession given the second group of athletes, the freshmen of 1929, outside of finding employment for them, is the football season training table, a custom that is general throughout the Eastern college football world. The training table is free to varsity players only. There is no training table for freshmen.

The athletes received no wages for their work under Pixlee's regime. The money earned is paid to the university and applied to the individual accounts of the athletes in payment of their board and lodging and tuition.

Scholastic Requirements Raised by Pixlee.

George Washington's eligibility requirements compare favorably with the leading institutions. Under Pixlee's direction, in order that George Washington teams might compete in the best circles, the scholastic requirements have been raised to 24 hours of passing work weekly, thereby precluding the use of part-time students. It is Pixlee's intention to increase this limit to 30 hours, thus heightening the plane of eligibility.

Tennessees' Plea Fails; N. C. 'Smokers' Banned

Chapel Hill, N. C., Oct. 23 (A. P.).—Despite a telegraphis plea signed by every member of the Tennessee Football Team except Gene McEver, injured half back, Coach Chuck Collins, of the University of North Carolina, today refused to reinstate Jim Magner and Al Cole, suspended players, in time for the Tarheel-Vol game in Knoxville Saturday.

7 Held at Pittsburgh In Spurious Ticket Sale

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Sale of tickets for the Notre Dame-Pitt football game Saturday and the appearance of counterfeit tickets today resulted in the arrest of three men and the detention of four others.

The three men under arrest and one held for questioning were believed by police to have been the innocent victims of spurious ticket sellers. One man had 25 tickets in his possession and he said he paid $125 for them.

The remaining three were held for further investigation in police court where they were arraigned on scalping charges. The yhad opened offices in orange juice stands and the city law department was asked for an opinion on whether their activities came under the head of "scalping."

Police and Pitt athletic althorities said several thousand counterfeit tickets were in circulation in the city. The Pitt stadium was sold out several days ago.

Group Is Ordered to "Clear Out" After Demand Is Made.

Coaches Forewarned of Mutiny; Marvin Endorses Stand.

MUTINY in the ranks of George Washington University's freshman football team, which took the form of a formal demand for free board and tuition, that would enable the money earned from odd jobs on and about the campus to be diverted to their own pockets, was met yesterday by Athletic Director James Pixlee's expulsion from the squad of six players, including their spokesman, and the investigation of the status of six others.

The six disbarred players later announced that they had withdrawn from the university.

Approximately eight freshman players, headed by Carrol Robinson, of Salem, N. J., a tackle, invaded the athletic office at the university before practice on Wednesday and presented their demands to Assistant Director Max Farrington. The expelled six definitely committed themselves to the declaration for the money earned on jobs which had previously been conscripted by the university to pay for the players' board and tuition.

Pixlee and Aid Forewarned.

Pixlee and Farrington had been forewarned by an unrevealed source of a meeting of members of the freshman squad on Tuesday night and the demands that were to be made. Acting upon the instructions of Mr. Pixlee, Farrington ascertained the status of the leaders of the group which gathered in his office and terminated the interview with a brief order for the players to "clear out."

Mr. Pixlee yesterday afternoon made the announcement of the disbarment from the squad of Robinson, Frank Walsh, half back, of Duluth, Minn.; Vance Jovick, end, of Butte, Mont.; George Venerosa, tackle, of Hazleton, Pa.; John Hofsess, half back, of Mexico, Mo., and August Newcamp, half back, of Erie, Pa.

SISKIN CAPTURES LAUREL SPRINT, EASED UP, IN 1:12

Epinard Colt Makes Show Of Field

Qualifies for Pimlico Futurity by Victory With 124 Lbs. Up.

Dark Ayress Winner Over Maiden Fillies, Always Leading.

By J. B. SNODGRASS.
Special to The Washington Post.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 23.—The Nevada Stock Farm's Epinard colt, Siskin, qualified for the Pimlico Futurity in splendid fashion by winning the Pagebrook Handicap, feature here today, traveling the 6 furlongs, with 124 pounds up, eased up, in 1:12. Walter M. Jeffords' Aegis was second and E. R. Bradley's Black Tyrone third.

Siskin, Bejshak up, led all the way. Black Tyrone, the favorite, upon whose chances $4.000 of comeback money was dumped into the mutuels at one time, attempted to go to the son of Epinard on the back stretch, but the brown colt drew away from him with a gliding ease that caused the Futurity hopes of the Nevada Farm's colt to go up in a flash.

Tyrone tired in the stretch run, with Siskin three lengths in front. Then Aegis came along with good speed but Bejshak, fearing no other challenger, began easing up Siskin at the eighth pole and galloped in by a length and a half. He paid $5.20 with Aegis $16.50 to place. It was a smashing race for the winner. Magnifico was scratched just before post time and Totem carried alone the silks of Whitney. This was the third successive race for 2-year-olds.

Dark Ayress Outruns Juvenile Fillies.

A dozen maiden 2-year-old fillies started in the first race. Dark Ayress, H. C. Hatch's filly, led all the way from the middle of the back stretch to the wire, with Riley up. A long shot, P. M. Walker's Dark Ray, nipped Green Light in the last strides to get the place, Green Light being third. Green Light was favorite and the winner second choice. Time 107 3-5. The winner paid $9.20. Dark Ray was $41.30 to place. While the track remained fast, the weather became cloudy and cooler in the early afternoon.

Belgian Lass Leads Field of Twelve.

Two-year-olds went a mile in the second race, twelve, the limit field in all except stake races starting. Mrs. A. L. Austin's Belgian Lass won. J. Whyte's, High-Go was second, J. F. Schorr's, Running Girl third and Korax fourth, strung out. Thibodeaux, on Belgian Lass, worked his way up from a slow beginning to draw away in the stretch.

Fast Life was well up to the backstretch. High-go went to the front at the far turn, pursued by Running Girl, with Belgian Lass, third. She won by two lengths and a half in 1:40 4-5 and paid $10.40 for a $2 ticket. There was a long delay at the barrier. The start was somewhat ragged, but the best that could be obtained with the nervous field.

Conamore Breezes In Fifth.

J. Y. Martin's Con Amore breezed home after leading all the way in the Mayflower Handicap for fillies and mares, running the 6 furlongs in 1:11 3-5 within a fifth of the track record. W. R. Coe's Vanity was second and the Branncastle Farm's St. Prisca third. G. W. Loft's Mabla made a strong bid but tired in the stretch. A Robertson had the mount on the winner, which finished three lengths ahead of her field. She paid $7.80. A nose separated Vanity and St. Prisca.

Workman Scores With Inception.

The Salisbury, third handicap on the card, fifth race, at a mile and a sixteenth, was won by Rigan McKinney's Inception, making his first start here since his Western campaign. Sun Vir was second and it was a duel between the two from the time they entered the back stretch to the finish. Luggage was third. Workman, on Inception, got to the rail and had more in reserve in the stretch turn. The time was 1:45 4-5. Star Crest led from the gate and held on until the back stretch. The winner paid $7.30. Weight beat Sun Vir.

John Robert Best Of Large Field.

J. F. Besche's 3-year-old, John Robert, was best of a large field in the sixth race at a mile and a furlong, which he won. Time 1:53 2-5. F. C. Dunn's Druggist got the place, with J. D. Baker's Frances Cooper third. Golden Arrow was fourth and the favorite, Fairy Maiden, out of the picture. Meade, the smallest jockey at this course, rode the winner, whose margin was two and a half lengths. Nettie Belle showed early speed. The winner paid $20.50.

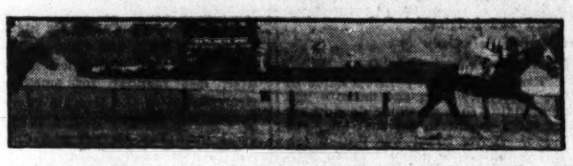
Two-dollar mutuels paid—BELGIAN LASS, $10.40, $6.90, $3.60; HIGH GO, $9.20, $5.00; RUNNING GIRL, $2.90.

BELGIAN LASS, forced to circle her field to enter contention, came stoutly for the closing issue, wore HIGH GO down inside the final furlong and drew out cleverly approaching the finish. HIGH GO went into an easy lead in the last half mile, but faltered suddenly when challenged. RUNNING GIRL, hard hustled all the way, held on well for the final test. KORAX could not keep pace. FAST LIFE had no excuses. The others were outrun.

BELGIAN LASS TRIPS HOME IN SECOND NUMBER.



THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $2,000. Page Brook Handicap. For 2-year-olds. Start good from stalls. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:50. Off at 2:52. Winner, Nevada Stock Farm's b. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SISKIN, $5.20, $4.90, $2.60; AEGIS, $16.30, $3.70; BLACK TYRONE, $2.20.

SISKIN, displaying good speed and handling his weight in clever fashion, raced SERGEANT DONALDSON into defeat, opened up a winning lead entering the home stretch and had speed in reserve at the end. AEGIS, given a breathing spell at the turn, came determinedly through the home stretch. BLACK TYRONE was hard hustled from the start and had no excuse. He was tiring fast at the end. SERGEANT DONALDSON weakened. TOTEM broke slow.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—JOHN ROBERT, $20.50, $8.00, $4.80; DRUGGIST, $7.10, $4.50; FRANCES COOPER, $6.90.

JOHN ROBERT moved up stoutly after the first half mile, responded to severe urging, disposed of FRANCES COOPER and drew into a good lead. DRUGGIST, sent into a forward position early, went to the outside when making his run, lost a lot of ground and could not reach the winner. FRANCES COOPER moved into a winning lead, but tired suddenly in the final drive. GOLDEN ARROW was unable to improve his position. FAIRY MAIDEN had no excuses. RING ON closed some ground.

JOHN ROBERT ROMPS HOME IN SIXTH EVENT.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls for all but Sea Crest. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:57. Off at 5:03. Winner, A. Hullcoat's b. f. (4), by Fair Play or Underfire—Cashmere. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $900; second, $250; third, $150. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:49, 1:14 3-5, 1:41, 1:54 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MAINSHEET, $18.00, $8.10, $4.00; UPSET LAD, $4.40, $3.10; SATISFY, $5.10.

MAINSHEET reached contention steadily, came stoutly for the final drive, was forced out by UPSET LAD all during the final furlong and outfinished the latter. UPSET LAD moved into a brief lead when approaching the home stretch, weakened and was bearing out at the end. SATISFY closed courageously. VIMONT weakened the last furlong.

SERIES BATTLE TOPS 4-GAME SCHOLASTIC CARD.

Eastern Team Choice Over Business

Reserves Lacked by Stenogs; Eastern Inexperienced.

GAMES TODAY.

Eastern vs. Business, Central Stadium, 3:45.

Gonzaga vs. Catholic University Freshmen, C. U. Bowl, 3:30.

St. Alban's vs. Georgetown Prep, St. Alban's, 3:15.

SATURDAY.

Emerson vs. Massanutten, at Woodstock, Va.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

ONE high school series contest in which Eastern will make its debut represented by a brand new eleven and five mixtures of prep and college frosh football games are carded for this busy week-end of scholastic grid activities. But today's and tomorrow's battles, while important in their own right, will perhaps serve only as an appetizer to next Tuesday's Tech-Central battle, the outstanding scholastic game of the year.

Foremost among the games scheduled for today is the skirmish between Mike Kelley's green Easterners and Lynn Woodworth's Stenographers, a light young squad whose fighting qualities in face of great odds in the matter of man power has caused much favorable comment.

Today Business finds itself in the strange niche of being the more experienced team. The Lincoln Parkers have a new team from end to end. Mades, Kelley's right guard, is the only veteran in Eastern's ranks, and his experience had to be gained in the few minutes of play he engaged in during 1929's high school series.

Eastern Favored To Win.

Eastern will probably outweigh Business about 5 pounds to the man, and should take the contest regardless of the item of experience. But when the final whistle blows Kelley's men will know they have been through a battle.

Coach Woodworth has drilled his Typists well this week and avers that he has never seen his boys as eager to break into the win column as they are now.

Gonzaga Weakened For C. U. Game.

Only the fact that it is a scheduled game of the interest-provoking high school series places the Eastern-Business fight ahead of Gonzaga's tilt with Catholic University Freshmen. This and the fact that Gonzaga will probably not put up the battle it is capable of when the whistle sends the game under way.

Between the LaSalle game and the scholastic requirements of the I street institution the fast-developing unity of the Purples' squad took a tumble. Schram, Shipman, Mills and Long, all regulars, have shown marked weaknesses in the conjugation of amo, amas, amat and will be out for a month because of it. Benjamin, Eppard and Gill are out on injury leave.

Catholic University's men are in good shape, Coach LaFond reports. Bussink, the two McVeans and Pyne, C. U. frosh regulars, all played for Gonzaga last season.

Georgetown Prep Makes Debut.

Georgetown Prep, coached by Ralph Duplin, former Hilltop signal caller of note, makes its debut today against St. Alban's, with Dick Heekin, Charley O'Neill and Albert Koch, last year's regulars, back in the line-up.

In the remaining game two evenly matched squads will battle when Landon and Woodward meet. Both lost in opening battles.

Coach Sanborn of Emerson expects little of his gridders tomorrow at Woodstock. Massanutten has a strong, heavy squad, which is not a little better on paper than Emerson's representatives. Coach McNamara is optimistic over Devitt's chances against Mount St. Mary's frosh. This game was scheduled early in the season, but a typhoid epidemic laid low the Emmitsburg lads. McNamara hopes to rid the 0-0 jinx, which has dogged his team in two of three contests this year.

VA. GRIDMEN CHEERED BY STUDENTS

Special to The Washington Post.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Oct. 23.—Virginia's Football Team, leaving tonight for Lexington, Ky., to battle another Southern Conference outfit, the Kentucky Wildcats, was given a rousing send-off by the student body, which staged a torchlight procession.

Thirty-six comprised the squad which left Union Station amid the cheers of the undergraduates. Lexington will be reached in time for a workout late Friday afternoon. In charge of the group is a Kentuckian, M. Lee Booth, of Owensboro.

At present the Cavaliers are in excellent condition; in fact, the men are in better shape than they have been all season, and should prove a hard outfit for Kentucky to stop. Of special interest is the fact that this game will bring together two of the best half backs in the South—"Shipwreck" Kelly, the Wildcat, and Bill Thomas, the Cavalier.

Both Teams Boast Fast Backs.

Although Virginia can boast of Thomas, Sippley, Reiss, Bryant and Motley, the team representing the Blue Grass State can be justly proud of Kelly, Urbaniak, Rose, Yates and Andrews. All in all, both teams will be fortified with fast back fields and a hard-fought game should ensue.

During the four workouts this week Coach Abell has worked particularly hard on the line, as it will require a strong forward wall to hold the Wildcats, who ran wild in the final quarter in the game with Washington and Lee last Saturday and rang up nineteen points, to win from the Generals by a score of 33 to 14.

The probable line-up for both teams will be as follows:

Virginia.	Position.	Kentucky
St. Clair	L. E.	Yates
Motley	L. T.	Wright
DeButts	L. G.	Forquar
Reiss	Center	Williams
Cameron	R. G.	Rose
Poss	R. T.	Kipping
Gravatt	R. E.	Andrews
Sippley	Q. B.	Spicer
Thomas	L. H.	Urbaniak
Brewer	R. H.	Kelly
Bryant	F. B.	Phipps

Gallaudet at Baltimore For Night Grid Game

Gallaudet College's Eleven gets its first taste of night football tonight when it engages the Baltimore University Team in Oriole Park, Baltimore. Coach Teddy Hughes, lads, recovered from a severe beating at the hands of Delaware last Saturday, are expecting to resume their winning ways.

Baltimore has yet to score a point in four games. It lacks experience. This is only the second year for the Monumental City institution in football.

Galaudet has won two and lost one to date, having beaten Fort Meade Tank School and American U.

THREATENS G. U. LINE TONIGHT

SIX COLONIAL FRESHMEN OUSTED

Pixlee Bans Group Who Sought Free Board, Tuition.

A bulletin posted in the gymnasium by Pixlee yesterday morning informed the squad that the players who had not reported for the practice on Wednesday were presumed to be in sympathy with the strike. None of the six ousted from the squad and the six players who had not definitely committed themselves to the rebellion were at the practice Wednesday. There was no official practice for the Freshmen yesterday.

Robinson Speaks For Players.

Speaking for the players who made the demands of the athletic office, Robinson declared that the group did not care to work only for their board and tuition, but needed money to pay for such necessaries as laundry, cigarettes and haircuts, and that they would be willing to shift for themselves as far as employment was concerned if tuition, lodging and board were guaranteed by the university.

Robinson declared also that the six players termed by Pixlee as of doubtful status had also quit the squad and would not return to school. With the exception of the few local boys on the team, all of the Freshmen would stick together in their decision, Robinson said. His statement issued yesterday follows:

"We came here on scholarships with the understanding that if we played football they would take care of us. It's always understood that if you go away to play football you will be well taken care of.

"When we arrived they made us sign a bond for our tuition board and room. It was sort of arranged that we would help out in instructing at high schools for our tuition, board and room. It was also understood that if we left at the end of the year they would hold up our credits at other schools because of the bond.

"We got wind of a rumor several days ago that we were all going to be dropped to shift for ourselves after the football season, or about December 1, and in that we would be caught penniless if that happened, decided to have an understanding whereby we might pick up some spending change between now and December 1.

"Yesterday afternoon Coach Farrington, the freshman coach, noticed one of the freshmen was not getting into his uniform and admonished him to 'snap out of it.'

"The lad replied he was not going to get into his uniform, 'All right, then,' snapped back the coach; 'then turn in your uniform and get out of here.'

"As spokesmen for the freshmen who felt they should have an opportunity to get something besides food and flop and tuition, I then asked the coach if I might speak with him privately in his office, which permission was granted.

"Our demand was refused and the university took dismissal action on six of us today. Six others are being investigated, but we freshmen are all going to stand together in this thing and either we will all stay in college or we will all go out together. Our fraternity obligations will not permit us to split on this or any other subject.

"A stop order has been placed on us at The Antlers Club, and that's that. Most of us will get jobs on ships until another football season rolls around, because we can't catch on at any other college—certainly not this year!"

Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of the university, indorsed completely the action of Pixlee, stating: "Mr. Pixlee is absolutely right in his decision. George Washington had rather not be represented on the football field than use players who do not conform to the standards of good sportsmanship."

Mr. Pixlee announced that the university had severed all connections with the expelled players and had informed employers of the youths who were working that the university would not continue to stand behind recommendations made when the jobs were obtained for the players.

The players had been variously employed in the dining halls as waiters, at filling stations and as janitors and night watchmen. They received no wages for this work, their earning being applied toward board, lodging and tuition.

G. U. CLASS TEAMS PLAY.

MATTOX AND WILLIAMS STARS

Special to The Washington Post.

LEXINGTON, Va., Oct. 23.—Old Dominion football fans attending the game here Saturday between the Generals of Washington and Lee and the Johnnies of St. John's will have a midseason glimpse of Washington and Lee's two candidates for sectional honors, Leigh Williams, end, and "Monk" Mattox, half back.

Leigh Williams is regarded by many as the best pass catcher in the business, and although his followers do not claim him to be the ultimate in end perfection, they are enthusiastic about his chances for an All-Southern berth. All those who have seen the lanky Norfolk, Va., boy in action this fall know of his ability.

In the first three seasoning games with Virginia schools, Williams play was a bright spot in the Generals' offensive, and at Charleston, W. Va., where the Mountaineers were met, Williams earned countless admirers by his work. Seemingly covered, he would snag passes to give Washington and Lee a fighting chance against West Virginia before the reserves of the West Virginia team began to take toll late in the game.

Williams Starred at Kentucky.

At Kentucky, Williams was equally as difficult to hold, but the clever work of the Wildcat forwards prevented the speedy Washington and Lee star from breaking loose.

Basket ball, baseball and track are also side lines with the athlete who ranks as Virginia's best, and among the leaders in the South and country.

"Monk" Mattox, Washington and Lee's back field ace, will show his stuff against the Jhonnies, and try to keep his place at the head of the scorers in the Old Dominion. The 160-pound Leesville, Va., flash has been impressive this season with the manner in which he has gained yardage and plowed through for touchdowns against heavier teams.

Had Mattox scored in the first game against Randolph Macon, where his runs placed the ball in scoring position for his mates, he would now be leading the State scorers by several touchdowns, but as it is his total is five for four games. Two in the Hampden-Sidney game and one each against Richmond, West Virginia and Kentucky is the story of Mattox's achievement to date.

"Reds" Barry to Box In Cumberland Show

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Oct. 23.—A double windup of eight-round bouts will feature the next boxing show to be held at the State Armory, Thursday, October 30. In the feature attraction, Eddie Baker, Decatur, Alabama, who is now making his home here, will meet "Reds" Barry, of Washington, D. C., who recently gave Billy Strickler, conquerer of "Socko" Trenaman two setbacks. Eddie is a brother of Sgt. Sammy Baker, of Mitchel Field, Long Island, who is regarded as one of the toughest welterweights in the country. Baker and Barry will scale 170 pounds or under at 3 o'clock.

In the other half of the double windup, "Sparrow" Kesner, flyweight, Keyser, W. Va., will take on George Tomaskey, great little Italian battler from McKeesport, Pa. Two or three preliminary bouts will be provided in one of which Joe Brode, middleweight, of Frostburg, will appear.

BRAVES SELL ROLLINGS.

Boston, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—The Boston National League Club today announced that Russell Rollings, infielder, had been sold outright to the Rochester Club of the International League. He was drafted from the Hollywood Club of the Pacific Coast League by the Braves.

M. W. Carter's Sea Bee Wins Annefield Cup

Special to The Washington Post.

Summaries of other races were:

Old Dominion Cup—Won by Rathbeal, Mrs. William B. Watkins; second, Brown Study, Mrs. T. H. Sommerville; third, Naughty Naughty, Fox Chapel Stud.

Walnut hall plate—Won by Saranoda, Fox Chapel Stud; second, Bellfont, Oliver Illsey; third, Mitit, E. M. Woolf.

Kentucky U. Students Stage Beard Contest

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—The University of Kentucky student who grows the longest beard before the Alabama-Kentucky football game, November 1, will receive a silver loving cup, providing he shaves on the football field between halves of the game.

The contest was announced last night by Su-Ky Circle, campus pep organization which will award the trophy. Posters announcing the competition were placed on the campus and in all fraternity houses and men's dormitories. The contestants were to start clean shaven today.

Members of the varsity squad have resolved not to shave until the Alabama game, and it was understood they might not rid themselves of their accumulated whiskers until Thanksgiving, after the team meets the University of Tennessee at Knoxville.

Michelet, Capital Boy, Captains Dartmouth

Special to The Washington Post.

Hanover, N. H.—Robert H. Michelet, of Washington, was elected capitain of the Dartmouth freshman football team at a meeting of the players today. Michelet plays guard and is a tower of strength in the line. He came to Dartmouth from Mercersburg.

The Dartmouth freshmen won the annual fall track meeting today with a score of 61 points, Calvin, of Washington, starred, winning the high jump at 6 feet one inch.

Bob Michelet, well known in Washington's high school football ranks, played for Central where he was chosen all-high guard in 1927. He went from Central to Mercersburg Academy whence he graduated last spring. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Cichelet, of 1635 Argonne place northwest. Milans is a former Central high track capitain.

Local Hockey Club Seeks U. S. Franchise

The Washington Field Hockey Club is anxious to form the three full teams necessary to secure a franchise in the United States Field Hockey Association.

Eugenia S. Davis, 2538 Wisconsin avenue, Cleveland 5952, is in charge of listing applications for the teams. It is believed that a number of graduates of Vassar, Holyoke, George Washington and Marjorie Webster will be among the candidates.

Intercity matches with teams representing Philadelphia and Baltimore will be scheduled if Washington is able to gain a franchise in the national organization.

The first practice will be held tomorrow morning at 9:30 on the Ellipse under the direction of Miss Davis.

12,000 WATCH FREDERICK RACING

Maude Worthy, Daylight, Worthy Lick Win in Pacing.

FREDERICK, MD., Oct. 23.—More than 12,000 persons witnessed the races at the Fair Grounds today. It was the third and big day and five events, three harness and two running, constituted the afternoon's card. The grandstand, paddock and arena were crowded, including a number of persons from Baltimore, Washington, Hagerstown and nearby points in Virginia and West Virginia.

The final running race yesterday, the result of which was withheld owing to confusion among the mounts, was awarded today to Salenas, First Day was given second place and Pitchfork, third.

C. U. to Stage Indoor Track Meet in 1931

Catholic University again will stage an indoor track and field meet, it was announced yesterday by Director of Athletic Arthur Bergman. A date for the meet has not been selected. In making the announcement, Bergman revealed that he is an ardent supporter of the track and field sport and that it is his hope that the renewal of the C. U. meet will prove as attractive as it can possibly be made.

Plans for the 1931 event are being formed by Bergman with the aid of Track Coach Dorsey Griffith, whose efforts were responsible for the success of the meet held last March 12. That was the first time an indoor track meet had been held in Washington in five years. It was well supported by the public and yielded a profit, the first financial gain C. U. ever secured from a track meet.

PENNANTS STUDY.

The Petworth Pennants will hold a blackboard drill at Macfarland Junior High tonight at 7:45 to study new plays, and review their regular tactics.

The game against Northern Preps Sunday will be played on the Silver Spring Field at 3 o'clock.

G. U. RATED CHOICE OVER W. VIRGINIA

season. Mills places great importance on "fighting spirit." Believing that he now has a team that will battle to the echoes of the last whistle, he is optimistic in his outlook. Last week he predicted defeat, and the result bore him out, though not to his liking. Tonight he expects to win.

Missing from the Mountaineer lineup will be the Glenn boys, who in previous encounters with Georgetown always have performed brilliantly First, "Big Sleepy" and later "Little Sleepy" Glenn made history for West Virginia elevens in competition with the Blue and Gray. They have passed from West Virginia's halls now; and the last of their tribe, "Tarzan" Glenn, although still in school, is unfit for service tonight on account of injuries suffered in a game two weeks ago.

Bartrug Can Outkick G. U. Punters.

Eddie Bartrug, whose long, high punts offered plenty of opposition for Jim Mooney, Georgetown's famous punter, the last three years, will show his talented toe once more. Mooney has gone, and Georgetown has nobody capable of filling Jim's shoes, so West Virginia should enjoy the better of the kicking. Bartrug may not start, but he is certain of seeing action at some stage of the fray.

Besides Bartrug, the Mountaineer stars this year are Leo Dotson, hard-running, plunging full back; Johnny Doyle and Bill Parriott, speedy half backs, and Gene Joseph and Wilbur Sortet, a pair of husky ends.

Georgetown has prepared for a forward passing battle if such should develop. Mills has given his charges several new aerial plays this week while also drilling them intensively on defense against Mountaineer heaves. Jake Sebulsky, quarter back, is the man Georgetown must watch if the invaders take to the overhead route. Johnny Scalzi is the main cog in Georgetown's passing attack, but if it is necessary Mills can order the throwing done by any one of the other local backs.

E. Bozek Center Of Interest.

The exhibition of Emile Bozek will be watched with unusual interest as this lad has been improving fast and bids fair to eclipse his more illustrious brother before long. Emile is not the shifty broken field runner that is Johnny, but he excels his brother in pass catching and defensive play.

West Virginia has not scored a point against Georgetown since 1926, when it won a thrilling game, 13 to 10. Georgetown was the winner in 1927, 25 to 0; in 1928, 12 to 0. Last year's clash ended in a scoreless tie.

Washington and Lee High Grid Star Ruled Ineligible

Special to The Washington Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Oct. 23.—A severe blow was inflicted in Washington and Lee High School's football chance to win the third District title this season when "Coopy" Goodwin, star half back, was ruled ineligible to play with the team in any District game, because he played baseball after the start of the scholastic gridiron season with an organized team.

This ruling was given out today by the Third District athletic committee, which held its regular session in the Alexandria High school building. H. T. Moncure, principal of the local high, is committee chairman and president.

Goodwin's barment was based on a rule adopted two years ago, which said no player connected with the schools could compete with organized teams once the scholastic season in any sport started. It is reported Fredericksburg High authorities protested his playing. The vote was 3-0 to rule him ineligible.

Principal Vandersllice, of Washington and Lee High, of Ballston, stated today this would make Goodwin ineligible for District "3" competition only, and if the Generals advance into the State final competition he can represent the school. Goodwin will also play in all outside tilts. He is rated as the best passer and kicker in scholastic circles in this sector.

Alexandria high school gridders will travel to Warrenton, Virginia, today to meet the Warrenton High Eleven in the first conference game. The entire squad of 25 players will make the trip. Washington and Lee High will play Fredericksburg High team at Fredericksburg in the other District game.

Bobby Mainfort, one of Washington's leading professional wrestlers, is planning to stage a series of grappling bouts in Alexandria next month. Mainfort hopes to hold the matches in Armory Hall.

Episcopal High School gridders will entertain Swavely Preparatory School Eleven, of Manassas, tomorrow afternoon on Hoxton Field at 3:30 o'clock. A large crowd is expected to see this game.

An important practice of the St. Marys Celtics Football Eleven was held last night. Assistant Manager Jack Allen is scouting around for a game for Sunday.

The Alpha Delta Omega Football Team held an important drill last night on Haydon Field in preparation for their game Sunday with the Marion A. C., of Washington, in the unlimited class of the Capital City League. This contest will be played on Hunton Field.

Clemson Eleven Wins, 20-7, In Annual S. Carolina Game

COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—The undefeated Tigers of Clemson College kept their season's record intact by coming from behind and trouncing their ancient foes, the South Carolina Gamecocks, 20 to 7 in the annual State Fair football feature here today.

It was the fourth consecutive triumph for the Cadets over their traditional opponents in this contest, recognized as the classic of Palmetto State football. Played under an overcast sky at noon, the game was witnessed by a capacity crowd of 15,000, including Gov. John G. Richards, and officials of both institutions.

Billy Laval's charges stepped out in front early in the first period when the shifty little half back, Bru Boineau, slipped around end, shook off two tacklers, and dodged the Clemson safety to get away for a 66-yard run for a touchdown. Boineau added the point with a placement kick, and that ended his team's scoring for the day.

Clemson put the game on ice in the second period with two touchdowns, both of which were the result of long passes hurled by Maxey Welch, Tiger quarter back and outstanding figure of the hard-fought contest. The first was for 33 yards, going over the goal into the waiting hands of Jones. A few moments later the quarter back tossed another for 31 yards to Harvin, who was downed 3 yards from the goal. Harvin plunged across for the touchdown. His toe added extra points after each of these touchdowns.

RAIL STOCKS SLUMP; INDUSTRIALS STRONG

Chesapeake & Ohio Loses 2¾ Points; Utilities' Tone Steady.

WHEAT AND COTTON RISE

New York, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Weakness of the railroads, notably those of the Van Sweringen group, and strength in the industrials and utilities gave a clouded complexion to the stock market today. Gains held up well, but bonds again weakened, which was rather perplexing since nothing developed to influence such a trend.

Trading in stocks seemed to assume a more professional character than has been evident recently and much stock that was bought on the rally of the earlier hours was sold before the close. This was hardly surprising, however, in view of the extensive liquidation that was in progress all day among the carrier issues, a score of which went to new lows. Volume of trading was comparatively light, aggregating 2,664,520 shares.

September railroad earnings, now filtering in, show the familiar shrinkages in comparison with a year ago and some of the executives willing to comment on prospects are none too enthusiastic about the weeks immediately ahead. The income figures, in themselves, seemed hardly alarming enough to touch off today's selling orders, the source of which was believed to be holders who had grown tired of waiting for the turn in business.

Pere Marquette Off 20.

Erie, Chesapeake Corporation, Allegheny Corporation and Nickel Plate dropped 3 points or more, and Chesapeake & Ohio lost 2¾. Pere Marquette broke more than 20, selling below par for the first time in four years on a small turnover. Weakness in this group was pronounced from the opening and it spread to numerous other rails in the afternoon.

National Biscuit's report of the day's earning statements, showing $1.01 a share for the third quarter against 86 cents a year ago. Hershey Chocolate's statement was also favorable, but Allis Chalmers and Phillips Petroleum did not make so favorable a comparison. Phillips' president announced that the 50-cent quarterly dividend would be paid; it was earned with 40 cents to spare.

Estimates on United States Steel's earnings for the third quarter, to be published next Tuesday, are around $2 a share, while forecasts for the year favor about $10. The likelihood of an extra dividend payment is regarded in most quarters remote.

Building Statistics Encouraging.

The building statistics continue encouraging. Construction in States east of the Rockies is running only 10 per cent under 1929 this month, on the basis of the daily average, whereas in September the discrepancy was 25 per cent.

The $139,000,000 decrease in Federal Reserve brokers' loans brought the drop in the last four weeks to $209,000,000 and put the total at the lowest since November 24, 1926. This decline, which incidentally is not as large as the deflation witnessed from June 11 to July 2, carries less significance than the recent recession in bank loans on collateral, for it was to the latter account that the huge burden of speculative borrowing was transferred after last fall's collapse. In some quarters it is believed that bank loans will be still further reduced and many brokerage houses feel that until this liquidation is completed the stock market will find the going rather soft.

The reserve statement showed that discounts had fallen $9,000,000 for the system but $26,000,000 at the local bank. Government security holdings were unchanged, while the total of bills and securities was off nearly $25,000,000 for the 12 banks.

U. S. Steel Gains 1¾ Points.

Stocks pushed ahead 1 to 3 points in the early trading, wavering slightly when the rails made so poor a showing. However, the advance was resumed in the afternoon and gains of 3 to 7 points were frequent. This improvement was more than halved by the late selling and the market averaged 2 points higher at the close, despite the sustained weakness of the carriers. U. S. Steel, which had been up 4 points, closed 1¾ higher. General Electric, General Motors, American Telephone, American Can, Westinghouse, Sears Roebuck, Eastman Kodak, Allied Chemical, Hershey, Radio, Johns-Manville and Standard Oil of New Jersey held 1 to 3 points of large advances. Atchison lost a 3-point gain.

The tone of the wheat market was improved by the proposal to make the Farm Board's holding, amounting to a considerable volume, available as food for the unemployed. Closing quotations were unchanged to half a cent higher, despite rains in the Southwest and reports of a large increase in the world's visible supply. Corn sagged fractionally, but cotton made a strong finish, up $1.20 to $1.50 a bale.

Foreign exchanges were easy, with the exception of the yen, which touched par for the first time since the war.

DECLINE IN BONDS LED BY RAIL LIST

Foreign Group, Despite Few Soft Spots, Is Steady; Latin-Americans Up.

GERMAN SECTION MIXED

New York, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—An extensive list of rail obligations broke sharply in the bond market today coincident with the weakness of shares. Active selling forced many issues 1 and 2 points lower and convertible obligations of the Alleghany Corporation dipped 7 to 11 points.

The selling provided new impetus for the sagging bond market and the domestic list moved down to new low levels for the current decline. The price level as reflected in the averages is only one-tenth of a point above the year's minimum.

Despite a few soft spots, foreign obligations were firm and some of the Latin-American governments were in demand at a point or two above the previous final price.

Virtually the entire list of railroad loans was affected by the liquidation, and some of the largest declines were in legal issues whose decreased earnings has left in doubt their continuance on the list of legal investments for savings banks.

Van Sweringen Group Active.

Bonds of companies in the Van Sweringen group were very active, as sellers accepted bids well below the previous prices. Alleghany 5s of 1949 dropped 11¾, to 70½, compared with a year's high of 104½. The 5s of 1944 were down 7, and the 5s of 1930 reacted 9. All three were at new lows for the year.

Chesapeake Corporation 5s lost 4¾ to touch a new year's minimum and there were 1 to 2 point losses in Chesapeake & Ohio 4½s A and B, Cleveland Union Terminal 4½s, Erie 5s of 1975, Missouri Pacific general 4s and 5s, A. F. G. & H. Nickel Plate 4½s C, and Texas & Pacific 5s and 5s C. Pere Marquette bonds were soft. Missouri Pacific 5½s firmed at the close.

Other prominent issues dropping a point or more included Boston & Maine 5s, Canadian Pacific 4½s, Chicago, Burlington & Quincy 4½s, Chicago & Northwestern 4¾s, Illinois Central 4s, International Great Northern 6s, Kansas City Southern 5s, M. K. T. 4½s, New Haven debenture 4s, Reading Co. 4½s Southern Pacific 4s and several Wabash issues.

Changes in Utility Group.

Liquidation in other sections of the domestic list was more moderate, especially among utility bonds, where few losses exceeded a point. Columbia Gas & Electric 5s, Laclede Gas Light 5½s, Consumers Power 5s, New Orleans Public Service 5s B, New York Edison 6½s, Pacific Gas & Electric 6s were among the weak spots. Western Union and Consolidated Gas were steady. American Telephone issues were little changed.

In sympathy with the share market a few stock privilege issues closed firm to give an irregular appearance to the group. American Telephone 4½s sagged 3 points. General Theaters 6s and Warner Brothers 6s lost a large fraction. International Telephone 4½s, Shubert Theater 6s, Philadelphia and Reading Coal & Iron 6s, Pathe 7s, were firm.

While buying was on a moderate scale, principal Latin-Americans were further improved. The feature of the Europeans was the strength of Belgian issues. The 6s and 6½s advanced a point and the 7s were well bought. German bonds were again mixed. Rhine Westphalian bonds moved sharply lower on thin sales.

U. S. Governments were steady and dull.

LISTING OF SHORTS SEEN AS TRADE HELP

CONTRACTOR AID'S PLAN

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Publication by the New York Stock Exchange of the names of those selling stocks short was suggested yesterday as a means of improving business by A. S. Brown, jr., of Boston, president of Brown's Letters, Inc., contractors' publication. A visitor in the city, Mr. Brown believes such action would stop this dangerous market practice which is offsetting to quite an extent the efforts of President Hoover to restore confidence in business.

In a position close to the building industry, Mr. Brown said he felt that many private projects were being retarded by stock market conditions affected so adversely by the operations, chiefly in New York, of professional "shorts."

Commenting on a recent statement of President Whitney, of the New York Stock Exchange, that a questionnaire during the panic revealed the value of short interests compared with the market value of all listed stocks to be but one-eighth of 1 per cent, he explained it was quite possible many "shorts" covered at that time and that their real strength might have been greater than the exchange questionnaire revealed.

Considerable Effect Seen.

Mr. Brown said further that while this percentage seemed too small to have any appreciable effect on the market, it really could have considerable effect if exerted at the right time and against a few of the market leaders.

By its rejection of a petition filed by the Claiborne-Annapolis Ferry, asking that the Interstate Commerce Commission reopen hearings on the project of the Chesapeake Beach Railway Co. to construct a ferry between Chesapeake Beach and the Eastern Shore, the commission has apparently cleared the way for initiation of the work.

The Claiborne-Annapolis Ferry Co. was the only opponent of the project, which had the indorsement of many business men and trade organizations of Washington, Baltimore and the Eastern Shore. The Interstate Commerce Commission granted the Chesapeake Beach Railway Co's. petition, but recently the ferry company asked a reopening of the proceedings for oral argument and for modification of the commission's report. Denial of this petition leaves no further opening for opposition, so far as the commission is concerned.

Fleming Returns From Vacation.

W. W. Spaid, partner in W. B. Hibbs & Co., is back at his office after being confined to his home by illness.

B. Gywnn Dent, an assistant cashier, and W. H. Taylor, chief teller, Riggs National Bank, were presented with large cakes by clerks and stenographers of that institution on the occasion of their recent birthdays.

G. Bowie Chipman, resident partner in Harriman & Co., is confined to his home by illness.

ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS

By CHARLES W. STORM.

International Tel. & Tel.; Loew's.

Miss C. B.—I would appreciate your advice on International Telephone & Telegraph and Loew's, Inc.

Answer—International Telephone & Telegraph may now be bought to yield on the basis of present $2 annual dividend, 6.9 per cent. Estimated that, despite South American troubles, earnings for year, 1930, will be about $2.20 a share. Considering these facts, stock appears fairly attractive, though it is quite speculative and subject to wide fluctuations.

In striking contrast to vast majority of other companies, in no matter what line, Loew's, Inc., is showing decided gains in revenues. For 40 weeks ended June 6, 1930, net income of $11,519,693 was reported. After allowing for preferred dividend requirements, this was equal to $7.64 a common share, compared with $7,952,803, or $5.32 a share in corresponding period of 1929. Earnings have shown pronounced upward trend since 1921. Preferred dividends have been paid regularly, while rate on common was increased from $2 to $3 annually with quarterly payment of 75 cents December 31, 1929. Recently there has been much talk of probable further increase in dividend, but directors at meeting September 2, last, declared only regular 75 cents quarterly. However, current earnings certainly warrant further increase. In consequence, stock looks attractive.

International Agricultural.

D. C.—I am writing for some information on International Agricultural preferred stock.

Answer—Quoted around 46, paying $7 and carrying dividend arrearage of 22¾ per cent, the stock yields about 15 per cent. So far as earnings are concerned there is little danger of the $7 dividend being omitted in the near future. The high yield, however, is a reflection of the uncertainty ahead for the fertilizer industry. Earnings for the fiscal year ended June 30 were the largest in many years, equaling $14.58 a share on the 100,000 shares of preferred. Sales during the period were the largest in the company's history. Nevertheless, the stock is regarded as speculative.

Borg-Warner Co.; Intertype.

J. E. A.—Kindly give me some information of the Borg-Warner Co. and the Intertype Corporation, their assets, resources, &c., and character of their business and their subsidiaries, if any; also your opinion of same.

Answer — Borg - Warner organized May, 1928, as a holding company, is a dominant factor in production of automobile parts, supplying through subsidiaries a large percentage of automobile manufacturers with clutches, carburetors, transmissions, radiators, &c. During last year activities have been diversified somewhat to include production of certain agricultural and industrial equipment. More recently company entered electrical refrigeration field. Company earned $6.09 a common share in 1929 and paid a stock dividend of 50 per cent in August of last year. Cash, call loans and marketable securities owned as of June 30, 1930, exceeded $8,000,000, this item alone being substantially in excess of total current liabilities. Net working capital approximated $14,500,000. Company expected to earn somewhat short of $3 a share this year, but 1930 showing does not represent normal money making capacity. For six months ended June 30, 1930, net equaled $1.84 a common share. Decline in profits necessitated a cut in annual dividend from $4 to $3 last July. Further cut in dividend seems certain. However, stock in present decline to lowest figure of the year has in all probability largely discounted this. Appears moderately attractive for long-term holding.

Intertype Corporation, incorporated February 1, 1916, as successor of International Typesetting Machine Co., shares leadership with Mergenthaler Linotype in manufacturing linecasting machines and accessories. Operating income for year ended December 31, 1929, amounted to $1,095,729, and net income to $765,125, latter equal to $3.05 per common share, comparing with $2.73 per common share for 1928. Balance sheet at close of 1929 showed total current assets $7,341,867; total current liabilities, $656,035, and net working capital, $6,685,832. Dividends on common are paid at rate of $2 annually, with occasional extras in cash or stock. Stock can only be classified as fair speculative-investment, especially as net income for six months to June 30, last, declined to $303,797, equal to $1.16 a common share, from net of $413,476, or $1.66 a common share, for corresponding period of 1929.

Cuban Sugar.

T. V. K.—Kindly give me an opinion of Cuban sugar securities.

Answer—Raw sugar prices have been somewhat firmer the past week, the halt in the steady decline being identified with announcement that the Chadbourne plan to help the industry had received the support of the Cuban government. This plan provides for the withdrawal of 1,500,000 tons of raw sugar from the market, to be paid for on account by the issuance of Cuban government bonds on the basis of $4 a bag. In addition owners of the sugar will receive certificates entitling them to a pro rata share in the final net proceeds, the agreement being that withheld supplies will be marketed within five years. A number of sugar stocks have witnessed a bear market for a long time, with many of them quoted at receivership prices because of nonprofitable operations. The outlook continues clouded, which accounts for the neglect of the stocks.

Sears Roebuck; Montgomery Ward.

Dr. R. D.—Will you kindly give me a statement on Sears Roebuck and Montgomery Ward common stock? I am thinking of investing in both. What is the reason for their low prices at present in comparison with the high figures of 1929?

Answer—General business depression, falling off in sales and earnings of these companies and serious decline in securities of all descriptions fully explain reasons for present low prices of these shares. Despite unfavorable trade prospects, Sears Roebuck is expected to cover its $2.50 cash dividend this year. However, there is a reason to question whether policy of stock dividends will be continued. From a long-pull viewpoint the shares seem to be at an attractive level.

If future dividends by Montgomery Ward are to be paid entirely out of earnings, and if current estimates of income for full 1930 year are correct then there is a possibility of at least a reduction in the present dividend, which calls for $3 a share. Earnings for stock in 1929 were only $2.60 a share; estimates for 1930 place the amount to be earned at $2.50 a share.

Mathieson Alkali.

Miss M. N. S.—Will you kindly give me information concerning Mathieson Alkali as an investment?

Answer—Common stock, now selling at around $35, seems to offer attraction, purely as a long-pull holding. Profits are being maintained by important operating economies effected, despite the general industrial depression. Paying $2 in yearly dividends, with earnings substantially in excess of that amount, the stock at present prices gives a return of 5.7 per cent, and is therefore quite well regarded from a speculative-investment viewpoint, even as common stocks go at present.

Curb Review

New York, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—The Curb Market made irregular recovery today, in sympathy with the big board, where strength in industrials and utilities evidently prompted short covering in the more active curb issues.

Trading slackened somewhat, and the gains were modified by fresh selling in the last hour. Total sales aggregated 598,700 shares. Utilities and oils generally closed steady to firm, while several of the lightly traded industrials were again weak.

Electric Bond and Share rallied 3 points, then reduced its gain to 1¾ net. American Gas and Electric sold up 5½, then slipped off 2 from the top. Brazilian Traction and American and Foreign Power Warrants gained more than a point. United Light A rose 2, but reacted to close unchanged.

Oils were steadier, although Standard of Indiana, an active feature, closed off ¼. Cities Service was also turned over in large volume, and closed up ½. Gulf gained as much, and Vacuum rose a point. Investment trusts also improved, notably the Goldman Sachs group. Goldman Sachs trading, together with Blue Ridge and Shenandoah preference stocks, closed about a point higher. Chain stores were quiet and irregular. Lerner gained 2, while Mercantile Stores dropped 10 to a new low at 35.

Aluminum Co. of America rallied 9 points, and Aviation Corporation of America 3. Manning Bowman A dropped 9 to a new low at 3. Carnation Milk and L'Air Liquide sagged 2 to new lows. Deere reacted 1½, Dow Chemical and Glen Alden, 2.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Sudden upturns in all grain prices late today, reaching a maximum of 2½ cents a bushel from the day's bottom level, aroused much interest among traders. The advance was largely ascribed to reports current that changes in prospect would permit manufacture of 4½ per cent beer, and would afford an additional outlet for millions of bushels of grain. No satisfactory confirmation of the reports was obtainable, however, and the upturns in grain quotations mostly failed to hold.

Wheat closed irregular at ¼ cent net decline to ½ cent advance. Corn closed ⅝ to 1¼ cents down. Oats ¾ to ¾ cent off, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 15 cents.

A lively transient increase of buying on the part of houses with Eastern connections preceded the late advance of wheat. This buying revealed that for at least the time being the wheat market had been oversold, and the stimulating effect was the greater as a result of nearly simultaneous news that Chairman Legge, of the Federal Farm Board said the price of Russian wheat in Europe had been raised 4 cents to 5 cents a bushel during the last few days. Meanwhile, market authorities here explained that the use of all grain as feed because of corn and May crop shortage was making cereal prices move largely as a unit, and that the renewal of beer manufacture would tend to lift the market value of all grain.

On the other hand, buying support for wheat values quickly faded away in the final transactions. In some quarters talk was heard that the reports about resumption of beer manufacture were from political sources, and were devoid of any genuine market significance. Earlier, the wheat market here was dominated a good deal by relative weakness of Liverpool wheat quotations and by word that wheat shipments from Russia amounted to 5,808,000 bushels for the week, with the world's available supply figures also making a bearish exhibit.

Provisions averaged higher, responsive largely to a rise in the value of hogs.

Closing indemnities—Wheat, December, 79¼, 81⅛, 81¾; March (bids), 83; May, 84½, 86¾, 86⅞; July, 84⅝, 87⅛. Corn, December, 77⅝, 77⅞, 77⅞; March, 79⅝, 79⅞; May, 81⅞; May, 82¼, 82¾, 84½, 84⅝.

A Sale Without Parallel In Our History

It means, Mr. Used Car Buyer, that we absolutely have the greatest bargains it ever has been our pleasure to offer.
He is our story and our proposition:
We have in stock 40 late Essex models that have been traded in on new Essex and Hudsons. These cars are all in first-class condition and have many thousands of miles of safe, pleasant transportation in them.
Provided it will run to our sales room, we will allow you for your old car in exchange for any Essex selling for $295 and over.
$100
We have all our cars marked plainly with selling prices, down payments and monthly notes. This has been in effect with us for more than two years.
One point that we wish to emphasize more strongly than any other is this: NO CAR HAS BEEN OR WILL BE MARKED UP IN PRICE TO TAKE CARE OF THIS REMARKABLE OFFER. These cars were traded in at right prices and they will be sold at right prices, irrespective of our splendid trade-in allowance to you.
If you would get the best bargains that are to be had, don't fail to be among the early callers.

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

PRINCE WILLIAM CO. SUPERVISOR NAMED

Judge, Sitting in Court at Arlington, Announces Appointment.

MASS MEETING IS HELD

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Judge Walter T. McCarthy, in the Circuit Court of Arlington County, yesterday appointed C. C Lynn as member of the board of supervisors at Manassas for Prince William County to fill the vacancy caused by the recent death of J. R. Larkin, who was chairman of the board.

A delegation of business men from Manassas, composed of A. A. Hoofe, R. S. Hymson, H. T. Davis and J. H. Burke, appeared before the court in the interest of the appointment of Mr. Lynn.

It was stated by those appearing for Mr. Lynn that the board will at a future meeting elect its chairman.

Unanimous endorsement of the proposal of the Arlington County Civic Federation to adopt the county manager form of government for the county and elect members of the county board at large was given at the mass meeting held in the Ashton Heights Woman's Clubhouse last night. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Ashton Heights Citizens Association and the Woman's Club.

Robert N. Anderson, chairman of the committee on legislation and legal action of the federation, and Arthur Orr, a member of the committee, addressed the meeting and explained the forms of government for which the voters will be called upon to cast their votes on Tuesday, November 4.

Beginning today at 11 o'clock in the auditorium of the High School at Warrenton, District H, of the Virginia Education Association, will open its annual conference, which will continue through tomorrow. O. L. Emerick, of Purcellville, will preside.

Representatives from the various counties and the City of Alexandria, comprising the district—Arlington, Culpeper, Fairfax, Fauquier, Loudoun, Prince William and Rappahannock Counties— will attend the conference.

The morning session today will open with the invocation by the Rev. D. M. Brown, to be followed with the address of welcome by R. A. McIntyre, member of the Virginia House of Delegates from Loudoun County. The response will be by A. E. Bowers, principal of the Washington High School of Rappahannock County. The program for the morning's meeting will conclude with an address by Robert W. House, president of the Virginia Education Association.

The program for the afternoon session, which will convene at 2 o'clock, will include addresses by Dr. William R. Smithey, of the University of Virginia, and E. B. Graves.

The program will include a general discussion on the work of the several grades. Among the speakers will be T. W. Hendrick, J. R. Lintner, Miss Lucy Watkins, Miss Harriet E. Cocke, Miss Josephine Burger, Miss Katie Groh, Miss Lucy G. Lewis, Mrs. Emile N. Windle and Mrs. Elsie Davis.

With the view of making the Arlington Post, No. 139, American Legion, one of the most active in the vicinity of Washington, announcement was made last night that plans now are being formulated and will be completed at the next meeting of the post, October 29, for one of the most intensive membership drives ever started by the post.

With the continued drought causing much suffering, John H. Olcott, contractor, stated yesterday he has been fortunate in having clear weather, which has made it possible to bring to a speeding completion the road improvement work now going on in the center of Clarendon. He states that he will have one side of the Wilson boulevard open to traffic at the center of Clarendon by Sunday of this week.

The Arlington Rotary Club, meeting yesterday at the Washington Golf and Country Club, completed its plans to attend the Intercity Rotary banquet and meeting to be held next Thursday evening at the Normal School at Fredericksburg. The club will leave in a bus of the Washington-Virginia-Maryland Coach Co. The bus will leave Clarendon at 4:30 o'clock. Other clubs to attend the meeting are as follows: Culpeper, Winchester, Orange, Leesburg, Alexandria, Warrenton and Front Royal.

Hugh E. Kirby, member of the board of directors of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce, addressed the club on the subject of the George Washington Memorial Parkway as provided in the Capper-Cramton bill passed by the last Congress.

Mr. Kirby briefly outlined the value of this improvement to northern Virginia and also mentioned other proposed improvements for Virginia to be made by the Federal Government.

The county health department has certified the following pupils from the Woodmont School as 5-point health children: Robert Brewer, Albert Rixse, Stanley Leizear, Jean King, Charles Harris, Franklin Rixse, Virginia McCulley, John Milstead, Richard Fisher, Robert Williams, Jeannette Birch, Edna Groot, Thomas Sigmundeson, Cameron Albine, William Gill, Harry Pippert, Dean Brundage, Elizabeth Brewer, Eugene Hise, Winifred Wright and Charles Sterner.

Arrangements for the Halloween dance to be given in the Odd Fellows Hall at Clarendon, the evening of October 30 under the auspices of the Arlington County Business and Professional Woman's Club, are being completed, it was announced last night.

Jury Sniffs Rum Jug As Crowd Smacks Lips

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Oct. 23.—A half-gallon of mellowed moonshine liquor was passed around among officials and jurymen in circuit court by Sheriff Pannett today for the purpose of determining by smell that a jug found recently in a county road culvert contained an intoxicant. A crowded courtroom looked wistfully as the odor permeated the air until the sheriff sealed the jug and carried it out of the room.

Sam McFarland, 18, had been indicted for illegal possession. He explained, however, that he knew nothing about the liquor that was found in the culvert—that he simply was standing nearby late one evening waiting for his employer to come along on a trip to hire apple pickers. The jury gave McFarland benefit of the doubt and freed him.

DEMOCRATS REPEAT BID FOR TEAM WORK

State Central Committee Advises Montgomery Voters on Issue.

CADDY TRIO IS ARRESTED

In an effort to clarify the atmosphere of doubt which resulted from a statement issued Tuesday by the Democratic State central committee and the Democratic candidates committees, which apparently threatened to read out of the party all Democrats who do not support the Democratic candidates in the November 4 election, a second statement was issued yesterday to the Democrats of Montgomery County.

The second statement, however, does not alter the wording of the first statement, but merely contents itself with declaring the same principles expounded in the first statement. In company with the first statement it apparently threatens the same penalty for those who do not vote their party ticket. Berry E. Clark, chairman of the Democratic State central committee, yesterday declined to make any further comment than that contained in the two statements. When asked if the statements mean that those who do not vote the Democratic ticket will be read out of the party, he said, "Well, they won't be Democrats, will they?"

"On Wednesday, October 22, 1930, the Democratic State central committee and Democratic candidates committee issued a statement to the Democrats of Montgomery County. We consider the text of the same to be clear and understandable when we say we have no intention or desire other than to cooperate with and continue to work with all the Democrats of the county, and we will be glad to continue to cooperate with, on an equal footing, all loyal members of the Democratic party.

"Since the issuance of this statement there have been some who have tried to misconstrue it. The object of this statement is perfectly clear and definite. It is a direct invitation to all Democrats, no matter which faction they favored in the primary, to cooperate, on an equal footing, for the success of their party on November 4, next, and anyone who says to the Democrats of this county that this statement had any other object is merely attempting to contravert its intention for political purposes of their own."

The statement is signed by Berry E. Clark and by Stedman Prescott, chairman of the candidates' committee.

The county tax rate is not an issue in the present campaign, Stedman Prescott, Democratic candidate for State's attorney, declared at a Democratic rally in Modern Woodmen Hall, Laytonsville, last night. By their failure to mention the tax rate in their platform, the Republicans tacitly admit that it is fair and equitable and that they could not change it if they are elected to power, Mr. Prescott said.

Taxes are the most potent political ammunition, Mr. Prescott declared, and added that the Republicans would expound on this subject if it were not for the fact that they know the present tax rate is fair and equitable and one of the lowest, if not the lowest, in the State, and they can not afford to attack something that they will have to continue. "It doesn't matter which party is elected, the tax rate will remain practically the same," the candidate stated.

Capt. Joseph C. Cissel, presided at the meeting. Policies of the present administration were defended by Berry E. Clark, chairman of the State central committee for Montgomery County; William F. Prettyman, and Police Judge Charles W. Woodward.

Miss Lavinia Engle, candidate for the House of Delegates, told another Democratic rally at Old Germantown that failure to reelect the Democratic State and county administration would nullify the progressive social reforms which had been fought for by organized women of the State. Bowie Waters, Judge Woodward and Preston B. Ray also addressed the meeting.

Three Negro caddies were arrested yesterday by Montgomery County Policeman E. R. Jones of the Bethesda Substation on charges of larceny of articles from cars of members of the Woodmont Country Club near Bethesda within an hour after the report of the robberies. They are Joseph Moultrie, 17 years old; Louis Brown, 15, and Herbert "Dubley" Howard, 17, all of Tenallytown, D. C.

The youths are accused of having taken two golf sticks valued at $18 from the car of Dr. C. E. Kelly and a windbreaker valued at $15 from the car of Dr. Davis.

Howard Hawkins, Negro, V street northwest near Second street, was arrested yesterday by Policeman Joseph Oldfield of the Bethesda Substation on charges of driving an auto while under the influence of intoxicating liquor and without a permit, following a collision near Bethesda. He was held on bond of $1,000 by Justice of the Peace A. L. Moore of Bethesda.

Hawkins, police charge, is the driver of a car which crashed head-on into a car driven by Joseph Kuntz, 632 O street northwest, on the Rockville pike near Bethesda, and then ran about 300 feet to a tree at the side of the road, with which the car collided. No one was injured in the accident but both cars were badly damaged.

John Ely, jr., 8 years old, 6317 Woodside place, Bethesda, was shaken up yesterday when his bicycle was struck by a car driven by Charles G. Lueck, 6237 Thirtieth street northwest.

According to witnesses, the boy darted from a side driveway into the path of the car. Mr. Lueck ran his car onto a terrace in an effort to avoid the boy, but the bicycle was knocked over by the car. Mr. Lueck took the boy to his home, where examination revealed no injuries.

Three additional District rallies are planned by the Democratic party in Montgomery County, in addition to the list of meetings which has been announced, it was stated yesterday by Preston B. Ray. The first of these will be at the home of J. J. Decker, Glen Echo, October 29, when Maj. E. Brooke Lee, speaker of the Maryland House of Delegates; Miss Lavinia Engle, candidate for member of the House of Delegates; Stedman Prescott, candidate for State's attorney, and Capt. Joseph C. Cissel will speak. Mr. Decker will preside. The committee in charge includes Mr. Decker, Robert Garrett, Mrs. Eugenia Balduc, Daniel Collins and Daniel Wells.

The other meetings will be at Potomac on October 30 and at Hyattstown October 31.

Page County Teacher Is Attacked by Bear

Special to The Washington Post.

Luray, Va., Oct. 22.—Bears are exterminating sheep, hogs and chickens in the mountains of Shenandoah District, this county. People also are being attacked by the bears, who are believed to have been driven to desperation by drought wiping out their usual diet of herbs in the mountains.

Miss Minnie Fletcher, teacher of the Weaver School in that district, is the latest victim of the bears. While Miss Fletcher was on her way to her boarding house from her school she was attacked on a mountain path by a bear, which threw her down, inflicting such injuries that she has been taken to a hospital in Harrisonburg for treatment. Lacerations on Miss Fletcher's body are numerous and deep from the bear's claws.

Welfare Worker Named by Legion

Virginia Commander Appoints Charlottesville Woman to Post.

Abingdon, Va., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Roby C. Thompson, Virginia department commander of the American Legion, today announced the appointment of Mrs. Frank S. Irvine, of Charlottesville, as the department child welfare officer. Mrs. Irvine succeeds Dr. E. J. Nixon, of Petersburg, who recently resigned after serving in the office for several years.

She formerly served as a member of the department rehabilitation committee, from the Albemarle Legion Post No. 74. During the World War she served as a United States Army nurse, and has been active in legion affairs in Virginia since 1918.

Simultaneously, Commander Thompson said the Virginia department hopes to have 5,000 paid up members in Virginia before the close of the current membership campaign, ending November 18.

Charter Is Granted For Virginia Bridge

Toll to Be Charged on Span Between Yorktown and Gloucester Point.

Special to The Washington Post.

Gloucester Point, Va., Oct. 23.—A charter has been granted the newly formed Yorktown Bridge Corporation to construct and operate a toll bridge 1½ miles long across the York River between Gloucester Point and Yorktown.

The Yorktown bridge when completed will eliminate the present water gap between the new Tappahannock bridge across the Rappahannock and the long bridge over the James near Newport News, shortening the dry-land distance between Washington and Norfolk, thus connecting the York-Rappahannock Peninsula with the York-James Peninsula, greatly facilitating trade and tourist travel in the Tidewater district.

Work will begin at once to complete the new bridge for the opening date in October, 1931, for the Sesquicentennial at Yorktown.

Veteran Letter Carrier Expires in Cumberland

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Oct. 23.—Philip Sheridan Athey, 63, active in fraternal circles and a veteran letter carrier of Cumberland, was found dead in his bed by his son, Harold, today. He had been in failing health.

Mr. Athey was entering his twenty-eighth year in the mail service and was soon to have retired. His wife, one son and two daughters survive.

ANNEFIELD CUP RACE IS TAKEN BY SEABEE

Cold Wind and Drizzle Fails to Cut the Number of Spectators.

ONE RIDER IS THROWN

Special to The Washington Post

Berryville, Va., Oct. 23.—M. W. Carter's brown gelding, Seabee, won the ninth annual running of the Annefield Cup Race this afternoon. This race was won last year by Merry Widow, from the Fox Chapel Farms. Pal, owned by Dr. L. M. Allen, of Winchester, and ridden by William Street, was a close second until the last round, when he threw his rider just as he was taking one of the last jumps.

The Kentmere plate was won by Skipper Gray, from Old Mills Farm, and Walnut Hall plate was won by Sareaneda, from the Fox Chapel stud. In this race, Bellfronte, owned by Oliver Illesley, was second, and E. M. Wolf's grey gelding, Mixit, was third.

Rathbeal, Mrs. William B. Watkins' beautiful hunter, won the Old Dominion Cup. Brown Study, Mrs. T. H. Somerville's entry, was second.

Notwithstanding a cold wind and a slight drizzle, a large crowd attended the races held at Annefield, the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Watkins, of Philadelphia, and Clarke County. Owing to the condition of the ground from the prolonged drought, many entries were scratched, among which were all of the entries from the Fox Catcher Farms.

Fire Wrecks Dwelling Near Millington, Md.

Special to The Washington Post.

Millington, Md., Oct. 23.—Fire caused by a defective flue almost destroyed the summer boarding house, 2 miles west of this town, owned by William A. Felton, of Philadelphia, this morning. The owner, who is occupying another dwelling, discovered flames shooting from the roof of the larger building, occupied by the tenants, Mr. and Mrs. William M. Hurlock, of Kennedysville, Md. Felton gave the alarm and the Hurlocks escaped from the burning building.

Millington firemen arrived too late to save the two upper floors of the three-story house, but the blaze was checked as it reached the first floor. Felton lost furniture stored on the third floor, estimated at $5,000. It was insured for $3,500. Damage to the house itself is estimated at $5,000, partly insured.

Lynchburg Wedding Announced.

Lynchburg, Va., Oct. 23 (Special).—Charles Louis Candler, of Roanoke, who formerly lived here, and Miss Elizabeth Marie Davis, of Nashville, Tenn., were married here Tuesday by the Rev. S. H. Perkins, pastor of Englewood Baptist Church. They will live in Roanoke. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Candler, of Lynchburg.

NEW HEAD TO RULE AT WASHINGTON-LEE

Dr. Gaines to Take Oath as University's Thirteenth President Tomorrow.

J. W. DAVIS IS TO SPEAK

Lexington, Va., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Dr. Francis Pendleton Gaines will be inaugurated as the thirteenth president of Washington and Lee University here Saturday.

Outstanding on the inaugural program will be an address by John W. Davis, former Democratic candidate for the Presidency of the United States, and speeches by the commissioner of education, an editor, and seven university and college presidents.

The inauguration addresses include those by Mr. Davis, Commissioner of Education William John Cooper, Dr. John Finley, of New York; Chancellor James H. Kirkland, of Vanderbilt University; President Frank P. Graham, of the University of North Carolina; Maj. Gen. John Archer Lejeune, of Virginia Military Institute; President A. B Dinwiddie, of Tulane University; Dr. Fred C Perry, president of Hamilton College; Dr. Louis Smith, president-emeritus of Washington and Lee, and President Frederick A. P. Robinson, of the College of the City of New York.

Others on Program.

Others who will take part in the program are Judge C. J. McDermott, W. R. Perkins and Dr. George Bolling Lee, all of New York; Dean J. C. Metcalf, of the University of Virginia; George Walker St. Clair, of Tazewell, Va.; Dr William McClanahan White, minister of the First Presbyterian Church, Raleigh, N. C., and Dr. Walter Lapsley Carson, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Richmond.

The inauguration day program will begin at 10:00 a. m. It includes the inauguration exercises in the morning and a luncheon for guests in Doremus Memorial Gymnasium at 1:00 p. m. At 3:30 p. m. the Washington and Lee football team will meet the eleven from St. John's College on Wilson Field here.

Members of the board of trustees and faculty of Washington and Lee, speakers for the exercises, and delegates from more than a hundred colleges and universities of the country will form an academic procession to open the ceremonies.

Will Administer Oath.

The oath of office will be administered to the new president by Mr. St. Clair, rector of the University board of trustees. It will be the first thing on the program after the invocation by Dr. White, a member of the Washington and Lee board.

Mr. Davis will speak for the alumni of the University; Commissioner Cooper will represent education in the United States; Chancellor Kirkland will speak for American universities; President Graham will speak for Southern universities, and Gen. Lejeune for sister schools of Washington and Lee. Dr. Gaines' address of acceptance will precede the benediction.

Judge McDermott will preside at the luncheon, at which Dr. Finley will be the principal speaker.

Mother of 'Big Train' Will Direct His Home

MRS. F. E. JOHNSON, surrounded by Walter's children and children of John Burke, her son-in-law, who will accompany her when she leaves Coffeyville, Kans., to reside permanently at her son's home.

Mrs. Johnson Coming to Take Care of Her Grandchildren.

"For rent," reads a sign on a house at 811 West Firth street in Coffeyville, Kans. That in itself would hardly be worth mentioning even in the smallest of newspapers if the house at 811 West Firth street in Coffeyville, Kans., was just an ordinary house.

But behind that "For rent" sign is the story of a mother's devotion to a son in his hour of need. Ever since Mrs. Walter Johnson died last summer, Walter has been trying to carry on for the wife and mother which he and his children loved so well.

And the Nats' manager has done a good job, but he realizes that his little ones need a woman around the house. Besides, when the next baseball season comes along he will be gone a considerable portion of the time and there must be some one to look after the children.

So Walter has written his mother, Mrs. F. E. Johnson, of Coffeyville, herself a mother of six children whom she has watched grow into maturity, asking her help in his dilemma. And mother-like, Mrs. Johnson has responded in the way that only a woman can do when she decides upon her course of action.

No sooner than Walter's letter arrived than Mrs. Johnson's house was up for rent. And as quickly as it is rented she'll be on her way to Washington. With her will come Jack and Jimmy Burke, sons of John Burke, whose wife was Walter Johnson's sister. Jack and Jimmy are motherless and they, too, need a woman's care. So Mrs. Johnson is bringing them with her, so that the Burke boys and the Johnson children may romp and play together on the splendid fields out near Bethesda.

The children are not strangers. Last summer, just before Mrs. Walter Johnson was fatally stricken, they played together in Coffeyville. So when the Burke boys arrive it will be a reunion for the youngsters and except for the absence of the younger Mrs. Johnson the scenes of vacation will be reenacted.

Demands for Virginia Apples Continue Good

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Oct. 23.—Demand continued good for Virginia apples in good condition and highly colored at this week's auction in Liverpool, England, although many York Imperials arrived overripe, according to today's cable reports on sales.

Yorks brought from $5.52 to $7.68 per barrel, but mostly $6.36 to $6.84; Ben Davis, $4.80 to $5.76; Jonathans, $5.88 to 7.92; Winesaps, $6.12 to $6.72, and Stayman Winesaps, 5.75 to $6.48. Shipments from New York to all British ports for the week ending October 18 totaled 60,250 barrels, 77,448 boxes and 69 baskets.

Danville to Prepare Offer for College

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Oct. 23.—A special meeting of the city council will be held tomorrow for the purpose of formulating an offer for the proposed Liberal Arts College for Women on which a report is to be made to the 1932 legislature by a special legislative commission.

A committee of the council and the chamber of commerce recommends that 74 acres of Balloù Park be donated as the proposed site and that action looking to the raising of a fund of $300,000 to make the city's offer complete be initiated. Proposals by cities competing for the new college are to be filed with the commission by November 1.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

LOOKOUT MOUNTAIN AND PEE-WEE GOLF.

Chattanooga, Tenn.—Historic Lookout Mountain, scene of one of the great battles of the Civil War, was crowded today with pee-wee golfers from all parts of the country, engaged in a national tournament.—News item.)

WHERE Sherman, Bragg and Hooker
Fought Lookout's bloody fight,
Where Johnny Reb and Yankee
Faced horror, day and night,
Where Grant directed battle
Relentlessly and glum,
They've made a dinky playground
For golfers gone Tom Thumb.

• • • • •

Who battled for the North
Were given bloody battle
As lines swept back and forth,
A horde of pee-wee golfers
Across the field now cut
To see with what precision
A man can sink a putt.

• • • • •

WHERE Thomas in November,
In eighteen sixty-three,
Drove back the reb advance guard
And struck for victory,
Queer citizens in knickers
Of quite another type
Now strive to make a golf ball

First pierced the rebel lines
And clung to his position
Within a field of pines;
Where on the "Ridge" the battle
Was waged in pools of blood,
The Tom Thumb addicts struggle
To show their putting's good.

• • • • •

WHERE Sherman in the morning
Led in the final smash,
The tabloid golfers battle
For loving cups and cash;
Where Sheridan went storming
Up "Missionary's" slopes,
A flock of tabloid golfers

Where brave men fell unyielding,
As only brave men do,
And fields were heaped with dying
In gray and Union blue,
A lot of "bugs" with putters
Now stroke a little ball
And strive to tell beforehand
Just where the thing will fall.

L'ENVOI.

O, H. Grave, where is thy victory?
Oh, Death, where is they sting?
'Tis merciful the hero dead
Can't see this sort of thing.
Oh, what would Bragg and Hooker think,
And what would Sherman say,
If they could take a look and see
Their battlefield today?

A GOOD TIME WAS HAD BY ALL.

"We were sitting on a piano bench at a party given by Lawrence Tibbett. Ramon made some little remark and I gave him a push. Then he gave me a push. We fell off the bench and I had him down, too, and was sitting on his stomach. He 'oomed' his stomach and threw me off on my shoulder. Even then it wouldn't have been so bad. I wouldn't say I was hurt and he kept pummeling me until my shoulder was completely dislocated. I hate to tell this on Ramon, because he wouldn't really hurt anybody. He's a gentleman."—From Miss Elsie Janis' story of a recent injury at a Hollywood party.

AND IN THE MIDST OF A CAMPAIGN, TOO!

"I, ALFRED SMITH, sold Winfred Dress Shop, 1480 Broadway, to Gussie Goldberg. I am not responsible for debts incurred after October 18."—Advertisement in the New York Times.

Well, it should interest Senator Heflin, anyhow.

TOM THUMB FOOTBALL, AT LAST!

"Army's backs are cobby, thick-set, sawed-off types. None of the regulars exceeds 5.9 inches."—New York Sun.

A GERMAN inventor plans to fly from Berlin to New York in six hours. Here's hoping he doesn't forget to hold out his hand if he backs up.

A famous artist was married in a canoe the other day. The next logical stune is a honeymoon over Niagara Falls in a barrel.

It is understood to be "Legs" Diamond's lament that if his assailants hadn't run out of ammunition they might have done him permanent harm.

FOUR ARE CONVICTED IN HOLDUP ATTEMPT

USE OF HALL IS REFUSED

The four men indicted with Deputy Sheriff David Jones for assault with intent to rob were pronounced guilty by a jury in Circuit Court at Upper Marlboro yesterday. The jury was out less than half an hour. The men are Francis Jackson, James D. Martin, Benson Kidwell and Samuel Morton.

Jones asked for a separate trial and requested that he be tried by Judges Joseph C Mattingly and William M. Lokar. His case will probably come up next Tuesday. Jones will be represented by Clarence Roberts and not by Alan Bowie. Roberts also appeared yesterday for Jackson and Morton. Alan Bowie was counsel for Martin. Sentence on the convicted quartet has not been pronounced.

The trial was a short one and there was very little cross-examining of witnesses. Testimony indicated that Jones and the others stopped the car of W. F. Tucker, son of a Washington policeman. Young Tucker said that four or five shots were fired at him as he left his machine and fled across the fields. The defense attempted to show that Tucker's machine was stopped because Jones thought it was a bootlegger's car which had "smoked" him the night before.

Alice Chase and her son, Lawrence, also were tried yesterday on a charge of larceny and receiving stolen goods. Both were found guilty. Pronouncement of sentence was postponed, however. The woman refused to take the stand.

Members of the Taxpayers Association of Prince Georges County are indignant over the refusal of the Suitland Citizens Association to allow the former group to use the Community Hall for a political meeting. The taxpayers are in favor of a coalition ticket, which was said to be the basis of the citizens' refusal. If the group had been either Democratic or Republican, it was unofficially reported, no objection to the use would have been made.

Failing to gain the hall, the taxpayers found emergency quarters in R. M. Padgett's garage and held their meeting there. Six speakers who addressed the meeting rapped the present administration of the county and urged the election of the coalition ticket, on which ten Republicans and six Democrats appear. Harry T. Jenkins acted as chairman of the gathering.

The poultry judging team of the Prince Georges County Four-H Club is now at Frederick, Md., meeting other county teams in a contest to select State champions. The contest is held in connection with the Frederick fair, and the winner will meet teams from other States in the national encounter in New York in January.

The Prince Georges team is under the direction of W. B. Posey, county agent, and his assistant, P. E. Clark. The team is composed of May Montgomery, of Laurel; Maurice Jarvis, of Bladensburg, and Edith Enslow, of Brandywine.

Sherman Booth was held for action of the grand jury yesterday by the county police court, sitting in Capitol Heights. He is alleged to have stolen a dog valued at $150 from Fred Roach. Booth posted bond of $300 and was released until the jury could take action on his case.

In the same court, the case of Estelle Hanson and her mother, Lena Hanson, was continued. The pair were jointly charged with failure to obey the compulsory education law.

The reduced railroad tariffs, applicable to farm produce, have been extended to November 30, according to a letter received yesterday by the county agent. Dr. T. B. Symons, director of the extension service of the University of Maryland, announced the change. The reduced rates apply to farmers in the drought area who are forced to import feed for their cattle from outside the county.

A Democratic meeting to be held at Berwyn on November 1 was announced yesterday by the State central committee for Prince Georges County. Local candidates will appear to solicit the support of the voters of that section.

Several coffins were burned yesterday when fire destroyed the funeral parlors of James Penny, near Indian Head. The Penny home also was burned.

Another fire near Bryans Point was reported, the home of John Penn being burned to the ground. Penn reported that the house, all the furnishings and $25 in currency were lost in the blaze. The property was on the Howard farm. It is thought to have been started by children playing with matches.

Hospital Employe Held In Assault on Nurse

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Va., Oct. 23.—Will Anderson, 30, Negro employe at Lynchburg Hospital, was arrested last night charged with attempting to criminally assault a nurse at that institution.

The Negro, who had been employed at the hospital eight months, was arrested while on duty.
